PLAN PROPOSED FOR CONSCRIPTS TO DEFER DEBTS

Affects Rent, Taxes, and Insurance.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 12 (AP).—A plan empowering the courts to order temporary deferment of rent, insurance, and tax payments of men called into military service was submitted to the house military affairs committee today by the war department.

Almost identical with the world war civil rights act, the legislation would tend to prevent immediate eviction of a man's family on failure to pay the rent, but it would not cancel the eventual obligation to pay.

It would authorize the veterans' administration to guarantee payment of insurance premiums during the man's year of service, but he would have to pay up within a year after he returned to civil life in order to continue his policy.

It would permit the soldier to defer payment of property taxes until he got out of the army, but he would have to pay the tax collector 6 per cent interest.

Explain Plan's Operation.

Officials explained informally how the program would operate. In the case of rent this would happen:

When a man was called into service and his rent was not paid when due, the property owner would go into court to collect. Normally, if it was found the military training directly affected the ability of his wife to pay the rent, the court would order a maximum of three months' delay in eviction.

That period would give the wife time to move into another, cheaper, home, it was explained. Or the court could "make any other order that may be just." But in any case, the man would be obligated to make the rent good on completing his service.

Insurance Procedure Told.

In the case of the insurance payments, the following would be the procedure: Upon being called to the colors, a man might face the prospect of defaulting on his premiums. He could apply to the veterans' administration for relief. Upon investigation, the administration could approve his claim, whereupon it would give the insurance company a certificate guaranteeing payment.

When the man was mustered out, he would have one year to catch up with defaulted payments. If he chose to drop the policy the insurance company would be compelled to transfer its cash surrender value to the government. Then the veterans' administration would turn back the amount of deferred premiums to the company and return the cash balance to the insured man.

Chairman Andrew J. May [D., Ky.] indicated the house military affairs committee had decided to present these proposals as separate legislation rather than incorporate them in the National Guard mobilization bill.

APPROVE GUARD CALL

By a unanimous vote the house military committee approved today a senate bill authorizing the President to call out the National Guard and reserve army forces for one year's service in the western hemisphere, United States possessions, or Philippine Islands.

Chairman May said the committee, by "better than two to one," eliminated a provision which would have made it an unfair labor practice, as defined in the national labor relations act, for employers to refuse to reinstate these men to their original jobs.

But the committee retained the basic principle that Guardsmen taken away from their positions shall be restored to their work or another job of "like seniority status."

Rewrite Pittman Provision.

The members rewrote the amendment of Senator Key Pittman [D., Nev.], which would permit a Guardsman to resign within 20 days after called into service if he had a wife, child, or both dependent on him.

As approved by the committee, the section would require the discharge of any member of any reserve component of the army who has at least one person solely dependent on him for support if the man makes a request to be discharged within the 20 day period. The "reserve components" include the National Guard.

BOOKS REVEAL BATTLE AGAINST RACKETEER QUIZ

Danny Stanton Aids Are Arrested.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

Police yesterday seized the books and the available officers of two unions believed to be under the gangster domination of Frank [The Enforcer] Nitti and Danny Stanton. The books were being examined last night in an effort to determine whether the unions had paid any money as tribute to their gangster bosses.

The unions which were raided were the Miscellaneous Hotel and Restaurant Employés, Local 593, and the Waiters, Bartenders, and Cooks, Local 444. The latter is a Negro organization.

Those arrested in headquarters of the Miscellaneous Employés union were James Blakely, a pal and lieutenant of Stanton, who was called the most dangerous man on the south side, and John Lardino and Michael Lee. Blakely is treasurer of the union and its boss. Lardino and Lee are business agents of the union. Lardino once served a sentence in the House of Correction on a charge of robbery which was reduced to petty larceny. J. Levirt [St. Louis] Kelly, head of various unions of Negroes, was arrested in the headquarters of Local 444 at 4654 South Park way.

Raids Aimed at Gang Rule.

Capt. John Howe of Commissioner Allman's office, who led the raids, said their purpose was to rid the unions of racketeer control. He said the two unions were selected because they are believed to be in Stanton's control.

The raids resulted from orders by Mayor Kelly and State's Attorney Courtney to start action against the Nitti syndicate entrenched behind wealth producing unions.

Representatives of the Chicago Association of Commerce, the Illinois Manufacturers' association, the Employers' association, and the Crime commission met Friday with Kelly and Courtney and drafted a "stop Nitti" program, of which yesterday's raids were the first offensive.

Fight on Racket Probe Revealed.

Records of the miscellaneous employés' union revealed an attack by Lucian S. Kapp, union vice president, on the All Chicago council of the Association of Commerce for its efforts to apprehend the slayers of Marinus Hvid, a garage owner who was fatally beaten last Dec. 27 by goons.

After the slaying a fund of a million dollars was sought for an anti-racketeer drive under the direction of Frank Hecht, chairman of the All Chicago council.

William Crawford, assistant state's attorney, who examined the union records, found a transcript of a speech Kapp made to the union last April 10.

Drive Termed Racket.

"Hecht is a racketeer himself," Kapp told the union members, according to the transcript of his speech. "They are creating a million dollar fund to fight the people who have been doing things for the under dog. The reward is to be given anonymously. How do you like that for a racket? They are going to pay informers, and nobody will know where the money goes.

"That fund is to wipe out labor unions, and we defy them with the coöperation of you, and you, and you. They are going to use this money to defeat us and to bribe us. Offers have been made to me. I have had money put in my hand."

"I believe I can answer that claim right now," Crawford commented last night: "No money is to be used against honest union officials, and in no case against honest members of unions. Our combined forces are directed against racketeer union leaders, not against the unions themselves."

Frequent Payments Told.

Crawford said Blakely was on the union payroll for $115 a week, but sometimes drew that sum twice weekly.

He said George Smith, president of the union, had been paid $25 a week, but this year his pay was raised to

CHARGE MANY BRITISH FAMILIES ARE LIMITED TO TWO EGGS A WEEK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 12.—The egg shortage is becoming more and more acute, despite "the cumbersome committee of egg experts—food ministry officials, producers, wholesalers, and retailers—who are sitting week by week trying to reach an agreement on prices," a Daily Telegraph reporter complained today.

Many families, it is said, are unofficially rationed by merchants at two eggs weekly, sold singly. The present controlled price of 45 to 55 cents a dozen is said to be unprofitable to producers, who are refusing to market eggs.

Lancashire poultry farmers forced the issue by fixing the prices of eggs at the source at the maximum. These prices automatically eliminate the profit for the middleman or retailers. Altho a national shortage of eggs exists because of the seasonable decline of production at this time of year, Lord Woolton, the food minister, soon will hear from the egg advisory committee.

AUSTRALIAN AIR, ARMY MINISTERS DIE IN AIR CRASH

MELBOURNE, Australia, Aug. 13, Tuesday.—A Royal Australian Air Force plane crashed eight miles from Canberra this morning, killing Army Minister Gen. G. A. Street, Air Minister J. V. Fairbairn, the vice president of the executive council, Sir Henry Gullett; Gen. Sir Brudnell White, chief of the general staff; Gen. Fairbairn's secretary, R. E. Elford, and the crew of four.

Ickes' Profit on Freak Stamps Put at $187,417

New York, Aug. 12 [Special].—As secretary of the interior, Harold L. Ickes will receive $120,000 for his eight years' service, but as a stamp collecting cabinet aid he has acquired stamps with a potential value of $187,500, stamps dealers in Washington estimated today, the New York Sun said in a story from its Washington bureau.

As head of the National Park service, Ickes was invited to attend ceremonies at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing when the first park stamps were run from the presses. In accordance with the custom that prevailed in those days, he, with other dignitaries present, purchased two souvenir sheets of each of the 10 denominations of this issue, ungummed, and imperforate.

Department Grants Favor.

While other dignitaries apparently were content with their purchases, Ickes, enthusiastic philatelist with a sense of the value of rarities, the Sun recounted, asked if his sheets might be gummed. The bureau of engraving complied with the request, and Ickes sent a check covering the face value of the stamps.

Since that time he has given away about 50 of each value, or traded them for other stamps. But the 150 stamps of each value which he retains today are said by Washington dealers to possess a value of $187,500, according to the Sun.

The stamps cost the secretary, $82.50. Therefore his profit—if he realizes on it—would be $187,417.50.

Based on Actual Sales.

This estimate was based, the Sun said, on actual prices paid by collectors for other freak stamps in the open market.

Ickes has donated a block of four stamps of each of the 10 denominations to be auctioned for the benefit of war refugees, and whatever price they may bring is seen as serving naturally to place a similar basic value upon the 150 stamps of each denomination which Ickes retains.

Opinion in philatelic circles, the Sun said, has been "deeply outraged" by the action of Ickes in having these stamps especially gummed.

William M. Stuart, stamp editor of the Washington Post, told the Sun that he regards these stamps as illegitimate and without value among reputable dealers and collectors, beyond their face value.

One Washington dealer likewise told The Sun that he regards these stamps as without premium value, because not regularly issued.

New York collectors and dealers today discussed at length the revelation that Ickes had used his official influence to create for himself a third variety of the already notorious "Farley follies" stamp issue—the imperforate sheets of the National Parks issues in gummed condition.

P. O. Department Silent.

Post office department officials said they had given no thought to the possible reissuance of these National Park stamps in gummed, imperforate form, in keeping with the policy fixed at the time the first scandal surrounding the "Farley follies" stirred the philatelic world.

Unless similar procedure is followed in the case of the Ickes specials—or unless collectors, as a group, boycott the issue as fraudulent and without value as a rarity—"Mr. Ickes stands to make the largest profit on record out of a pennyworth of glue," The Sun commented.

NORSE PRINCESS AND 3 CHILDREN EN ROUTE TO U. S. ON RESCUE VESSEL

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Aug. 12 (AP).—Crown Princess Martha of Norway and her three children are en route to the United States aboard an American ship at the invitation of President Roosevelt, the Norwegian legation here announced today.

The legation said they boarded the ship at Petsamo in far northern Finland.

[The American troop transport American Legion arrived at Petsamo Aug. 5 under orders of President Roosevelt to bring out Americans in Scandinavia.]

Crown Princess Martha, daughter of Swedish Prince Charles, is a sister of the late Queen Astrid of Belgium. Accompanying her to the United States are Princesses Ragnhild, 10, and Astrid, 7, and Prince Harald, 3.

Crown Prince Olav now is in England, where he accompanied King Haakon of Norway when the allies withdrew from Norway.

NAZIS ATTACK THIRD DAY; BOMB ALL PARTS OF ISLAND

Long Range Guns Believed Firing Over Channel; Italians May Be Giving Aid.

Claims of both belligerents in Monday's great air battles follow:

GERMAN—89 British planes downed; extensive destruction at Portsmouth naval base, Manston airdrome, Isle of Wight, ports of Margate and Dover; 6 merchant ships sunk; admit loss of 24 planes.

BRITISH—61 German planes downed; admit loss of 13 planes and damage to naval bases at Portsmouth, Southampton, and Dover.

BERLIN, Aug. 13, Tuesday (AP).—Claiming virtual control of the air over the bomb shattered English channel, German sources predicted today that successive raids would stab steadily inland until "not even London" would be safe from bomb destruction.

Hailing reports of tremendous ruin to Britain's coast defenses and naval bases in three days of stepped up aerial blitzkrieg, the German press said the battle fleet Britain counted on to hold off direct assault might already have been forced to clear out of channel bases.

The Germans claimed 231 British planes wrecked in the three days of fighting, last Thursday, Sunday, and yesterday—including those smashed by bombs dropped on airdromes.

Two Days of Heavy Losses.

Sunday and yesterday, the Germans reported, 182 were shot out of the air, 89 yesterday and 93 on Sunday, to German losses of 51, 24 yesterday and 27 on Sunday. [Earlier German estimates had put the British losses yesterday at 71 and the German at 19.]

From the intensity of the attacks they looked more and more like preparation for the long expected grand scale invasion.

The great British naval base at Portsmouth, where huge fires were reported, the airport at Manston, declared to have been destroyed, and the port of Margate on the Thames estuary, gateway to London, bore the brunt of the assaults along the southern coast of England.

The German radio reported the British lost 48 planes in the battle over Portsmouth alone, where 12 German planes were shot down.

Attack Ship Convoys.

It said 15 British planes were destroyed at Manston, 12 of them on the ground, and claimed heavy losses at the airdromes of Canterbury, Lympne, and Hawkinge.

Still other Nazi squadrons screamed down on barrage balloon protected British convoys in the accentuated campaign to destroy Britain's shipping and harbor facilities and demoralize her people.

The German radio reported that four British merchant vessels, totalling about 10,000 tons, were sunk by Nazi bombers off Margate, England, and several other ships damaged.

The Germans asserted a dive bombing attack on a convoy east of Southend sank two freighters and set another afire.

Channel Shipping Hampered.

All British shipping and naval operations in the channel now are greatly hampered, they said, because of extensive destruction at Portsmouth, Portland, Dover, and the Isle of Wight.

The Germans appeared to be bombing the British coast section by section, since the attacks on Manston and Portsmouth yesterday were just north and east of Weymouth and Portland, objects of Sunday's forays.

Portsmouth is one of the most important bases of the British fleet, the German radio declared, adding that it is "the main port of the British home fleet on the southern coast of England and among its extensive establishments are several naval training schools, including the submarine school."

Naval Yard Main Objective.

"The research institute of the admiralty is also situated there," the radio said. "Portsmouth is especially protected by permanent coastal and antiaircraft artillery. Apart from the war port, the main objective of German airmen was the state-owned naval yard. . . ."

DNB, describing the raid, said about 40 planes took part, flying from the south at noon over Spithead and dividing into three groups just before they reached the big naval base.

The first group, DNB said, bombed a munitions and mine depot, the second hurled its load of explosives at the docks and ways, while the third attacked a big oil tank yard.

"Fires breaking out reached a size which German flyers until now had never before observed on English territory," the agency noted.

LONDON, Aug. 13, Tuesday (AP).—Adolf Hitler's long threatened aerial blitzkrieg on Britain burst into a full throated roar of destruction today as Nazi warplanes struck at every corner of England.

They thus carried into the third consecutive day a ferocious assault which began with flights of 400 or more planes, leaped to 500 or more yesterday, and reached undisclosed numbers this morning.

The morning newspapers of Britain described Germany's intensified air attacks on the channel coast as the beginning of the "Battle of Britain."

Headlines, news stories, and editorials reflected the belief that the lull is ended and that Hitler's blitzkrieg against this island has begun.

May Be Backed by Guns.

There were indications that the onslaught may now be backed by cannon fire from the continent and possibly aided by Italian airmen.

The pattern of attack remained unvaried, as it has since the extensive raids began on June 18, but the scope was tremendous.

From every direction came reports of exploding bombs. Reports of damage were confined to civilian structures as the Nazi terror weapon, "scream" bombs, hurtled down.

Sky a Deadly Jungle.

British fighter planes, antiaircraft gunners, and searchlight crews teamed up to make the sky a deadly jungle for the invaders.

The raids this morning and last night followed up those of the waves of swastika-flaunting bombers which dropped tons of explosives Monday on Britain's great naval bases at Portsmouth, Southampton, and Dover.

Seventy or more German planes continued to hammer against the 125 mile coastline between Dover and Portsmouth until late last night after the British asserted their defense forces had sent at least 61 to destruction in the Monday conflict. Thirteen British planes were reported lost.

Damage Laid to Gunfire.

At one southeast coast town, houses were damaged by explosions which at first were attributed to bombs but later were believed due to gunfire.

[Supporting the belief that the Germans at last have unlimbered their coastal cannon against England was the fragmentary nature of this report, which got thru from London only after 10 hours and which said British authorities were "investigating." German held Calais is only 22 miles from the Dover cliffs and 90 miles from London. The Germans have claimed to have new "Big Berthas" which will shoot 100 miles.]

There were strong rumors that Italy, Germany's ally, at last was participating in the raids on Britain. Authoritative circles in London disclosed that an Italian was among the crew of a German bomber captured on Sunday, but discounted the likelihood of Italian planes being used.

Raise Total of Planes Bagged.

The British announced that naval guns brought down five German planes on Sunday, raising the official total for that day to 65 and the unofficial count to 74.

[British official reports this accounted for 186 German planes shot down in three days of battles, including 60 shot down last Thursday.]

The list of German planes destroyed may go even higher for Monday, the British said as the developing battle between the world's largest air forces was believed here to be a decisive phase of the war.

Germany's objectives appeared to be threefold:

To damage naval harbors and shore establishments to challenge Britain's sea control of the English channel;

To weaken Britain's aerial defenses by damaging airdromes, destroying balloon barrages, silencing ground guns and attempting to wear out British pilots by forcing them to maintain 24 hour patrols;

To bolster the morale of the German people.

This last aim was indicated by elaborate running accounts of the fighting broadcast by German radio stations.

The attack on the Portsmouth docks met with "little success," the British declared as they acknowledged "several" fatalities, slight damage to jetties and the sinking of two small harbor craft.

The Portsmouth railway station was struck, fires started, and some buildings were ripped apart, but the British said the casualties were slight considering the great number of bombs dropped.

Airdromes and Houses Struck.

"Slight damage" was inflicted on British airdromes farther inland, and a church and several houses leveled on the Isle of Wight. Civilian damage also was reported along the entire coastline eastward to Dover.

Two hundred German planes roared across the channel from Cherbourg for the first attack on Portsmouth yesterday, but the British claimed they kept all but 55 from reaching their goal. Warships and coast units added their salvos to air force interception.

The 55 planes which reached their objectives remained 15 minutes, dropping incendiary bombs which set fire to some buildings.

An early afternoon attack on another southeast town [which Germans said was Dover] was the heaviest so far there.

Two Nazi waves—one of 21 bombers and the other of 15, protected by fighters—wheeled out of the sun from the cover of clouds.

Bomber's Tail Shot Off.

"I saw about 20 Junkers 88s roaring down," one eyewitness said.

"Five of them were destroyed.

"Antiaircraft guns put up a terrific fire and one bomber had its tail shot off. It dived straight behind some houses.

"About 12 Germans bailed out of this and other planes."

All 12 Nazi flyers who leaped from their falling planes were said to have been quickly captured by police and townspeople.

Concussions shattered glass windows and rocked houses along the coast as many of the invaders jettisoned their loads and sped for home. The sky was filled with maneuvering fighters.

An admiralty communique last night said later reports disclosed that crews manning the multiple pompom guns aboard two small coastal ships, the Windsor and Edwardian, accounted for five German planes on Sunday.

There were some casualties aboard the Edwardian during the fight.

Tell of Sunday Attacks.

A communique of the air ministry and ministry of home security said bombs were dropped at a number of places in England Sunday night.

"In the northeast incendiary bombs were dropped in a town and on moorland. The resulting fires were soon brought under control. There were no serious casualties in this area," the communique said.

"In the Midlands high explosive bombs fell in several country districts, causing some damage to houses and a small number of casualties, one of which was fatal.

"Elsewhere in eastern and southeastern country districts bombs dropped by isolated enemy aircraft caused slight damage to gas and electricity supply mains."

Attack Northern Germany.

Official communiques also disclosed the British were continuing to attack air fields and oil plants in Germany and German-held territory.

In Sunday's attacks three British bombers were lost, but a synthetic oil plant at Dortmund "blew up with a violent explosion, and the plant at Kastrop-Rauxel was fired," it was stated.

The British also bombed plants at Gelsenkirchen and Wanne-Eickel, oil storage vats at Cherbourg, airdromes at Dinard and Caen, and the seaplane slipway at Brest. Explosives were rained also on German occupants of the British island of Guernsey in the channel.

"Military objectives at Duesseldorf and Hattigen also were attacked, and Hamm and Soest received their usual visits," it was stated.

"A number of enemy airdromes also were bombed."

BRITAIN SAYS IT WILL KEEP UP ITS NAZI BLOCKADE

LONDON, Aug. 12 (AP).—A British spokesman today declared the blockade against Germany and Nazi occupied European states would be maintained vigorously and took the position that food for 18,000,000 non-German Europeans affected depended on "fair distribution by Germany, which has an abundance of supplies." This statement was made as the British withheld official comment on former President Herbert Hoover's request yesterday to permit the United States to supply food to the Netherlands, Belgium, Poland, and Norway, pending formal receipt of the appeal.

Parley in India Will Act on War Supplies for Britain

SIMLA, India, Aug. 12 (AP).—The governments of Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, Burma, Hongkong, Ceylon, and territories represented in the East African Governors' conference have accepted an invitation to attend a New Delhi conference on British war supplies, it was announced today. The meeting is scheduled for October. Replies are awaited from Southern Rhodesia and Malaya.

NAZIS COMPARE 'AIR BLITZ' WITH PREVIOUS DRIVES

Claim British Strength Sapped by Raids.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 12.—The battle of England is in full swing. German Stukas and bombers have destructively bombed British naval and air bases on the south coast of England, German official reports have stated. Bristol and Cardiff and other western ports lining the Bristol channel have been bombed.

Remembering that in previous campaigns the Germans bombed all their objectives before the army went into action, observers in Berlin are asking themselves if the raids on England from Dover to Bristol mean that German naval forces soon will attempt to land troops on the coast which, since the German conquest of France, is only a few hours from Germany's new naval bases.

Powerful pursuit and air destroyer formations accompanying the German bombers were claimed to have inflicted terrific losses on the British flyers trying to ward off the raiders.

Destroy Enemy Airfields.

The Germans have raided British airfields, hangars, and workshops, the same as they had destroyed the airfields in France and Holland at the outset of their campaigns for the conquest of those countries.

Since the bulk of the British planes the Germans recently have destroyed are fighters, the Germans believe that the royal air force now has lost a high percentage of its pursuit ship formations. This heavy drain on the British fighter force, it is believed here, may prove disastrous to the British when the German attempt is made to land in England.

On the strength of the German air bombardments made heretofore and for geographical reasons, it may be assumed that such a landing, if attempted, would be made in south England. The fierce and repeated attacks by German air destroyer formations on the balloon barrage protecting Dover has given rise to the belief that such a landing attempt might be made near the Dover strait.

Possible Attack in West.

It is believed that an attack possibly would be made on southwest England at the same time, especially since that region controls the southern passage to the Irish sea.

German military experts declared that "Sunday the first step was taken toward German air supremacy over England." The Germans asserted that today's engagements revealed "that England is no longer able to put up a complete barrage of pursuit ships on the southern coast. This is the first time that England's resistance has begun to break."

During Sunday night the English air force retaliated, sending numerous bombers over northwest Germany. Travelers on trains from the German-Belgian border to the German capital declared that from the border to beyond Hanover the sky was bright with searchlights and flares of all colors and flashes of gunfire.

Heavy in Essen Region.

In the Essen region travelers asserted that the noise of the battle was most impressive. Antiaircraft guns were fired from the roofs of stations or buildings near the stations, but the trains moved, keeping to their schedule regardless of what was happening around them.

In Berlin air wardens in quite a number of instances were called in and urged to make it clear to those under their protection that they must have all their air raid protection in readiness, including the pails of sand and water that will help extinguish possible fires. The radio also warned the population to maintain the blackout most carefully.

WAR MANEUVERS REVEAL GLARING NEED FOR ARMS

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Aug. 12 [Special].—This is really a make-believe war that is being waged by the 1st army, now engaged in the largest peacetime training exercises ever undertaken in this country.

Since the soldiers began to gather last week glaring deficiences of the United States army in arms has been spotlighted. Tanks, antitank guns, antiaircraft guns, and modern rifles have been revealed as vital needs.

Lieut. Gen. Hugh Drum's army has a dozen tanks. As an absolute minimum, experts say it should have 126. To fill the gap the army here has been hiring ice trucks and coal trucks and labeling them tanks.

Antiaircraft material also is sadly lacking. Wooden dummies or signs are being used to take their place. Faced with a shortage of field equipment, Lieut. Gen. Drum and his aids have devised battle lines in which make-believe tanks, bombless cannon, and nonexistent warplanes are used by defending armies to beat off a mythical attack by invading forces.

Pilot Who First Flew 310 Miles an Hour Dies in War

VICHY, France, Aug. 12 (AP).—Maurice Arnoux, celebrated French airman, was reported today to have been killed in aerial combat against Germany. Arnoux, a world war pilot, was referred to as the first man to fly at a rate of more than 310 miles an hour.

600,000 FRENCH CAPTIVES ON WAY TO LABOR CAMPS

Many to Help Nazis Make Arms to Fight Britain.

BY E. R. NODERER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 12.—Six hundred thousand French prisoners of war are being brought to Germany to help with the harvest and to work in mines, quarries, and factories.

Many will be used in the war industries, where they will assist in the manufacture of arms and munitions for the war against their former allies, the British.

The new arrivals, added to those who were already here, will give the Germans a French labor force of about 1,200,000, which will make it unnecessary for them to demobilize their army to any great extent to obtain workmen.

Colored prisoners from France's colonies will be sent to northern France to work. The Germans say that for various reasons they do not want them to mingle with the German population.

Colored Captives Exhibited.

In the prison camps the colored troops are kept apart from the whites. The captors take delight in exhibiting African troops with filed teeth, fuzzy hair, and scar-decorated faces.

German employers who desire to obtain prison camp labor make a request in much the way that help is requisitioned from the German labor service. Employers are required to provide towels, blankets, beds, washbasins, and similar necessities, as well as food and shelter, altho the men are returned in some cases to their camps to eat and sleep.

The laborer is paid 20 marks a month [$8 at the official rate of exchange], but payment is in lagergeld, or camp money. This is valid only at camp canteens. The merchandise now on sale at the canteens is confined to toilet articles, such as toothpaste and soap, and occasional cigarets and tobacco from Poland. Welfare workers are trying to persuade the Germans to stock the canteens with fresh vegetables to supplement the camp diet.

Food Brings Complaints.

Both British and French prisoners complained about the food, but for different reasons. The French say the 340 to 370 grams of bread [10 to 11 ounces] are not sufficient, while the British declare the pound of meat they get each week is not enough. In one camp the prisoners were told, "The Poles complained last September, but they got used to it."

Here is the menu served last Saturday in one camp in western Germany: Breakfast— bread and ersatz [substitute] coffee made from one-quarter of an ounce of extract; lunch—stew made from one and one-half ounces of preserved meat and two and one-half ounces of canned soup and two pounds of potatoes and bread [this is served so frequently the prisoners call it "perpetual stew"]; supper—ersatz tea with one-third of an ounce of sugar, half an ounce of lard to spread on bread instead of butter, and an ounce of artificial honey.

Serve No Fresh Vegetables.

Thirty meals served from Aug. 1 to Aug. 10 in this camp varied this menu only to the extent that the Germans sometimes served a cereal or noodles instead of stew for lunch, and on the 1st, 4th, and 8th of August one and one-half ounces of meat were served instead of the lard. No fresh vegetables were on the menu.

Despite the complaints, the Germans say that they do not plan to increase the food ration. "Let the British lift the blockade if they want the prisoners to eat better," camp authorities said.

Welfare workers in Berlin consider it likely that employers who work the prisoners 11 hours daily in factories find it necessary to supplement the camp diet with unrationed foods to keep the men's efficiency from lagging.

German authorities inspect quarters of the "farmed out workers" to determine if the minimum requirements are being observed.

IN HEAT OF 129°, MORE ITALIANS MASS ON EGYPT

Halt Somaliland Push 60 Miles from Port.

CAIRO, Egypt, Aug. 12 (AP).—Italy moved more troops, planes, and tanks near the Egyptian frontier tonight as Fascist forces driving across British Somaliland deserts halted within 60 miles of Berbera, British port on the Gulf of Aden.

British officers returning from the Egyptian - Libyan border reported heavy Italian troop movements continued near Bardia, about 30 miles from the frontier, but the forces of Marshal Rodolfo Graziani thus far have not moved eastward from that base.

Blistering heat waves swept desert temperatures to 129 degrees, and military sources believed Marshal Graziani was waiting for a break in the weather before launching an offensive against Egypt.

Pound Italian Bases.

Heavy barbed wire entanglements line both sides of the frontier and British pilots have been pounding Italian bases.

A communique said "in Somaliland no operations are reported and the enemy made no advance."

Italian columns driving northward from Hargeisa and Oadweina were attacked by British flyers as British infantrymen dug fortifications south of Berbera to make a stand. Empire reënforcements moved up into the positions.

The Italian halt evidently was for reorganizing lengthening communication and supply lines across the burning wastes, and to repair British bombing damage.

Scatter Troops in Pass.

British aircraft scattered Fascist tropps in Karrin pass yesterday and dropped bombs on a motorized column near Dubato.

British tactics appeared to be to allow the Italians to advance, then launch heavy air attacks against their long supply lines in an effort to trap the entire desert force.

Battle Develops, Italy Says.

ROME, Aug. 12 (AP).—The Italian high command today reported a developing battle for Berbera, capital and chief port of British Somaliland. The daily communique said Fascist forces driving across British Somaliland had "made contact" with the main British forces in front of Berbera, but failed to say whether fighting actually was in progress.

ACCUSED NAZI AGENT FLEES FROM ARGENTINA

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Aug. 12 (AP).—Argentina's Nazi propagandist cleanup drive netted another prisoner and brought reports tonight that a second man, ordered deported, apparently has fled the country.

The Buenos Aires secret police chief said he believed Karl Arnold, accused by the police of being a $125 a month Nazi GSP agent, fled either just before or after the order for his deportation was issued on Friday.

The most recent prisoner in the drive in the heavily German populated northern provinces is Edmund Muckheim. Gendarmes said they found in Muckheim's possession pro-Nazi leaflets hinting that South Americans should learn to shout "Heil Hitler!" and accept German protection.

GREECE DENIES ROME CHARGE IN BORDER KILLING

Brands Albanian Victim 'Notorious Bandit.'

ATHENS, Greece, Aug. 12 (AP).—The Greek government tonight officially branded as false Italian charges that so-called "Greek bandits" had slain Haut Hoggia, obscure nationalist of Italian ruled Albania. The slaying, by decapitation, occurred near the Albanian-Greek frontier, and served as a signal for the loosing of attacks against the Athens government by the Italian press.

The government referred to Hoggia as a "notorious bandit" on whose head the Greeks had placed a price, and declared he had been killed by two Albanians who fled to Greece and were immediately arrested.

"The Italian government thru its Athens legation has made known its intention to demand extradition of these men," said a statement by the minister of propaganda. "Greece wishes to make it clear, first, that the alleged patriot was an ordinary criminal; second, that the murderers were not Greeks, but Albanians; third, that Greece had placed a price on Hoggia's head several years ago, and fourth, that Italy is aware of these facts."

Charge Aid to British.

ROME, Aug. 12 (AP).—Italy, already warring with Britain for supremacy in the Mediterranean and North Africa, threatened a new crisis in the Balkans today with a sharp propaganda campaign against Greece, neutral friend of Britain.

The Italian press attacked Greece, charging her with aiding the British and conspiring to foment trouble on the border with Italian annexed Albania.

Reports of the beheading of a little known Albanian nationalist, Haut Hoggia, by Greek "bandits" opened the campaign against Greece. Fascists said "further complications likely would result."

Recall Crisis of 1923.

The latest developments threatened a crisis similar to 1923 when the Italian fleet bombarded Corfu and occupied the Greek owned island at the entrance to the Adriatic for a month in retaliation for an attack on an Italian mission.

In foreign circles war with Greece over this incident was considered unlikely in view of the expressed desire of Germany to keep the Balkans at peace to supply the axis powers.

Some observers thought an effort might be made to force Greece into the Rome-Berlin orbit.

Fascists accused Greece of supplying the British with fueling bases for warplanes and warships fighting Italy in the eastern Mediterranean.

British Report Albanian Revolt.

New York, Aug. 12 (AP).—At least 400 Italian soldiers have been killed in an Albanian uprising which has been in progress since Friday, the British radio reported in a broadcast heard here tonight. The report followed an Italian broadcast denying previous British news agency reports of disorders. The British announcement said that nearly 5,000 Albanians were under arms in the Milidatti district and another 3,000 in the Mati area. It said three Italian warships took troops to the Albanian port of Durazzo yesterday as the fighting spread.

Tiber Does Trick for Duce It Wouldn't Do for Caesar

ROME, Aug. 12 (AP).—Premier Benito Mussolini pushed two levers today and changed the course of the Tiber river, a job Julius Caesar conceived but never completed. The levers set off a blast that turned the river into a shorter channel, eliminating a three mile horseshoe curve. The old channel will be used as a seaplane base.

OFFICER GUIDES MOVING TROOPS FROM AUTOGIRO

Finds Windmill Airplane Adapted to Task.

BY HAROLD HUTCHINGS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Camp McCoy, Wis., Aug. 12.—Lieut. Col. Arthur B. Conard, 6th corps area transportation officer, took off from McCoy field today for another inspection by autogiro of the troops which continue to come into the 2d army maneuver area.

Ten truck convoys bringing National Guardsmen were on the road on this, the second day of the concentration in which 60,000 men of the 2d army will take part in maneuvers under Lieut. Gen. Stanley H. Ford until Aug. 31.

Col. Conard says it is his opinion that the autogiro has great possibilities for use in administrative work, the further development is needed. He has used this flying machine in helping to keep the heavy road traffic moving during the concentration which began yesterday.

Used with Mechanized Brigade.

"I have used the autogiro previously in connection with operations of the 7th mechanized cavalry brigade at Fort Knox," he said. "From an autogiro an observer can hover and watch the roads below. He can communicate easily with both the pilot and with the ground."

Contact with the ground is possible by shouting, he said, in answer to a question, provided that the listener is not in an automobile. The noise of the blades, the plane propeller and the plane motor, in addition to the noise of a motor car, he pointed out, would prevent vocal conversation with a man in a car.

In discussing the ease with which the ground can be observed, Col. Conard cited the fact that no wing sticks out on either side to bar vision.

"Another important feature of the autogiro in administrative work," he continued, "is that, relatively speaking, you can step out in a fence corner. The autogiro can be landed in an acre field."

The autogiro was piloted by Lieut. W. A. Daniel, air corps. The plane is part of the 12th observation squadron and is based at Godman field, Fort Knox, Ky. The squadron has two autogiros.

Makes Easy Takeoff.

The machine's takeoff was made easily on the oiled runway of McCoy field. After taxiing to the west end of the runway, Pilot Daniel started the 20 foot blades spinning. As they gained momentum he nosed the ship into the air sharply and it climbed away in a lazy upward curve. He circled the field a couple of times to gain altitude, the blades carving a circle 40 feet in diameter against the sky.

Col. Conard was equipped with several yellow streamers, each of which had a weighted pocket at the bottom. These are for dropping messages. They can be hurled accurately to the ground as the machine hovers in the air.

Small Unit Training Starts.

Training for companies and smaller units began early this morning in the Guard divisions. There was firing with 30 caliber machine guns, 37 millimeter antitank guns, and other infantry weapons.

Strength of troops in the area today was increased by the arrival of about 16,000 men. They came in on 59 special trains and 10 convoys of approximately 220 vehicles.

All units of the 33d division from Illinois, except those which will not come until next Sunday, were in camp tonight.

Observe Atmospheric Conditions.

Headquarters battery of the 58th field artillery brigade of the 33d division was in training for a function which, until about six months ago, was in the hands of the signal corps unit of the division. This is the gathering of meteorological data, which is needed by the artillery if firing is to be accurate.

This data is gathered by releasing a colored balloon and sighting on it through a telescopic instrument called a theodolite, an adaptation of the surveyor's transit. When the artillery is not firing observations are taken once a day. They are made every two hours during firing. By observing the speed of ascent, drift, and direction of the balloon, the observers determine wind velocity, wind direction, air density, and humidity. They make observations until the balloon has reached 20,000 or 30,000 feet elevation.

U. S. Gunboat in Ecuador on Way to Galapagos Isles

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, Aug. 12.—The United States gunboat Erie, flagship of the special service squadron based at the Panama canal, arrived here today. It will remain for three days before proceeding to the Galapagos Islands. A considerable amount of work put into the surveying of the port of Esmeraldas by the navy vessel Bushnell will have to be done over, as the flag's marking positions for hydrographic charts have been stolen. The government is investigating.

TESTS BRITAIN'S WAR EMERGENCY POLICE POWERS

Jailed 'Without Trial,' Goes to Court.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 12.—The centuries old habeas corpus law was invoked in London today to compel Sir John Anderson, the home secretary, to "bring up the body of Audrey Trevor Oswald Lees," who has been detained at Brixton prison since June 20 under the defense regulations. Lees has been in the service of the crown for 23 years, first as an officer of the regular army and later in the colonial service.

Sir John Anderson.

Counsel alleged Lees has "been imprisoned by the home secretary without any charge having been preferred against him, without trial, and therefore in a manner prima facie contrary to the liberties granted by the Great Charter [Magna Carta] and the bill of rights." The king's Bench Divisional court, before which the application for a writ of habeas corpus was made, postponed its hearing in order to give notice to the home secretary.

Arrest Order Called Faulty.

Counsel declared the house of lords had decided that if a man "were detained by an order duly issued under the defense regulations, then he was lawfully detained," but argued that the order under which Lees was arrested failed to specify whether it was issued on the grounds that he was the member of an organization or had been connected with one, and neglected to specify the organization referred to.

Lees presented an affidavit stating that he had never been a member of the British Union [formerly the British Union of Fascists], nor any political party, nor given money toward the support of any such organizations, that he had never propagated anti-British propaganda or endeavored to hinder the war effort, and that he had offered his services to the war office. He said the only organizations of which he had been a member were the Colonial Civil Service, the regular army reserve of officers, the Royal Empire society, the United Services club, and the Masonic lodge.

Admits Opposition to Jewry.

The affidavit admitted that Lees was "antiSemitic" and had sent a friend articles expressing such views and had written a letter saying, "I do not like Halifax [British Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax] either." The affidavit added, "I do not like Jews, think they have too much power in this country, and admit I have said so." It submitted that this, however, was no reason for detaining him without trial.

Considerable importance is attached to the case. If the appeal is successful, it might open the door for numerous others to question the validity of the emergency war powers under which British subjects are held on the suspicion that they might try to hinder the war effort or hold Fascist sympathies.

Another in Tower of London.

An Evening Standard reporter yesterday visited Maj. A. D. Wintle, M. C. [military cross], of the royal dragoons, who has been held for some time in the Tower of London, which has scarcely changed since the days when Sir Walter Raleigh, Mary, Queen of Scots, and other historical figures walked "the last mile" to the headsman's ax.

Three charges have been preferred against Wintle, who has a distinguished military record. They are: [1] Attempting to evade active service; [2] When on active service, June 17, he assaulted Air Commander Boyle, and [3] Conduct prejudicial to good order and military discipline.

Wintle is confined to a room that has barred windows and is furnished with an iron camp bed, a wooden table, three chairs, and a washstand. The Standard reporter said the prisoner greeted him with, "I have been here 40 days and nights. I read, write, and sleep. Have a drink." The reporter nodded and the prisoner shouted and a soldier appeared. "Bring two whiskies and sodas," Wintle ordered. They were brought from the officers' mess. Wintle said he did not know what he was being held for.

Wintle is a slight, dark man with a quick, impatient manner. Three fingers of his left hand have been shot away. His language was described as eloquent and not lacking in vigor.

Scene at Air Ministry.

Wintle, said to be an expert on mechanized war, formerly was a lecturer at the French staff college, where he became a close friend of the officer who was second in command of the French air force during the battle for France. He once was attached to the British air ministry.

"It appears that when France collapsed," said the Standard reporter, "Wintle conceived a plan of flying to France to persuade his French colleague to bring off as many of the French air force as he could gather. He ordered an airplane to be made ready. The plan miscarried and Wintle went to the air ministry and saw a high officer, where he engaged in a general criticism of the conduct of the war."

During this extraordinary scene the major is said to have drawn a gun and, according to his own account, the reporter wrote, "He had to blow off his remaining finger to prove his earnestness." His arrest followed and he will be taken this week before parliament for questioning.

Broker Found Shot Dead; Sister-in-Law Wounded

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 12 [Special].—Warren Williams, real estate broker, died tonight after he and his socially prominent secretary-sister-in-law were found shot in his summer home on Lake Ontario. The sister-in-law, Miss Eleanor Enos, is in serious condition. Chief Deputy Sheriff Ray O'Laughlin said he believed Williams shot the girl then himself. Neighbors who heard the shots found Miss Enos lying on the floor. They found Williams upstairs in bed, his wife cradling his head in her lap.

SCHOOL TEACHES BRITONS TO WAGE A GUERRILLA WAR

One Course: How to Stab Sentry in Back.

BY GUY MURCHIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 12.—At a progressive school of guerrilla warfare I saw today how some of the 1,300,000 men in Britain's home guard are being taught to wage a catch-as-catch-can war.

Probably the most progressive of all the training schools for England's home guard, formerly known as the local defense volunteers, this one is headed by Tom Wintringham, a Briton who was a battalion commander of the international brigade in Spain and is an authority on guerrilla warfare and all manner of unorthodox tactics.

Sportsmanship Is Dropped.

His private school on a large suburban estate seems dedicated to making the average civilized, fair playing Briton forget all sense of sportsmanship in favor of a ruthless and efficient defensive warfare.

Wintringham, interviewed after he had instructed a class in how to dispose of the enemy's sentries, remarked, "We pacifists really hate war, but if these Germans want to fight, we are not going to play cricket with them."

Courses in Many Tactics.

A two day, concentrated course at this school already has been given to 900 home guards. The curriculum now includes these courses:

How to camouflage yourself, home, or car—45 minutes instruction.

Knife work—15 minutes.

Firearms, how to get the best out of a shotgun or rifle and prepare your own ammunition—75 minutes.

Field works, trench digging, etc.—45 minutes.

Field tactics and use of ground—two hours.

Class in Street Fighting.

Guerrilla tactics—one hour.

Street fighting—30 minutes.

German tactics, what to expect of the invaders—45 minutes.

The characteristics of explosives—15 minutes.

How to make and throw your own bombs—one hour.

How to halt and destroy tanks—three hours.

Signalling—30 minutes.

Defense against airplanes—45 minutes.

Camouflaging of cars is taught by a representative of an industrial camouflage research unit. How to stain overalls so that they blend into the background and to wear brownish gloves and a net that covers the helmet and face while stalking the enemy are explained.

A Wire for Decapitation.

One trick taught is the placing of a strand of black wire across a highway at a height of 4 feet, 3 inches to decapitate enemy motorcycle riders. Lest a rider detect the wire, the guardsmen are shown how to place a dummy at the roadside to distract the cyclist's attention at the crucial instant.

Tell How to Kill Sentry.

The class in sentry killing was particularly interesting. First came elaborate instructions in stalking, by a former Boy Scout master.

In annihilating unsuspecting sentries the knife is the principal weapon. Altho throat-cutting is taught, it is considered inferior to back-stabbing because of the noises involved.

Stabbing, it was stated, can be done silently, enabling one to dispose of several sentries in quick succession. Garroting is an alternative method. An instructor with experience in northern India demonstrated how to break the spine with a strand of fine wire from a cheese cutter or a piano.

Bombs of Home Materials.

The bombmaking class was taught how to make "Molotov cocktails" for setting tanks afire, and bombs from home materials such as pipe, tin cans, bolts, and gravel.

A catapult made from car springs was demonstrated for bomb hurling. Great emphasis was placed on antitank warfare.

Sabotage and subtle nuisance tactics also are taught. Putting sugar or vinegar into a truck gas tank to make the engine quit, and demobilizing a train by dumping cinders or sand into the grease chamber, causing a hot box within a few miles, are illustrations.

"Be Tidy" Is Final Plea.

Pupils also learn such uncivil lessons as how to poison reservoirs.

About the only touch of civilization in this school was a plea to the students to be tidy. "Don't leave dead Germans lying in a me.: in the middle of a road," said one instructor. "Give him a decent burial in a ditch and cover up the blood so the next man will not get suspicious."

Nazi Flyers Down in Sea Send Green Vapor S O S

LONDON, Aug. 12 (AP).—A green vapor SOS apparently used by Nazi flyers forced down at sea was described today in a broadcast by a British pilot. He said the vapor was visible for five miles and enabled other German airmen to locate those forced down.

Build Army of 100 Divisions, Hore-Belisha Urges Britain

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 12.—Creation of a British army of more than 100 divisions was urged by former War Minister Leslie Hore-Belisha in an address at Devonport tonight. He also warned against failing to recognize "the forces of destruction gathering about our empire."

Leslie Hore-Belisha.

Britain faces two psychological dangers of the utmost gravity, he said. One is accepting as "inevitable continuation of the policy of concession and withdrawal on the ground that we are inadequately armed," and the second is representing "every enemy success as of small moment and minor strategical effect."

Such attitudes of mind, he said, can only result in the failure of the nation to take wholehearted measures.

Raps Closing of Burma Road.

Hore-Belisha criticized the British consent to close the Burma road to China. This, he declared, weakened the Chinese army, whose services might sometime be valuable to the British army in preventing a possible Japanese thrust thru Indo-China on the Burma road to India.

Hore-Belisha demanded that the foreign policy be directed to distinguish between powers which "covet British possessions and therefore are irreconcilable" and those "who by careful management can be won to our side."

He cautioned against underestimating the seriousness of the Italian operations in the middle east and compared this attitude to the impressions given concerning the Norwegian campaign, of which the government said Fuehrer Hitler had made a great "strategic blunder."

Says Egypt Main Objective.

Italy's main objective, he said, was Egypt. Successful occupation by Premier Mussolini's men of British Somaliland, he declared, would give Italy uninterrupted possession of 1,600 miles of coastline along the vital communications between the Mediterranean and India, as well as cutting off communications between Egypt and South Africa.

To defend empire interests Britain no longer can think only in terms of small expeditionary forces, he said.

The former war secretary complained of the "incompleteness of our industrial mobilization," declaring, "We cannot beat Germany with 800,000 unemployed."

Absorption in the economic system of those hundreds of thousands whose businesses and source of livelihood have been ruined by the ever widening defense areas was urged as vital to victory by Hore-Belisha.

Malta Widens Defenses During Lull in Air War

VALETTA, Malta, Aug. 12.—Enemy air activity continues to be confined to reconnaissance. The lull has been utilized to augment the civilian and military defense preparations by the provision of numerous shelters, and to recruit for regular territorial and volunteer units. It is expected the government schools will partly reopen shortly.

NORRIS SMASHES AT DRAFT; WARNS OF DICTATORSHIP

Opposes New Deal First Time on Major Issue.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 12.—Opposing the Roosevelt administration for the first time on a major issue, Senator George W. Norris [Ind., Neb.] today condemned the New Deal conscription program as un-American in principle, repugnant to democracy, unjustified by any military facts, and certain if adopted to result in militaristic dictatorship.

The 79 year old New Dealer, who has been hailed by President Roosevelt as "the greatest liberal of them all," led the opposition in today's senate debate, speaking with no less vehemence against peacetime conscription than such conspicuous noninterventionists as Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [R., Mich.], Senator Bennett Champ Clark [D., Mo.], and Senator Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.].

Ironic Touch in Debate.

Of the six senators who voted against the resolution declaring war on Germany in 1917, Norris is the only one still in the senate. Altho he has contended that the present war is different and has supported the administration's foreign policy, including the repeal of the arms embargo provision of the neutrality act last fall, peacetime conscription was too much for him.

The debate today took an ironic turn in presenting Norris as a leader of the opposition to a major New Deal proposal and his colleague, Senator Edward R. Burke [D., Neb.], as the champion of the administration. More than any other Democrat in congress, Senator Burke, co-author of the conscription bill, has incurred the wrath of the New Dealers because of his bitter opposition to New Deal policies and proposals.

Burke Answers Vandenberg.

Replying to Senator Vandenberg's statement that it is "infamous" to resort to compulsory military service in peacetime without giving the voluntary enlistment system a fair trial, Senator Burke declared:

"There is one thing more infamous than such a proposal, even if we were to admit the senator's allegation, and that would be for us to get into a place where we required man power and had to rely upon ill-trained and improperly trained man power.

"I do not think we can properly wait to see whether, by some great ballyhoo and recruiting encouragement, with bands and white feathers and everything else, we can get the number we need by voluntary enlistment."

Senator Homer T. Bone [D., Wash.] interrupted to suggest that it is academic to debate the issue of conscription at the present time. "We are headed for war," he said. "In about three months we'll be in it, and then we'll have to have conscription whether we want it or not."

Senator Norris said there might be some logic in the conscription argument when applied to a small European country adjoining a dictator country, but that the logic could not apply on this side of the Atlantic.

Norris Voices a Hope.

Speaking of Hitler, Mussolini, Stalin, and the Japanese militarists, Norris said: "The one bright hope is that these dictators, suspicious now of each other, enemies at heart right now, jealous of each other, are going to fight among themselves. In their travel toward their goal to control the world they are going to cross the path of another dictator seeking to control the world. And when the course of elimination commences and they fight each other there will be a brighter day than now exists for democracy.

"I concede that they would like to conquer the United States, but what must they do? They must first overcome our navy and our air force. With the large expanse of sea that they must cross, who thinks for a moment that they could land a single soldier upon American soil unless they had first destroyed our navy and our air force? Where are the transports now in all Europe that will bring their men across the ocean? If they know anything, they know enough not to start at present. To do so, it seems to me, would be perfectly foolish."

Stimson Speech Recalled.

Senator Wheeler interrupted to say he had read a speech by Henry L. Stimson, now secretary of war and one of the foremost advocates of conscription then and now, which was made before the United States entered the world war. In that speech, Senator Wheeler said, Stimson predicted that if England and France should lose the war the Germans would bring 390 odd thousand men and 80,000 animals across the Atlantic, would sail up the Potomac river, and take Washington, move on and take Philadelphia and New York, and that the whole country then would collapse.

"I do not have to apologize when I say I think that is foolish—is silly," Norris replied.

"We have lived during all our national life," Norris continued, "under a system which has abhorred compulsory military service in time of peace. And here we are undertaking to change the very fundamental principle of our human liberty, upon which our government was founded and has lived for 150 years, and to make it one similar to Hitler's and Stalin's and Mussolini's and that of Japan.

Warns of Militarism.

"The advocates of this bill have started something that means eternity of militarism, nothing else."

Norris agreed with Senator Clark's contention that the conscription program would do no good so far as the present so-called emergency is concerned and, in fact, has nothing to do with the present situation.

"It is an old scheme," said Senator Clark. "I saw this scheme—almost identical, the scheme of the so-called Burke-Wadsworth bill, which was written by Mr. Grenville Clark [New York lawyer], as I understand—before I came home from France during the world war. It had been prepared at that time by Gen. H. B. Fiske, assistant chief of staff, at the G. H. Q. I happened to see it in my capacity as a general staff officer.

Attacks Plan's Sponsor.

"At that time the secretary of war did not know anything about any such scheme and when he found out about it he assigned Gen. Fiske back to his place in the regular army as a major for getting up such a scheme without the consent of the secretary of war.

"The very men who are now sponsoring this scheme—Grenville Clark, Secretary Stimson, Secretary of the Navy [Frank] Knox, Col. Julius Adler [general manager of the New York Times] and the whole kaboodle of them have been advocating universal compulsory military service in time of peace since before the world war."

Senator Vandenberg told the senate that he would favor peace time conscription if it could be demonstrated that "the voluntary system, under adequate trial, cannot be trusted to produce the recruits required by the army and the navy as swiftly as may be needed to match and man our new facilities for the defense of America and her essential outposts."

The Michigan senator relied on the statement of Harry H. Woodring, former secretary of war, that the voluntary system has not received a fair trial. He cited official records showing every voluntary quota set by the army and navy this year has been exceeded, that army enlistments totaled 23,442 in June and 31,958 in July—"a peace time record."

COUNTY REFUSES TO O. K. FOREST PRESERVE BOOK

Charles G. Sauers, general superintendent of the forest preserve district, announced yesterday that the county board had withdrawn its approval of a plan to publish a "Guide to the Preserves."

The action was taken after investigation of charges that the publishers were soliciting advertising at page rates of $150 to $250. Henry Sloan, 2853 Montrose avenue, a former WPA author; Eugene Diamond of the Milnear hotel, and Jacob Crane, 656 Grace street, had organized the Bureau of Public Information, 154 East Erie street, to bring out the book.

Sauers said approval had been given Sloan on the understanding the book would be published without cost to the county and sold at a nominal price. Sauers said he did not know that the publishers planned to sell advertising. In a letter to Sloan yesterday Sauers said the guide could not be published with approval of the county board.

2 OFFICERS QUIT GUARD, RESULT OF CASSIDY RULING

Constitution Forbids Dual Federal-State Service.

Rockford, Ill., Aug. 12 (AP).—Circuit Judge Robert J. Dunne of Cook county and Pierce L. Shannon, Chicago Democratic state representative, resigned from the Illinois National Guard tonight following a ruling by Attorney General John E. Cassidy that guard officers would have to surrender their civil posts if they were called into federal service.

The resignations were announced by Adjt. Gen. Lawrence V. Regan of the Illinois National Guard.

Judge Dunne was a lieutenant colonel in the guard and Shannon a captain.

Gen. Regan said other officers of the guard who hold civil posts include Maj. Robert M. Woodward and Col. William G. Warfield, both Chicago Republican state representatives.

Quotes State Constitution.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 12 (AP).—Attorney General John E. Cassidy ruled today that state and local officials who are officers in the National Guard must surrender their civil offices if the Guard is called into the military service of the federal government.

Cassidy wrote the opinion for Adjt. Gen. L. V. Regan of the Illinois National Guard who said that several members of the legislature are officers in the Guard, as are various officers in county and city government thruout the state. Cassid's opinion did not specifically cover the status of the National Guard enlisted men who hold civil offices.

The attorney general's opinion cited the provision of the state constitution that "no person holding any office of honor or profit under the government of the United States shall hold any office of honor or profit under the authority of this state" and concluded:

"Members of the general assembly and others holding elective and appointive offices under the state government or under a city or county government, abandon and vacate their civil offices upon entering the military service of the federal government as officers of the National Guard."

Twice Upheld by Court.

The state Supreme court twice has held, the attorney general said, that acceptance of an army office is a constructive resignation of a state office.

One section of Cassidy's opinion indicated that enlisted guardsmen as well as officers might be covered by the restriction against their continuing to hold civil office while mobilized.

FRANCE WILL OFFER WAR GUILT COMPLAINT BEFORE COURT TODAY

VICHY, France, Aug. 12 (AP).—France, swiftly reorganizing civilian life in her shriveled territory, awaited tonight the opening of court actions to punish leaders who took her into the disastrous war with Germany.

Public Prosecutor Cassagnau will present a complaint and demand secret investigations and hearings tomorrow when the supreme "war guilt" tribunal, whose judgment will be final, meets at Riom.

A few hours after the tribunal convenes, the chief of state, Marshal Philippe Petain, will address the nation in a radio broadcast set for 7:30 p. m. [2:30 p. m. Chicago time].

As demobilization reached its final stages, the government restored railroads in unoccupied areas to civil authority under the communications ministry, ending wartime military control.

Of approximately 5,000,000 men mobilized during the war, it now is admitted that 2,000,000 were captured by the Germans. No considerable number of these has been released.

AIRPLANES TOW LAKE TARGETS IN GUN PRACTICE

Lake shipping was warned off the water yesterday from Fort Sheridan to Camp Logan, north of Zion, while the 202d coast artillery, Illinois National Guard, engaged in practice firing against targets towed by airplanes. The regiment will continue practicing thru Saturday afternoon and then will leave for the war games near Sparta, Wis.

Col. Charles G. Dawes, commander, had 650 men of his command at Fort Sheridan and 500 at Camp Logan. Those at the fort used three inch antiaircraft guns against towed targets two miles in the air and two and a half miles off shore. The detachment at Camp Logan used .50 caliber machine guns against targets one-half mile in the air and one-half mile offshore.

Gunnery hours are from 10 a. m. until noon and from 2 to 5 p. m. The regiment also is engaged in night practice, using 800,000,000 candlepower searchlights.

A. F. OF L. WARNS: DEFENSE EFFORT PERILS INDUSTRY

Disruption of National Economy Feared.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 12.—Declaring that the future of the United States depends upon the decisions of the President to a degree never before known in peacetime history, the American Federation of Labor today warned in its July-August business survey that if the defense program is not guided carefully it will disrupt the economic life of the United States.

National defense can either vitalize or sap the country's whole national energy, depending on how well a balance is kept between defense production and other activities, the federation said.

Defense Gets Right-of-Way.

"Our country is fast swinging into a defense economy," the survey bulletin stated. "Defense production forms but a small part of our whole national output and should use only 7 per cent of our normal peacetime facilities. Yet defense activities will have right of way over all others in our industries and, if men are drafted, even in our homes.

"But if the defense program is not carefully guided, it can disrupt our economic life, causing booms in some industries and depressions in others; destroy labor standards, and leave mills and men stranded after the first few years of intense activity are over.

"To insure balanced planning, representatives of trade unions, farmers' associations, and business men's groups must sit on all policy making boards. Only thus can the voice of the people be heard and heeded and democracy be preserved."

Living Conditions Reviewed.

The bulletin referred to the disruption of living conditions in foreign countries because of the war. In England, it asserted, consumer goods production has been sacrificed to armaments and living costs are up from 20 to 25 per cent.

Workers' families pay $147 tax on $2,000 income and $43 on $1,500, whereas in this country such incomes are exempt from taxation, according to the survey. In addition, there is a sales tax of 12 per cent on all necessities except food and 24 per cent on all luxuries such as furniture, cosmetics, and amusements.

The worker's living, states the Federation of Labor, is reduced to the "barest essentials" while work hours have been lengthened from 44 or 48 per week to 60 and in some cases 72 in the warring countries.

Cites Jobless Problem.

"These records warn us of the immense disruption to normal life which accompanies an extreme war effort," the bulletin said. "We in America are not at war; our task is to build our national strength to prevent such disruptions. To do this we must get the unemployed back to work, raise living standards, and see that increasing income flows to wage earners in the form of wage increases."

Unemployment still is at a high level, the federation said, with more than 9,651,000 out of work in June, compared with 10,143,000 a year ago. Approximately 374,000 went back to work during that month, with nearly 50,000 being taken on by defense and related industries and 176,000 by farms.

The bulletin estimated that unemployment will decline to 6,600,000 by June, 1941. It is expected that the defense program will result in the reemployment of 2,500,000. The probable draft of 1,000,000 men, less the usual increase of 500,000 in working population, is allowed for.

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up nights. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't neglect this condition and lose valuable, restful sleep.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may also cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used generally by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Goodrich Offers First Synthetic Rubber Tire for American Car Owners

An Important Announcement to Americans Alert to the Meaning of Independence and Preparedness

CAN YOU picture America without rubber tires? Cars stopped dead! Highways deserted! Motor transportation at a standstill. It's a gloomy picture, but one that men who are close to foreign developments have actually visualized.

Goodrich saw this picture, too—saw it fourteen years ago. They realized then the crisis that would result if a world emergency shut off supplies of natural rubber from the Far East.

For 90% of the rubber for America's tires—for its automobiles, trucks, buses and airplanes—must come halfway around the world to reach us. Today these "life-lines" of our supply are seriously threatened. Today, as never before, the United States must be free from dependence upon foreign sources of raw materials, especially rubber, vital to our industry and national defense alike.

Several weeks ago America was given the answer to this problem when The B. F. Goodrich Company announced the development of Ameripol—the result of years of exhaustive research. This new synthetic rubber is made of American materials—petroleum, soap, gas and air—and in some respects is actually superior to natural rubber.

For Americans alert to the meaning of independence and preparedness, Goodrich is now manufacturing Silvertown tires made with this new "Liberty Rubber"—Ameripol, speeding America's freedom from foreign rubber. While these new tires cost more than the Silvertown tires made with natural rubber, increasing production is expected to bring economies which will reduce the price. In buying these tires motorists are buying, not only immediate service, but also increased assurance that they can continue to operate their cars, insofar as tires are concerned, in any eventuality.

Goodrich dealers are now accepting orders for these new Silvertowns and in making deliveries preference will be given to those who order first.

Always "First in Safety," Goodrich is now "First in Preparedness," too. So, whether you buy a Silvertown made with Ameripol, or a Silvertown made of natural rubber, you are sure of getting the most up-to-the-minute scientific advances in tire safety and wear.

FESTIVAL CROWD WILL HEAR JOHN CHARLES THOMAS

Concert, Opera Baritone to Sing for 90,000.

Festival Tickets!

Tickets for the Chicagoland Music Festival, which will be held next Saturday night in Soldiers' field, are on sale at 50 cents and $1 at The Tribune Public Service offices in Tribune Tower and at 1 South Dearborn street. All seats are reserved. Mail orders should be addressed to the Festival Ticket Manager, Tribune Tower, and must be accompanied by a check or money order made payable to the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

BY CHARLES LEAVELLE.

John Charles Thomas, noted concert and operatic baritone, will sing Saturday night at the 11th and greatest Chicagoland Music Festival at Soldiers' field. THE TRIBUNE arranged last evening for Thomas' appearance before the throng of more than 90,000 music lovers who will attend.

Mr. Thomas will sing the "Largo al Factotum" from "The Barber of Seville," by Rossini; "Home on the Range," and "God Bless America."

Thomas, as famous in Europe as he is in America, is no stranger to the Music Festival. He was one of the outstanding stars of the festival in 1934, and his return will be hailed especially by those who heard him on that summer evening six years ago.

Begins in Light Opera.

Thomas began his career in light opera, starring in such productions as "Maytime" and "Apple Blossoms." Then he abandoned this field, and the next heard of him, he was winning new laurels in grand opera rôles in Belgium and France. He continued his rise after his return to this country. He is one of the few baritones to have ascended to a high place in grand opera.

The presence of Thomas will add another strong argument to the contention of men and women who have been associated with all the festivals, who say the 1940 production will top them all.

From 30 states the cavalcade of singers, instrumentalists, choruses, bands, and marching corps will begin converging upon Chicago tomorrow night. The 101 girls who make up the Bengal Guards of Orange, Tex., High school, will go aboard their special, six car train. And half the townfolk—the population of Orange is 5,000—will be there to see them off.

Master Art of Music, Marching.

These pretty girls have mastered the arts of precision marching, of making music that really is music on trumpets and drums, and of high stepping that puts them into the class of the best musical show choruses in the land. Aboard their special train with the Bengal Guards will be H. J. Lutcher Stark, Texas lumberman and oil operator, whose generosity and interest in youth is making possible their trip to the festival.

From 26 counties of this state the boys and girls who make up the University of Illinois Rural chorus will be starting for Chicago today, tomorrow, and the next day. In 1938 they created a sensation with the cantata, "Harvest Caravan," of Prof. Russell Hancock Miles. Their singing, under the direction of Lanson F. Demming, was declared superb.

Others Will Perform.

And tho this great pageant is basically musical, others than musicians lend color and action. Baton twirlers, flag throwers, and marchers also will begin converging upon Chicago tomorrow. There will be marching accordionists who will be part of the 1,000 piece accordion band. There will be banjoists, guitarists, and mandolin players who will do their bit in the fretted band of 750 pieces.

Capt. Howard Stube, bandmaster of Tilden Technical High school, will direct both these unusual musical organizations. And what is more he will direct them as they play together while marching down the green expanse of Soldiers' field. The players will include old men and old women, boys and girls, fresh faced amateurs, and polished professionals.

This year's festival will begin early in the evening while the sun is still high in the sky. Music by electric organ, singing, and stunts will entertain the early comers at 6:45 p. m. At 7:15 there will be presented the winners of vocal and instrumental contests that have been in progress in Chicagoland and in 30 of the 48 states since last May.

Plenty of Action in City.

And meanwhile, there will be plenty of action in Chicago during the remainder of the week. Great choruses and bands will be rehearsing. On the south side there will be practice nights at 48 of the city's churches for the colored. The traditional melodies will be sung and sung again. "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot," "In That Great Gettin' Up Morning," and others will be heard.

Under the direction of J. Wesley Jones, the Festival Negro chorus will sing those songs that combine the plaintiveness, stridency, religious fervor, and irresistible rhythm of Negro music. There will be 1,000 voices in that chorus. But everything about the festival is large.

JAPS SEIZE MORE FOREIGNERS AND LASH AT BRITAIN

3,000 in Demonstration Against English.

TOKIO, Aug. 12 (AP).—New arrests of foreigners were reported today amid a flareup of anti-British feeling in Tokio and signs of official pressure on other nations to withdraw from China.

Domei, Japanese new agency, reported that 19 foreigners had been arrested at Dairen, in the Japanese leased territory of Kwantung, and the chief port serving Manchukuo. The arrests were made on charges of disseminating anti-Japanese propaganda and possessing shortwave radios.

The names and nationalities of those seized were not disclosed. Most persons previously jailed in Corea and Japan proper in an antiespionage campaign have been British.

Crowd Is Restrained.

About 3,000 demonstrators at an anti-British massmeeting beneath German, Italian, and Japanese flags were restrained by police from marching on the British embassy here.

They adopted resolutions demanding Britain's full withdrawal from the far east and advocating closer Rome-Berlin-Tokio ties.

Britain already has announced her decision to transfer her troops from China. Before the meeting convened, Yakichiro Suma, foreign office spokesman, had hinted that other nations should consider withdrawing their military forces from China.

Britain's decision, Suma said, emphasized that Japan is assuming responsibility for peace and order at Peiking, Tientsin, and Shanghai, and that, "because of changing conditions, it now is problematical whether it is necessary to maintain troops in those areas."

U. S. Marines Still There.

In Shanghai, opposition to any move to allow United States marines to take over the British defense sector was expressed by the Japanese army newspaper, Tairiku Shimpo. When the British depart, the American marines will be the only important nonoriental elements of the Shanghai defense forces.

A Japanese embassy spokesman in Shanghai said it was believed the small Italian contingent and the French force, stationed in the French concession, will follow the British example.

KERENSKY LANDS IN AMERICA AS FUGITIVE OF WAR

New York, Aug. 12 [Special].—Completing her ninth crossing of the Atlantic since the war began, the British liner Scythia arrived here today with 774 passengers, mostly refugees, including 162 English children, and Alexander Kerensky, who was provisional president of Russia after the fall of the czar.

Kerensky, who was accompanied by his wife, is a refugee from France. For the second time in his life he has lost all his personal belongings, papers, and books. The first time was when he fled Russia for his life after the bolsheviki revolution.

Kerensky and his wife left Paris, where he had been editing a magazine, on June 11, the day that the French cabinet departed. They were 18 days on the road to St. Jean-de-Luz, where they embarked on the last ship to leave the French coast. They were bombed in Paris and on the road.

Kerensky said that he would lecture in this country. He plans to stay a few days at the home of Kenneth F. Simpson, Republican county chairman.

3 SLAV CHORUSES WIN COOK COUNTY FESTIVAL EVENTS

4 Groups Are Chosen for Final Competitions.

Slavic vocal fire swept triumphantly last night thru the ballroom of the Drake hotel. In the Cook county chorus competition of the 11th Chicagoland Music Festival, Zdzislaw Skubikowski and his 36 bell voiced singers of the Sarmatia Male chorus carried off first honors in the male section, and, for the third consecutive year, Adeline Preyss led her Echo Choral club of 58 women and girl singers to victory.

Both ensembles are members of the Polish Singers' Alliance of America, a nation-wide association of 110 choruses. Skubikowski is national musical director of the alliance, and Miss Preyss is the circuit director for the Chicago region.

Win Mixed Chorus Honors.

In the division for mixed choruses, the Chicago circle of the Polish National Catholic church, with George F. Kalmus directing, was the only chorus to enter the section for large groups and was therefore given a first place rating. In the division of smaller mixed choruses Lois Albright's Chicago Lyric Theater Vocal ensemble won first honors.

Last night's winners will compete in a grand tournament Saturday noon, the men's and mixed choruses meeting winners from other regions in the Drake hotel and the women singing for final festival honors in the Knickerbocker hotel.

Seventeen choruses, the majority of them women's organizations, participated in the county contest. There were mothers' choruses, church choirs, and parent-teacher and club-women's ensembles. Miss Preyss' singers ranged from schoolgirls 16 years old to middle aged housewives, and there was not a "trained" voice among them.

Second in Women's Class.

The Alice Stephens singers, a small group of 23 young women in pink, green, and yellow pastel gowns, took second place in the women's class. The West Suburban Glee club of 24 members, directed by Carol O. Behnke, was second in the male chorus class. The white robed Hartzell Methodist Church Young People's chorus, which has one first place victory in its history of festival participation, took second place in the mixed chorus section for small groups.

The contest was judged by George Carlson, Walter Ashenbrenner, and Inez Hubbard Hicks. Mrs. Edmund J. Tyler, vocal and choral contest chairman of the festival, presided.

The violin, accordion, and cornet players will have their festival tournament at 7 o'clock tonight in the Drake hotel, with Capt. Howard Stube, supervisor of instrumental participation, in charge. The public will be admitted. An admission fee of 25 cents will be charged.

Showers caused postponement of the South Side Music festival in Jackson park last night. Weather permitting, the program will be held there at 8 o'clock tonight.

28 SHIPS TIED UP IN ARGENTINA BECAUSE OF WAR

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 12.—Twenty-eight steamers, totaling 157,269 tons, are tied up in five Argentine ports as a result of the war in Europe. They include 16 Italian, 4 French, 4 Danish, 3 German ships, and 1 Swedish.

Among the French vessels is the small passenger liner Formose, which was being convoyed by the British cruiser Exeter when attacked by the German pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee last December, leading to the battle of the Punta del Este and the eventual scuttling of the Spee off Montevideo.

Rumanian-Bulgar Parley Strikes Snag, Berlin Says

BERLIN, Aug. 12 (AP).—Preliminary negotiations between Rumania and Bulgaria over the cession of Southern Dobruja to the latter have struck a snag because of Rumania's desire to retain the Black Sea port of Baltic and the Danube river city of Salistra, the German wireless declared tonight in quoting a Sofia dispatch. Bulgaria was said to have rejected this proposal and told Rumania she was not ready to begin negotiations on that basis.

FRANCE COULD HAVE FOUGHT ON, SAYS DE GAULLE

LONDON, Aug. 12 (AP). — Gen. Charles de Gaulle, independent French leader, in a world-wide broadcast to the French people today declared:

"Contrary to the statements of the old men of Vichy, France still possessed powerful means of fighting at the time our arms were given up.

"We see we still had intact a fleet that was the second in Europe, a large air force, and a vast empire."

SOVIETS DEMAND U. S. RECALL ALL ENVOYS IN BALTIC

Welles to Consult Aids on Course of Action.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 12 [Special].—The soviet Russian government, in a note to the state department, today demanded that all American diplomatic and consular representatives leave Estonia, Latvia, and Lithuania, the three Baltic states recently absorbed by Russia under circumstances that brought vigorous denunciation from the United States.

Meanwhile Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles, who announced the soviet action at his press conference, was continuing his conversations with Constantine A. Oumansky, Russian ambassador, with a view to improving American relations with the soviet government.

Similar notifications are reported to have been sent to other governments having official representatives in the three Baltic countries, the sovereignty of which still is recognized by the United States.

Questions to Be Weighed.

The note to the United States was transmitted thru the American embassy in Moscow. Acting Secretary Welles said he was not prepared to say what this government will do about it. He said the question will be discussed with departmental advisers tomorrow.

The chief American diplomatic representatives already have left the Baltic countries. They were recalled in protest against the absorption of the three states by Russia, altho technically they are returning "for consultation." John C. Wiley, minister to Estonia and Latvia, is returning by way of the far east, and Owen C. Norem, minister to Lithuania, is on his way home thru Lisbon.

The Russian demand, however, is that all diplomatic secretaries and attachés, as well as consular officers leave.

Situation Is Different.

After Poland was conquered, a similar demand by Germany was respected by the United States and all other countries. When Germany conquered Belgium and the Netherlands, she requested only that foreign ambassadors and ministers leave. This has permitted diplomatic secretaries and consuls to remain.

As far as Germany is concerned, her demands were complied with apparently because there was no choice, it is understood, and also because the Belgian and Dutch governments had fled.

In the case of the Baltic republics, however, their governments have remained, and it is thought this may place a different aspect on the matter.

Presumably this as well as other phases will be considered before the state department replies to the soviet communication.

Report Belgians Seek to Revive Flemish Nationality

BERLIN, Aug. 12 (AP).—Dienst Aus Deutschland, German news service close to the foreign office, today reported a move was afoot in Belgium for the "rebirth of Flemish nationality." The news service said a welcome celebration was held at the Royal Opera house in Brussels for Dr. August Borms, Flemish leader, and for interned Flemish civilians returning from France. Numerous Germans, including representatives of German authorities, attended, it said.

PRESIDENT TAKES THE PATH TO WAR, BARRETT WARNS

G. O. P. Nominee Speaks on State-Wide Hookup.

BY PARKE BROWN.

George F. Barrett, Republican nominee for attorney general of Illinois, warned the voters of the state last night that Franklin D. Roosevelt is following the 1916 footsteps of Woodrow Wilson —on the path to war.

George F. Barrett.

Barrett, a Chicago attorney, formally opened his election campaign with a radio talk over a state-wide hookup, the first of its kind this summer, for which he chose the topic: "Why Willkie Must Win."

He urged that the election of the Republican Presidential nominee is the only insurance against bringing the United States into the European conflict within a few months. As a means of making certain Willkie's winning of Illinois, he urged support of the Illinois Volunteeer Committee to Stop Vote Frauds, of which he is chairman.

He Condemns Propaganda.

The candidate condemned propaganda which attacks those who want to keep the United States out of war. He called it the most immediate threat to American institutions.

"A carefully planned hysteria has been created in this country by the vast power of government propaganda," he said. "This propaganda seeks to silence the real voice of America.

"Let us cast our thoughts back to the year 1916. That was an election year, too. Hear those shouts, 'He kept us out of war!' Then see the drums, the flags, the marching men.

"National hysteria! A headlong rush to mobilization! For what? For peace, they said. Then the November election. Wilson was reelected.

"We turn to April, 1917—five months after that historic election. Woodrow Wilson is asking congress for a declaration of war. There comes conscription!

War Hysteria in the Air.

"Now it is 1940—election year. The ghost of Woodrow Wilson stalks the long corridors of the White House.

"Conscription is in order again. War hysteria is in the air.

"But Mr. Roosevelt has cried 'Wolf! Wolf!' so many times that he has taken the urgency out of emergency."

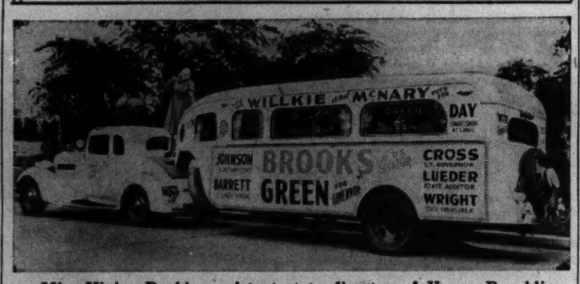
G. O. P. Campaign Truck Dedicated



Miss Vivian Rankin, assistant state director of Young Republican activity, dedicating sound equipped trailer truck which will be used by G. O. P. nominees during Illinois campaign.

Invite Willkie to City

Originality was introduced into the local Republican campaign last night when the Young Republicans of Cook county took the initial steps to collect 50,000 or more signatures on a petition asking Wendell L. Willkie to speak at the Labor day picnic at Riverview park.

The petition blank, cut in the correction proportion, is a soft cardboard sheet on the face of which, in large type, in the style of a bank check, is an order signed by "Young American Voter" which directs the "Bank of American Confidence" to pay Willkie "Unqualified Loyalty and Support." On the reverse side is the space for signatures.

James P. Economos, head of the organization, who distributed the forms, announced that they will be circulated in office buildings, suburban stations, and other places where large numbers of voters may be approached.

Miss Vivian Rankin, assistant state director of Young Republican activity, dedicated during the afternoon the trailer truck which the Republican state nominees will use during their downstate campaigning.

Indiana Convict Escapes from Honor Prison Farm

Indiana state prison authorities revealed yesterday that Ralph Sayger, who was convicted for burglary in 1932 in Elkhart county, walked away from the Summit honor farm Sunday. Sayger, who had been granted a parole in May, was being held until he had obtained a job and a sponsor. He previously had violated a parole and had been returned.

Charges against eight persons arrested June 30 in a raid on the Kitty Davis bar at 245 South Wabash avenue were continued yesterday by Judge Joseph B. Hermes until next Monday. Daniel Stevens, alias Davis, one of the owners, is charged with selling liquor to minors. Seven of his employés, including five dice girls, are facing other charges, ranging from resisting an officer and gambling to disorderly conduct. The licenses of the bar were revoked after the raid. The continuance was ordered yesterday because witnesses for the city are out of town.

AUSTRALIA BANS YOUTH COUNCIL AS COMMUNISTIC

CANBERRA, Australia, Aug. 12 (AP).—The commonwealth government today outlawed the Australian Youth council after prohibiting the meeting of a youth parliament at Melbourne this week-end. Attorney General W. M. Hughes said the organization had a communistic basis. Forty-five youth organizations had sent delegates to the Melbourne meeting, which was scheduled to deal with a resolution declaring that, since war had not solved youth's problems, youth could not wholeheartedly support the government's war effort.

FARMERS EXPECT COOLER WEATHER FOR WILLKIE FETE

U. S. Forecaster Wary; Thumbs Records.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Elwood, Ind., Aug. 12.—There's no official forecast as yet, but farmers in town this afternoon say the current hot spell is due to break before Saturday. That's the day Wendell Willkie will be here to accept his Presidential nomination before a crowd that probably will exceed 100,000.

At Indianapolis, Federal Meteorologist W. J. Rice thumbed thru old official weather records that tend to substantiate the farmer's guesses. The government's forecast, however, goes no further than: "Probably showers tonight or tomorrow in southwest portion of state; little change in temperature." Elwood is in central Indiana.

The average mean temperature for Aug. 17 during the last 46 years is recorded at 74 degrees. Thermometers on the shady side of Main street were in the 90's this afternoon. Official records at Indianapolis have been running 3 to 11 degrees above normal for several days.

Maximum Averages 83.3%.

In 49 years, the maximum temperature on an Aug. 17 has averaged 83.3 degrees. The average minimum was 65.2 degrees. These are Indianapolis readings, but the capital is only 40 miles away so they can apply for the Elwood outlook.

The farmers, with their corn stunted by the drouth and heat, hope for rain as well as cooler weather. Homer Capehart of Washington, Ind., also hopes for rain—not on Saturday, but before Saturday.

In a review of the weather records for the last two decades, it was found that Aug. 17 showed at least a trace of precipitation on 11 of the 20 years.

"This doesn't mean that there's a 50-50 chance of the crowd at Elwood getting wet," said Forecaster Rice. "Our records, of course, cover the entire 24 hours. In some of these Aug. 17 dates, the shower doubtless was at night."

Two Bad Ones Since 1919.

Only twice since 1919 has Aug. 17 been really mean. In 1926 there was a moderately heavy fall of .89 of an inch, consisting of repeated showers thru most of the day. On Aug. 17, 1935, there was really a torrent—3.18 inches of water fell.

So far this month there has been only one trace of precipitation, on the 6th, and this was too small to measure. In July there was only .9 of an inch of rain, compared with a normal of 3.87 inches.

At Callaway park, grass is dying and dust is forming under the tall trees that will shade Willkie's audience. Capehart directed that 10 tons of calcium chloride be spread to settle the dust.

10-Ton Rollers Busy.

In 260 adjacent acres reserved for free parking, 10 ton rollers were stirring dust on the hard earth, denuded of crops. Salt will be scattered in some of these fields unless a good rain packs the soil before Saturday. The ground is so dry there is little or no risk of having mud in the parking fields.

Capehart this afternoon drove thru the park and over the parking fields on a general inspection tour. Laborers were constructing toilets. Others were laying a water main to drinking fountains. Tents were rising for the food counters.

Progress appeared satisfactory to the general manager. Tonight Capehart is meeting in Indianapolis with the chairmen and vice chairmen of all committees to make sure no detail has been overlooked in the preparations.

PRESIDENT ENDS NAVY TOUR; GOES BACK TO CAPITAL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Aboard President Special En Route to Washington, D. C., Aug. 12.—President Roosevelt was headed back to the capital tonight to resume personal charge of the nation's defense drive after winding up his inspection of northeastern naval establishments in a tour of Newport, R. I., and New London, Conn.

The two naval areas, regarded as among the country's most important sea defense assets, occupied the second full day of inspecting over the week-end.

At a press conference Mr. Roosevelt expressed himself as pleased by what he had seen of the navy's expansion program. He asserted everything was shipshape.

The President will arrive in Washington about 8:30 a. m., Chicago daylight time, tomorrow and will be back at his desk shortly thereafter to take up the reins of government where he left them when he departed from the White House for a visit to his family home and the inspection trip Aug. 3.

STATE TO CLEAR ELWOOD ROUTES OF BARRICADES

More Roads to Willkie Rally Charted.

[This is the third of a series by The Tribune's automobile editor on motor travel to the Willkie rally Saturday in Elwood, Ind. Tomorrow's article will discuss routes from Chicago, Wisconsin, western Michigan, and northwestern Indiana.]

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Elwood, Ind., Aug. 12.—Reports received at the Wendell L. Willkie headquarters here predict that 40,000 motorists will drive here from central and southern Illinois, eastern Iowa, and Missouri for the notification ceremonies and entertainment Saturday.

For the convenience of travelers Charles P. Casey, Illinois director of public works, has ordered the recommended "On to Elwood" routes in his state cleared of temporary barricades, such as used in maintenance work. He also has ordered the Illinois state police to man the routes to aid travelers.

Similar preferred treatment has been promised by the Indiana police and the Indiana highway commission for the recommended continuations of these Illinois routes to Elwood.

Map Shows Routes.

The map with this article shows that the recommended routes blanket central and southern Illinois. Mileage figures on the map under names of key cities show distances to Elwood.

The trip will be a week-end holiday for visitors from more distant places. As shown on the map, Elwood is 338 miles from Cairo, Ill.; 291 miles from St. Louis, Mo., and 322 miles from Davenport, Ia. Driving time can be calculated by figuring an average of 40 miles an hour, including roadside stops, and allowing 30 minutes for the last two or three miles in approaching and entering the free parking areas near the scene of the rally.

U. S. 24 Recommended.

From the section of Illinois north of an imaginary east and west line thru Peoria, the recommended route is east in U. S. 24. At Kentland, Ind., [a good eating place] U. S. 52 is picked up and followed around Lafayette. Fifteen miles southeast of Lafayette the route turns east on Ind. 28 into Elwood.

From Canton, Bloomington, Champaign-Urbana, and Danville and their environs, motorists will cross the state line east of Danville on a road marked Ill. 10 in one state and Ind. 34 in the other state. At Crawfordsville, Ind., pick up Ind. 32 to continue east thru Lebanon to U. S. 31, then north 16 miles on U. S. 31 to Ind. 28 and east on Ind. 28 for 17 miles to Elwood.

From Quincy, Jacksonville, Springfield, Decatur and their environs motorists will enter Indianapolis on U. S. 36, which also passes thru the Illinois capital.

The recommended road from St. Louis, Mo., thru Vandalia is U. S. 40, the old National Trail.

Route from Little Egypt.

Travelers from Little Egypt will enter Indiana at Vincennes, approaching the state line from the west on U. S. 50 and from the south on Ill. 1. From Vincennes to Indianapolis is new pavement marked Ind. 67. When THE TRIBUNE'S road car inspected this route last week contractors still were grading shoulders where new concrete follows the banks of the White river. The pavement is to be cleared by Saturday.

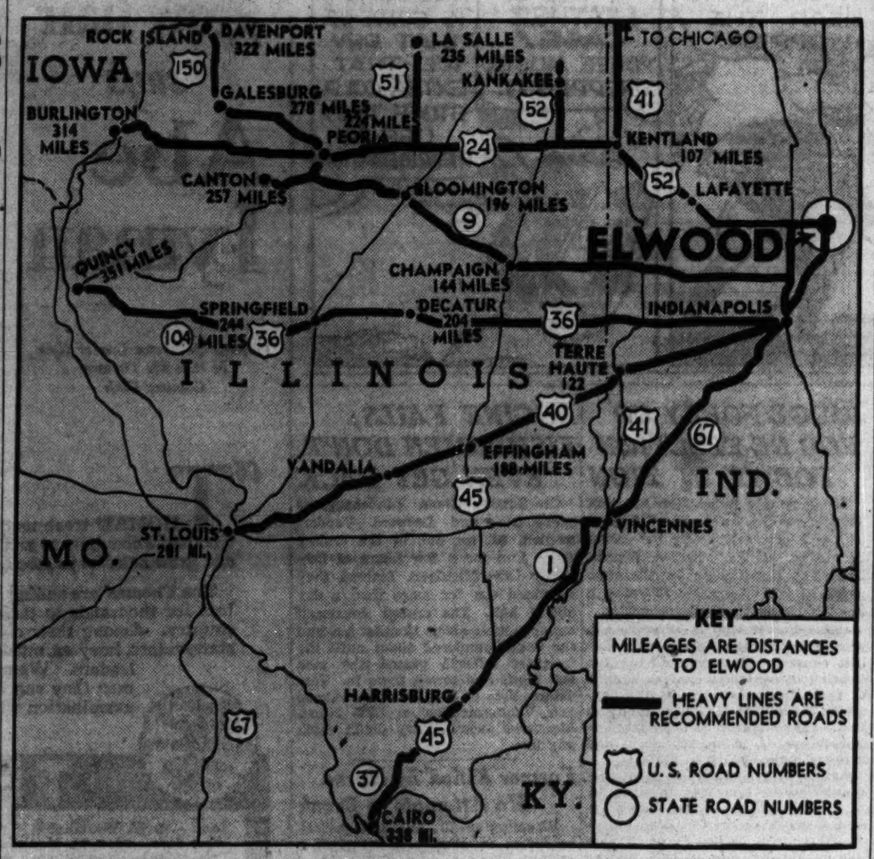
In Indianapolis Chief of Police Michael Morrissey is planning to mark a route for Elwood traffic that will bypass the congested central business district.

From Indianapolis to Elwood the shortest route is 42 miles on Ind. 13. The Indiana state police and the Indiana highway commission believe the capacity of this pavement will be taxed by traffic originating in Indianapolis and vicinity.

For travelers from Illinois who enter Indianapolis en route to Elwood these two agencies recommend following U. S. 31 north 35 miles from the capital and then east 17 miles to the Willkie festivities.

Recommended Routes for Autoists Going to Elwood

(Story in adjoining column.)



Illinois and Indiana police and highway official s suggest using these roads (indicated in heavy lines) in motoring to Elwood, Ind., for Willkie notification ceremonies next Saturday.

HOOVER PREDICTS WILLKIE VICTORY; OFFERS HIS HELP

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Colorado Springs, Colo., Aug. 12.—Former President Herbert Hoover told Wendell L. Willkie today that in his opinion Willkie will be elected President in November.

Hoover offered to aid in the campaign in any way desired. He probably will make two major speeches, one in the middle west and one in California. Alf M. Landon, 1936 Republican nominee, will come here tomorrow to offer his help.

These discussions with Hoover and Landon, Willkie made plain, are of general nature and related more to campaign organization—the political mechanisms in which Willkie is an amateur—than policy.

Willkie said good-by today to Elliott Roosevelt, who drove in with his family last night from Texas on their way to the Snake River in Wyoming.

Wishes Willkie "Good Luck."

Young Roosevelt is supporting his father's candidacy, but offered Willkie equal radio time with the President on the Texas chain which he controls, if Willkie should go to Texas to campaign. This offer Willkie will accept.

"I have no objection to taking an advantage from a Roosevelt," he said.

Elliott wished his father's opponent "good luck" when he left, and while making it plain that he is supporting his father, he left the impression that he would not mind greatly if Willkie were elected.

Willkie awaited reaction to his statement of yesterday, warning the Democratic campaign managers against violating the law by soliciting advertising to the Democratic campaign book—a practice of former campaigns which has netted huge sums to the political war chest from corporations which have reason to fear the pressure of New Deal officials. Willkie said he will prosecute the solicitors and those who buy the advertisments. It is said that the cost of these advertisments runs as high as $8,000 a page.

Weighs Quayle Defense.

The reply of Oliver A. Quayle Jr., treasurer of the Democratic national committee, that the Willkie warning was not important because he did not stand a chance of being elected, was regarded by Willkie as a strange defense.

"One of the most interesting defenses I ever heard as a lawyer," he said. "He will go ahead and break the law because the prosecutor will not be elected."

The latest celebrity to invade the Willkie suite was Mary Pickford. The former screen favorite and writer of inspirational books had luncheon today with the Willkies and Gen. Hugh Johnson.

Willkie said he was amazed at Miss Pickford's knowledge of governmental affairs and principles. She said: "I believe Mr. Willkie is the best qualified man for the Presidency and I shall support his candidacy in whatever manner I best can serve."

John Jones, brother of Jesse Jones, head of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, headed a delegation from Texas that called upon Willkie today.

EX-NEW DEALERS HEAD NEW WILLKIE CLUB IN FIGHT ON THIRD TERM

New York, Aug. 12 (AP).—Formation of a national "Democrats for Willkie" organization, headed by two former members of the Roosevelt administration and one of the country's youngest university presidents, was announced today.

The new organization, said Alan Valentine, 39 year old president of Rochester university and executive director of the group, will seek members and support only from Democrats and will work "independently of the Willkie organizations, including the associated Willkie clubs, altho of course we will maintain friendly relations with them."

In addition to Valentine, a national committee of four to direct its activities included John W. Hanes, former undersecretary of the treasury under President Roosevelt; Lewis W. Douglas, early New Deal budget director, and Mrs. Roberta Campbell Lawson of Tulsa, Okla., former president of the General Federation of Women's clubs. The group will have as its slogan "no third term," Valentine explained.

Yesterday the judges selected the 200 contestants from pictures submitted by more than 100 Cook county girls.

Tennessee Judge Named to New Appeals Circuit

Washington, D. C., Aug. 12 (AP).—Judge John D. Martin Sr. was appointed today by President Roosevelt to the new position of judge of the United States circuit court of appeals for the sixth circuit. The circuit embraces districts of northern Ohio, Southern Ohio, eastern Michigan, western Michigan, eastern Kentucky, western Kentucky, eastern Tennessee, middle Tennessee, and western Tennessee. Martin is now United States district judge for the western district of Tennessee.

CROWD APPLAUDS AS 2 ARE NAMED TO SCALISE JURY

Union Boss Faces High as 545 Years.

New York, Aug. 12 [Special].—Two jurors were selected today from a panel of 250 blue ribbon talesmen at the opening in General Sessions court of the trial of George Scalise, ex-convict white slaver, who resigned as president of the Building Service Employés union after his activities had been brought under investigation last spring by District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey.

The indictment, one of two pending against him and longest ever returned against an individual here, charges Scalise with misuse of more than $60,000 of the union's funds. Sixty counts are involved, charging padding of expense vouchers and fake entries in the books of the union after Scalise became its head in May, 1937. Thirty-five counts charge grand larceny, eleven third-degree forgery, eight embezzlement, and six violations of the common law.

Not involved in the present trial is a $97,000 extortion indictment pending against Scalise and others.

First Is Foreman.

The jurors chosen were Howard O. Cadwell, an investment counselor, the 14th talesman examined, and Leo X. Howe, a stage manager, the 17th. Cadwell, as the first man accepted, automatically became foreman.

Talesmen and spectators broke into applause when Cadwell finally was selected near the end of the long day of questioning. Judge Jacob Gould Schurman Jr., presiding, tolerantly restored order, and even Scalise smiled at the outburst.

Earlier, he sat impassively for the most part, altho the charges are such that if convicted and senteneed on all counts he would face a maximum term of 545 years in prison as a first offender. Doubt has been expressed that he could be classed as a second offender under state law. This would make him liable to a maximum of 1,090 years. The conviction for which he served time in prison, beginning a four year term in 1913, was on a federal charge, violation of the Mann act.

Long Trial Likely.

Observers believe the trial might last as long as 30 days, because of the intricacy of the charges against Scalise.

Martin W. Littleton, defense counsel, indicated in his questioning of talesmen that Scalise may contend he was entitled to the money he is accused of having stolen from his union. This possible defense recalled that of Fritz Kuhn, German-American bund leader, who was convicted recently on charges of improper use of the funds of his organization.

Indications also were given of a defense based partly on a charge that politics influenced the investigation.

Assistant District Attorney Murray I. Gurfein, in charge of the rackets bureau of Dewey's office, conducted the examination of prospective jurors for the state. He read a list of some 50 persons who are expected to be called by the prosecution or named in the testimony.

Included were officials of the union, Jimmy Kelly, operator of a night club in Greenwich Village; "Little Augie" Pisano, a Brooklyn racketeer; Miss Ann Kimmel, Scalise's secretary, and Izzy Schwartz, union organizer.

Girl, 5, Hurt Severely in Fall from Third Floor

Margaret Anne Henehan, 5 years old, was hurt severely last night when she fell from the porch of her home on the third floor at 7017 Parnell avenue. A neighbor who heard the girl land on the sidewalk notified the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Henehan. At St. George's hospital it was said Margaret Anne had suffered a possible skull fracture.

DR. A. G. BARRY, JUVENILE HOME HEAD, RESIGNS

Dr. Alfred G. Barry, superintendent of the Juvenile Detention home since February, 1930, submitted his resignation yesterday to the county board, effective Dec. 1. Commissioner Maurice Kavanagh said the resignation would be acted upon at the next board meeting Aug. 20.

Dr. Barry, a former head of the University of Wisconsin's extension school for policemen, merely stated in his letter to the board that he was entering another field and would require the period until Dec. 1 to make adjustments necessary to the change.

Three years ago he was under fire on charges that he and his staff were not coöperating properly.

WAGE ARBITERS GET PICTURE OF MILKMAN'S DAY

Driver Tells Hours, Income, Expenses.

A typical day in the life of a milkman was pictured yesterday for the three man arbitration board which will set a new pay scale for drivers. Floyd Bryant, 8816 Parnell avenue, who has been employed by the Bowman Dairy company for 11 years, was exhibit A in the drivers' case.

Bryant, who is in his thirties, began by describing under questioning by Attorney David A. Riskind, counsel for the Milk Wagon Drivers, local No. 753, how much he made each month and what it cost him to support himself, his wife, and a son 12 years old.

Among items which bring his living expenses up to about $225 a month, Bryant said, are $15 monthly donated to various civic organizations to whose benefits he buys tickets in order to keep the good will of customers; $8 deducted for shortages rolled up thru petty thefts, sale of goods below price to keep good will, and breakage.

Sales Tax $1.50 a Month.

Then there is the $1.50 average monthly sales tax which he pays for customers who refuse to pay it themselves; $35 payments on his home, bought a year ago; $2 for a garage; $1 monthly on furniture; $1 to a neighborhood civic group, and $30 for groceries.

Other expenses are $10 for milk; $2.25, telephone; $2.25, gas; $5.62, for stoker; $8, taxes; $5, insurance; $25, car; $15, clothes; $3 [weekly] for union dues and unemployment fund; $1.55 for hair cuts for himself and son, and $6 monthly on a $50 doctor bill owed for his wife's operation.

These, with other items, just about approximate the $225 a month which his salary averages, Bryant said. He said he is behind on his unemployment fund payments and on the doctor bill.

Works Six Days Weekly.

And to achieve his present wage, he said, he works six days weekly, the average day being about like this:

Up at 4 a. m., leaves home at 5:15, and arrives at the barn at 103d street about 5:30 a. m. There he hitches the horse and waits in line to help load his wagon. He is at his first stop at 7, delivers his route between then and 1 p. m., when he gets time for lunch, and at 2 p. m. returns to the barn.

There he again waits to unload, unhitches his horse, makes out various records, stands in line to get the statement approved, and returns home [if he's lucky] at 5 p. m. His wife, however, never starts dinner until she sees him coming home, Bryant said.

Month-End Jobs Told.

Bryant said that at the end of the month he goes over the route book, prepares statements for his customers, and compiles a new route book. This takes about seven hours of his own time, he said, and in addition there sometimes are meetings to attend, dairy advertising to study, and other duties which take his leisure time.

The dealers seek to cut wages to $30 weekly, plus commissions, which would bring the drivers' salaries to about $36 a week. The present weekly wage is $48, plus commissions. The arbitration hearings are being held in the Palmer House.

BURGLAR DRIVES HIS OWN NEW CAR TO CRIME SCENE

A burglar driving a new 1940 automobile stopped yesterday at 1747 North Nagle avenue. He rang the front doorbell and, getting no response, went to the back of the house and crawled in a basement window. Neighbors who knew the occupants, the Edward Halter family, were on a vacation trip in Canada, called police. Sergt. Edward McBride and a squad surrounded the house and shouted to the burglar to come out. He came. At the Cragin lockup he said he was Joseph J. Anzalone, 18 years old, 2450 Sheffield avenue, and claimed to be the rightful owner of the car.

JUDGE FORBY UP FOR RE-ELECTION TODAY IN ZION

The only city judge Zion has had, Theodore Forby, a veteran of 12 years on the bench, will be up for reëlection today. He is opposed by Stephen Drury, an investigator for the state parole board, who polled 85 votes to Forby's 189 in the June primaries.

Judge Forby, who is 74 years old, was sitting in the Lake county Circuit court in Waukegan during the hearing of contempt charges against C. I. O. sitdown strikers at the Fansteel Metallurgical corporation in 1937. He sentenced 39 defendants to jail terms of 10 to 240 days, and assessed fines of $100 to $1,000.

Judge Forby charged last night that opposition to him was inspired by C. I. O. factions. Wilbur Glenn Voliva, overseer of the Christian Catholic church, who backed Forby 12 years ago but opposed him in 1934, said he was neutral in this election insofar as advising his followers how to vote. Voliva would not say how he would vote.

ENGINE FAILS; FISHERMEN DON'T EVEN GET BACK

On Sunday Glenn Vandeburg, 30 years old, and Leonard Vandermeulen, 34, set out in the cruiser Some Fun for a few hours of fishing in Lake Michigan. Instead, they remained out for more than a day and a half. The cruiser developed motor trouble about 12 miles out and the boat floundered about until the freighter Alberta passed the men last night and towed them in. Vandeburg lives at 3261 Armitage avenue and Vandermeulen at 5835 North Merrimac avenu. They didn't catch any fish.

Simple though the Vitality Boost is, it's based on scientific facts:

1) You take the milk when your stomach is empty. Preventing hunger pangs, it helps you get more restful sleep.

2) It reduces the tax on your energy store that even sleeping takes. (Your body's need of fuel each sleeping hour is actually 40% of the average for all your waking, working hours! That's because your heart keeps pumping, breathing continues, "relaxed" muscles are always under tension.)

3) It gives your body, in easily digestible form, a greater variety of nutritional essentials than any other food can provide!

Fresh milk is outstanding as a source of calcium and vitamins A and G . . . three of the four food requisites needed in abundance for retaining what scientists call "the characteristics of youth."

Enjoy this simple, effective idea yourself. Start tonight. See if a nightly glass of Bowman Milk doesn't help make you feel better all the time!

FOUR ARRESTED IN RAIDS ON GANG UNION OFFICES

Files Reveal Fight on Rackets Inquiry.

$35 and then to $55. Kapp's salary was raised from $47 a week to $80.

"I have been informed that Stanton has obtained $1,800 a month from the waiters' union for some years," Crawford said. "I don't know whether that money came from these waiters' unions or from the other one, known as the Waiters' Alliance, or local 25.

"Records here show that the union took in $80,000 in 1939. There are entries to show that the dues should bring in $9,000 a month, as there are 4,500 members and each pays $2 a month. Some months the income was as low as $5,000 and in others, recently, it was up to $11,000.

Funds Paid for Organization.

"Payments to Blakely and Lardino of at least $25 a week for organization expense are noted. Money also was paid to Charles Youngblood of the painters' union." [Police said Stanton planned to take over the painters' union.]

Crawford said the books showed payments of $7,000 by Blakely's union in 1939 for organization and $5,200 for hospitalization. It was said that this union, like others in the Stanton group, charges members for a hospitalization plan under an arrangement with the American hospital, 850 Irving Park road. Crawford said members of his union receive for $4 the same promises given members of the Bartenders' union, No. 728, for $10. He said many unions have made contracts with Dr. Max Thorek of the hospital for care of their members. Crawford added that he expects to ask the grand jury to determine how much of the unions' money actually is paid to the hospital.

Files May Be Subpenaed.

Crawford said the books of St. Louis Kelly's unions and other records in a vault at the Madison street headquarters were not taken. He said these documents will be subpenaed before the grand jury if necessary.

Writs of habeas corpus for the release of Blakely, Lardino, and Lee were obtained by Attorney Harold Levy, and the three are scheduled to appear before Chief Justice John Prystalski of the Criminal court at 10 a. m. today. Levy represents the so-called Nitti faction of the bartenders' union, for which a receivership is being sought before Judge Robert Jerome Dunne of the Circuit court.

Crawford said Blakely, Lardino, and Lee will be served with grand jury subpenas and marched to the grand jury room after they appear in court today. Kelly, for whom no writ was sought, also will be asked to go before the grand jury, Crawford added. Kelly is known as the "mob's man" in the Negro district, where he also is said to have an interest in several policy games and to have an arrangement about them with Stanton.

Charges Seizure of Union.

The grand jury has heard evidence from George McLane, business agent, of Nitti's alleged seizure of the bartenders' union. McLane appealed to the courts and to Courtney to "take Nitti off the union's back."

Courtney responded by raiding the bartenders' union headquarters and arresting Louis Romano, the president, and 10 others. A charge of conspiracy against Romano and two of his aids is pending.

Crawford said Judge Dunne is to be asked tomorrow to appoint a receiver for the bartenders' union. Courtney is providing protection for McLane and will do so for any other unionists who want his help in freeing any union from the Nitti-Stanton dictatorship.

Courtney said his office is ready to take action whenever the Nitti forces make a move to "adopt" the string of 25 unions left dictatorless when Mike Carrozzo died Aug. 4.

Courtney and Mayor Kelly are in agreement on the program that seemed to have been outlined when Capt. Howe was heard saying to Blakely:

"You are thru in this town and you better get out and the same goes for Stanton! You'll not push any one around any more, but you are due for a bit of pushing around yourselves!"

The Junior Achievement movement aims at the organization of businesses by youths between the ages of 16 and 20, in which they will be fitted thru experience to carry on the American system of free enterprise in industry and commerce.

Discuss Business Problems.

A group of business men, the directors of Chicago Junior Achievement, Inc., sat down with the youngsters yesterday to discuss such problems as overhead and operating costs, production, pay rolls, and markets. Phil S. Hanna, newspaper editor, presented the charters.

The first went to Jack Buehler, 16 years old, president of the Junior Achievement Specialty company, and the second to Thomas Burke, president of the Southtown Junior Achievement Woodcraft company. Both boys attend Parker High school.

Buehler said his company has taken over an old two car garage at Halsted and 73d streets and is installing $100 worth of machinery to manufacture sign posts with metallic reflecting figures and letters. The 20 participating members and their relatives have bought most of the $125 in capital stock issued at 50 cents a share.

Buehler had three officials of the company with him: John Egan, 18, treasurer; Martin Kamper, 16, secretary, and Joe Colman, 16, sales manager.

Specializes in Wall Racks.

Burke said his concern, in another converted garage at 3937 Emerald avenue, will specialize in a wall rack for telephones and telephone books. Nils Swanson, 16, production manager, announced the factory would be ready shortly to turn out the racks in mass volume. The treasurer, Clarence Swanson, 18, estimates the racks will sell at $1.30 each.

Both companies are sponsored by the Englewood Lions club.

Business men present yesterday, in addition to Hanna, were Benjamin F. Affleck of the Universal Atlas Cement company, president of the Executives' Club of Chicago; Lester H. Forbes of Huskey, Seiler & Forbes; George F. Getz Jr., president of the Globe corporation; Ralph Lee Goodman of the Big Four Advertising Carriers; C. W. Kaylor, Jewel Tea company; John B. Reynolds, Chicago Federal Savings and Loan association, and James F. Spoerri of the firm of Bob Spoerri, Bourland & Harris.

GIRL, 3, INJURED IN FALL OFF PONY, VOWS SHE'LL RIDE

Barbara Orth, 3 years old, looked up from her bed in the Columbus Memorial hospital yesterday, and altho still weak from anesthetic, vowed she'd ride Queen Rose again, "and teach her better manners."

Barbara, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Orth Jr., of Warrenville road, Wheaton, and granddaughter of Dr. Daniel Orth, president of the Columbus hospital, was riding Queen Rose, a coal black pony, on the family grounds Sunday.

Suddenly Queen Rose crashed into a fence. Barbara fell from the saddle, but her foot caught in the stirrup. Frightened, the pony galloped away, dragging Barbara on the ground. The result was an oblique fracture of the right leg and severe scratches. Yesterday Grandfather Orth and another surgeon operated on Barbara, set the broken bone, and predicted she'd be all right soon.

THE MEN WHO DON'T DELIVER.

It is nearly three months since the President called for an American air force of 50,000 planes. It is seven weeks since congress appropriated funds for 4,081 planes for the army. Now Secretary Stimson tells a congressional committee that only 33 of those planes have been ordered. Government red tape and the reluctance of the President's New Deal lieutenants to relax their confiscatory tax plans and their general persecution of industry are responsible for the failure to place the orders.

The plane manufacturers were called to Washington as soon as the President called for 50,000 planes. They explained then that the primary requirement for necessary plant expansion was permission from the treasury to write off the new investments rapidly. Secretary Morgenthau and the President refused to take any action to amend existing regulations and laws. Only now are they urging congressional action proposing amortization in five years at 20 per cent a year. Meanwhile, nearly three months' time has been lost.

Along with Secretary Stimson, Mr. Knudsen, chairman of the national defense advisory committee, appeared before the congressmen. He told the committee that it will be the middle of 1944 before this country gets modern arms for a force of 2,000,000 men. Here again the fault lies at the door of the President.

The industrial plants of this country have been racked by seven years of the Roosevelt depression. Its productive capacity has been greatly decreased as machinery has worn out and has not been replaced, both because there were no orders to justify it and because the savings of the country were being diverted from productive investment into deficit bond issues.

Mr. Roosevelt and his followers have one sovereign remedy for every ill. That is the appropriation of huge sums of money. They have made a virtue of spending regardless of the value received. They followed this plan in their attempt to end the depression and it failed. They are following it again on defense and it is failing again. They are failing now for the same reason that they failed before. They are the men who don't deliver. They don't deliver because they can't, and they can't because they are incompetent. The employment of a few competent men like Mr. Knudsen does not cure the situation. The only cure is to clean out the whole outfit.

WHAT'S IT ALL ABOUT?

Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff of the army, said on Saturday in Chicago that the army will not be able to take the 400,000 draftees on Oct. 1, the date that has been set for calling them up if congress passes the conscription bill.

Gen. Marshall did not amplify his statement. It was hardly necessary for him to do so. The picture pages of The Tribune and other newspapers have contained the explanation in the last few days. They have shown troops engaged in the 1st army maneuvers at Plattsburg armed with dummy antitank guns made of gas pipe and tanks consisting of army trucks bearing the sign "tank."

Under the conscription plan 1,500,000 men are to be called for service by Oct. 1, 1941. William S. Knudsen of the defense advisory council told congress that the arms for an army of 2,000,000 [regular army and National Guard plus the 1,500,000 draftees] will not be finished before the middle of 1944.

These facts justify the American people in asking what it's all about. The army has not weapons for its present forces. It will not have weapons for an army of 2,000,000 for four years, two and a half years after that army will be called to duty by the draft. Under these circumstances, is the draft bill a measure for defense or is it a political maneuver to fan war hysteria and promote the third term?

OUR TIN SUPPLY.

Shut off from access to world markets, Germany has been able to wage war for a year without apparent diminution of strength because of the stores of strategic materials accumulated before the war. And in prudence we should be making every effort to protect ourselves against the possibility that a day may soon come when foreign sources of essential materials will no longer be available to us.

Among such materials is tin. The United States is by all odds the greatest consumer of this metal, altho it produces almost none. The largest single use of tin is in producing tinplate, out of which we get tin containers and tinware. Tin is also an important constituent of solder and bearing metals, and is employed in important ways by chemical concerns. If glass and paper containers could be substituted for tin cans there might be only a minor inconvenience, but there are no good industrial substitutes.

Tin is found in important quantities in British Malaya, the Dutch East Indies, Siam, China, and Bolivia. We get over three-fourths of our supplies from Asia. Bolivia is much nearer, but the British have long operated a monopoly in tin and they decided that Bolivian tin should go to England to be smelted. Until recently there were no American tin smelters, because the monopoly wouldn't permit American concerns to have ore. The monopoly was also able to prevent smelters from being built in Bolivia.

So long as the war was confined to Europe our Asiatic supplies of tin seemed assured. But since Japan began to threaten widespread action in the Pacific our government has become concerned about a possible tin shortage. The Reconstruction Finance corporation made a contract last month with the tin monopoly for 75,000 tons of the metal, a good year's supply, at a cost of 84 million dollars.

Whether delivery will be made depends upon the course of the war. What will happen to an order to the British monopoly if the blitzkrieg succeeds and Japan seizes the British, Dutch, and French Asiatic possessions?

It appears that, as in many other phases of preparedness, the government has neglected strategic materials. It might be a safer move now to foster the construction of smelting plants in Bolivia or in this country to refine Bolivian ore. We would feel more comfortable if ore boats from La Paz were moving this way and if the smelter which the Phelps-Dodge company is building down east had a capacity of 50,000 tons a year instead of only one-twentieth of this amount.

FRENCH LABOR MEETS THE BOSS.

Reports from Vichy predict the coercion of French organized labor and its suppression within the frame of the new dictatorial state. The French authorities who have been thrown to the top by defeat apparently think that the way to get along in life is to adopt the methods which they think defeated them.

If the French workers go the way of the Russian, Italian, and German they may do some thinking themselves and come to the conclusion that the common European lot had a common cause. The Russian workmen threw their lot in with Lenin and created not the dictatorship of the proletariat but the dictatorship over the proletariat. The liquidation of the trades unions was among the early liquefactions.

The Italian workmen as socialists fought the Fascists in the beginning, but as socialists and communists they provoked the Fascist counter revolution, started Mussolini on the march and have been marching to order ever since. The strength of the communist party in German labor made Hitler an attractive but deceptive figure to some German industrialists, notably Thyssen, who learned better with regret.

The French labor front under Blum wrote defeat into French prospects and defeat brought in the Nazi-Fascist model of government which now threatens to destroy the independence of labor for the time being at least. Such independence has never been easier to lose or harder to regain than at present. Freedom may mix its evil with its good. People who have enjoyed and lost it may be in the best position to make a comparison of one condition with the other and to give judgment.

POINTED QUESTION.

The subject of these observations lies on the desk. It lies there because its new possessor does not know what to do with it altho undoubtedly it has been and still is a friend of man. In its long history it has held many things together. The world has suffered much from their disposition to fall apart. E pluribus unum is easier said than done. Many a loose confederation has been achieved by means of this simple article.

The housewife doing some sewing knows what to do with it. She throws it—all of them—on the floor. That is simple but it does not seem to be conclusive. The floor does not seem to be the place for them. Man is reconciled to the fact that one place for them is in his shirts, where they offer something of an adventure if one has plenty of time for it.

The art of using them in a shirt is to hide the blunt end under three folds of cloth and have the sharp end where it can be found by the sensitive finger tip almost at once without at all disclosing where the other end is. If the man threw them on the floor his womenfolk would show him to the dog house—which might reveal how little we really know of our way of living.

There are purposes, however, which are not well served by this little friend altho there are die-hards who persist in such uses. It is not a useful article with which to attach documents to each other. When they and it arrive in the mails the problem now considered arises. What to do with it? You can't put it in with the clips unless you want to find the sharp end every time you reach for one. If you throw it in the paper basket you must reflect that some person takes the stuff out of that basket. You are not only a shirker but a betrayer.

There is nothing to be done with it unless there is a river near by. Then you may carry it to the middle of the bridge and drop it over the rail trusting that it makes a harmless landing and lodging. What to do with a pin?

MOTOR TRIP HOME.

The Hendrik Hudson highway out of New York along the Hudson, the superb span of the George Washington bridge. The swamps of New Jersey and the uplands of Pennsylvania. The Delaware river flowing wide and strong between its hills at the Delaware Water Gap. The Alleghanies, and the valleys and rolling farmland of Pennsylvania. My country, 'tis of thee. Beautiful, magnificent country. Was it Walt Whitman who said: "I say the real and permanent grandeur of these states must be their religion"?

* * *

Black and white cattle in mountain encircled green pastures. The gray green of oats. Golden tasseled young green of corn. Fields of buckwheat, flowering white. Stacked wheat gleaming bronze gold. Comfortable old farm houses. Sweet land of liberty. The words come automatically to mind.

At Mount Pocono, laurel and pine and spruce covered slopes; the flash of swiftly running rivers. I love thy rocks and rills, thy woods and templed hills. "Springbrook Cabins." "Peake's Service Station." "Tourist Home; All Conveniences. "Marie Antoinette Cottages." "Eat Here."

* * *

The Allegheny river at Coudersport. Oil derricks at Kane, and a glimpse of the white pillars of Kane Manor, home of revolutionary and civil war generals, still in the hands of Kanes, but now offering food and rest to the traveler. A glimpse of the broad bosom of Lake Erie, then the flat fields of Ohio. Corn shoulder high, straw stacked in rows of mathematical precision on an unrolled carpet of golden straw. Apple orchards. Van Gogh wheat fields, gleaming amber gold in the sun. The living green of corn. The celadon green of cabbage.

* * *

White lambs and white chicks encircling a tree, pressed close in its shade, looking like a nursery rhyme illustration. "Fred Ehlert, Percheron horses." Indiana woodland and pastureland. Fields of golden stubble and at one spot, where wheat is being threshed, a golden drift over the road. Fields of pink clover scenting the countryside. Long may the land be bright, with freedom's holy light. And again Walt Whitman:

"I see numberless barns, I see the farmers working in their fields and barns,

"I see mechanics working. . . . I see trains of cars swiftly speeding along railroad tracks drawn by locomotives . . ."

* * *

The oil tanks, and factories, and steel mills of Hammond and South Chicago. Lake Michigan, rosy in the sunset, boulevard bordered. Homes, apartment buildings.

"You thought not to destroy these valuable houses, standing fast, full of comfort, built with money,

"May they stand fast, then? Not an hour except you above them and all stand fast. . . .

"O you up there! O pennant!
I see but you. O banner so broad, with stripes,
I sing you only,
Flapping up there in the wind."

Letters and Bombs.

R. W. Daly, young Chicago author of Broadsides to be published next week, in New York last week visiting with his publishers, encountered Mr. Sheed, of Sheed & Ward, British publishers, recently over from England. He had a story to tell that concerned the efforts of the ministry of defense to convince the population that all was secure. The ministry had issued anti-incendiary bomb equipment to those areas threatened with that type of attack. One individualist tried out the equipment and discovered that it didn't work. He wrote bitterly to the ministry: "Gentlemen: Your anti-incendiary bomb equipment isn't any good. . . ." The wheels of ministries grind slowly, but in due time the individual got his reply: "Dear Sir: You must have used the wrong kind of bomb."

EXERCISE IN ARTHRITIS.

THE other day a friend remarked, "I can't understand you doctors. For the same condition, so far as I can see, one will recommend rest, another exertion. Heat will be suggested by Dr. A. and an ice bag by Dr. B. How do you account for these apparent contradictions?"

I tried to explain that they were probably not antagonistic at all and illustrated what I meant by citing the disease arthritis. In this malady there is no difference of opinion relative to confinement to bed for all those who exhibit fever or who have swollen, inflamed joints.

The rule that manipulation should be started just as soon as it can be done without discomfort, is also agreed upon. I have known many individuals who have relapsed into invalidism because they were not willing to make the slightest move to limber up a stiff ankle, for example. In fact, physicians usually instruct the nurse to use pressure on fingers, toes, wrists, elbows, etc., even tho bending is impossible under the patient's own power.

Arthritis—our most universal affliction—affects no two people exactly alike. With some the upper portion of the body may go thru all sorts of antics at the same time that the knees are encased in plaster casts. Nothing will raise the sufferer's morale quite so much as the consciousness that he is not to become a helpless cripple.

During the hot pack period, if he can see that function is returning, he may then commence to help himself. After a half-hour encounter with steaming towels—when the skin is red, moist, and soft—the muscles may be tried out. Massage for 20 minutes or so may be followed by general movements—stopping short of distress.

Even breathing exercises are beneficial and one that is exceedingly simple consists of lying on the back with the knees drawn up, the feet resting on the bed. A book is then placed on the abdomen and the victim is instructed to inhale so as to lift the volume up and down. Air is drawn in slowly altho exhaling should be vigorous. Perhaps within a few days two books may be raised without difficulty.

Use—plus heat—will hasten the manufacture of synovial fluid within the joints and less force is required if the early attempts are made under water. A bathtub two-thirds filled—at a temperature at which a glow is felt—is advised. After soaking for five minutes, begin at the toes and accomplish such flexions and extensions as may be performed. The nurse or attendant can push the parts downward and backward perhaps further than the patient. Then come arm and leg procedures, including the "hinges" at the ankles, knees, hips, wrists, elbows, and shoulders. As the heat increases its penetration, with an augmented blood supply to the area, make-believe bicycle riding may be indulged in, reclining on the back in the tub, with the feet on imaginary pedals above the surface of the water.

There is nothing quite so advantageous as making a real effort—even tho but little success ensues. Some gain will be made each day. Women particularly can knit or crochet and thus rehabilitate the hands. For men, drawing, writing, using scissors, etc., may be substituted. There is but one "best way" to limber up rigid joints and that is to oblige them to work. But we must keep in mind that no pain should result, no rise in temperature, and no great fatigue. Should one of these symptoms appear we may understand that we have been too zealous.

PICK-ME-UP.

T. K. writes: What can be taken between meals for that "all gone" feeling? The patient is on a reducing diet.

REPLY.

A cup or two of tea without sugar will banish fatigue for the time being. This is a useful prescription. A teaspoonful of glycocoll [aminoacetic acid] will do the same thing.

SALT SUBSTITUTE.

W. C. writes: When common table salt is contraindicated, what can be used for seasoning?

REPLY.

Potassium chloride will render food palatable. Only a small amount will be needed.

COLON DISTURBANCE.

E. H. writes: What causes the intestine to become telescoped?

REPLY.

Waves of intestinal movements proceed rhythmically toward the rectum. The exciting force lies in the autonomic [sympathetic] nervous system. Any irritation responsible for nerve impulses, such as excessive contractions due to infection—with diarrhea—may cause a loop of the bowel to fold inside an adjacent segment. Tucking up a sleeve may be cited as an example.

WHICH WILL BE THE NEW MODEL?

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Address Voice of the People, The Tribune.

WHILE OUR CHARITIES SUFFER.

Chicago, Aug. 10.—In a recent issue of The Tribune you say that not one single contribution for the Ice Fund was received in that day's mail. No wonder! For months you have been pounding on the theme that everybody who is anybody is sending whatever she has to give overseas—to rich, rich England! On your society page, I mean. Knowing full well that most women pay 10 times more attention to that page than to the editorials, you have been sponsoring the cause of England and, particularly France, for the last six months, in direct contradiction to the general policy of The Tribune.

Funds for ambulances, for French sailors, for this, that, and anything, just so long as it isn't for the still suffering poor in Chicago. And the bandage rolling and knitting propaganda! If I read again that the élite are never without tiny garments for foreign soldiers in their hands I shall die. [Do pack Cousin Eve in moth balls—we're tired of her passé style.]

The poor are paying for all this free advertising for Chicago's exhibitionists just as they pay for everything. All our local charities are neglected—everything is given to the Red Cross or the many foreign benefits. The old, the sick, the friendless—Chicago's own poor must stand the whole bill. Little children must die for want of milk or ice to keep it fresh, while a hue and cry is raised to provide funds to bring the children of England's millionaires to America—to be supported at the expense of our people. And The Tribune aids and abets all this! I'm surprised. C. B.

LEGAL USE OF THE GUARD.

Chicago, Aug. 9.—I am writing with reference to constitutionality of proposed bill to give the President power to call out the National Guard.

Article 1, section 8, clause 15 of the national constitution provides that the congress shall have power "to provide for calling forth the militia to execute the laws of the Union, suppress insurrections, and repel invasions" [U. S. C. A. Const. Part 1, p. 431]. It is at least a controversial question as to whether the United States has been invaded or is in danger of invasion; however, no mention has been made up to this time of this point.

I wonder if it is not your editorial policy to present such a problem as this.

MORTON S. WOLF.

BENEFITS TO YOUNG MANHOOD.

Chicago, Aug. 9.—Listen to the American Medical association at its Chicago convention in 1918:

"In view of the wonderful mental and physical benefits which have been manifested in the young manhood of America thru intensive military training in the army cantonments, the American Medical association, in annual convention assembled, urges the early adoption of a permanent national policy of universal military training."

As we are in need of those "wonderful mental and physical benefits," it might be a good idea to follow the recommendation of the association until we can invent a better way to get the same results.

WHISPERERS AT WORK.

Elmwood Park, Ill., Aug. 9. — The woman next door gave me the lowdown on why Mr. Willkie will not be elected next November. Probably some of your readers would appreciate hearing it. Some one told her that they know some one who knows Mr. Willkie has a sister in Germany who is married to an official of the Nazi party, and that he also has a cousin there who is the wife of some other high official.

I voted for Roosevelt in 1932 and 1936, but such whispering trash as this along with many other reasons convinces me that I should vote for Wendell Willkie in 1940.

CLIMAX OF CATHOLIC WEEK.

Chicago, Aug. 9.—Last Sunday morning history was made at the American Negro Exposition in the Coliseum. At 11 a. m. Archbishop Stritch entered the Exposition hall with bishops, priests, and sisters representing various orders of the Catholic priesthood and sisterhood. There were more than five thousand Negro and white Catholics praying at this solemn pontifical mass. The mass was said by Bishop Gerou of Natchez, Miss. One of the deacons was a young colored priest, Father Smith, whose family resides in Chicago. The sermon was delivered by the archbishop. The ordinary of the mass was sung by the young people's choir of St. Elizabeth's church.

Fourteen thousand colored Catholics in Chicago are grateful to Father Ryan for his efforts in making the Catholic week at the exposition such a success.

TERESA WHITE.

MR. SLATTERY AND WAR.

Nauvoo, Ill., Aug. 9.—James M. Slattery, United States senator from Illinois, has made this astounding statement:

"I shall vote for Roosevelt because I believe his wisdom has avoided the danger of war in the past and his program is our hope to avoid war in the future."

Mr. Slattery claims to be opposed to the United States getting into the European war. I wonder is he really believes what he says in that statement, or is he so ardent a "yes man," to be so blinded by partisanship and patronage prospects as to force himself to believe black is white.

It is good to think that the day is coming when "Curly" Brooks will step into the senatorial shoes and give Illinois true representation in the United States senate. M. B.

TO SACRIFICE OR NOT.

Chicago, Aug. 8.—I'll confess I am confused:

Mr. Roosevelt says: "We must not sacrifice any of our social gains."

Mr. Hull says "We must all sacrifice for national defense."

Mr. Roosevelt laughs heartily when told navy yard workmen want to work longer hours in the cause of national defense and says they just want to earn more money—thereby becoming capitalists [?].

So, just by whom is the sacrifice going to be made? It seems to me the American people are going to be hard driven to conform to Mr. Roosevelt's pattern or that Mr. Roosevelt in trying to conform to advisers around him will, like the hero in the story, jump on the horse and ride off in all directions. PLENTY CONFUSED.

AGAIN THE FORGOTTEN MAN.

Lombard, Ill., Aug. 9.—There is only one real problem before the country today and that is the "forgotten man."

And now that we hear so much about the President having his conscience down off the shelf, perhaps this group of unfortunates will get attention. Whether share cropper, unskilled or partly skilled part time worker, or highly trained individuals displaced by technological changes or age, the future of such people becomes more insecure.

As our pattern of living grows more complicated and as more workers become further removed from subsistence from the soil larger numbers fail to fit in anywhere. Government has done nothing toward any fundamental problems of unemployment or distribution of goods to those who need the most.

A civilization that fails to find a place for such a large and varied group will be hard to save; and hardly worth saving.

N. D. SHAW.

A REMEDY FOR HISSES.

New York, Aug. 10.—A correspondent of the Voice works up a lather at the practice of movie audiences expressing their disapproval of certain politicians whose likenesses are cast on the silver sheet. In the adolescent days of the cinema ornate, multicolored slides were thrown on the screen inviting trade at commercial establishments, requesting the customers to join in the chorus of the illustrated song, apologizing for change of reel, and requiring the females to remove their hats.

Might not this modus operandi of nickelodeon days be used to salubrious effect in the current crisis? The benign countenance of the Great Presence, flanked by a background representing the Hyde Park archives warehouse and bearing the caption "Don't Hiss Him," should do the trick, NED ALVORD.

[From the Army and Navy Journal.]

Lindbergh—The thunders of the administration have been directed this week upon Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, Air Reserve, because of his radio address last Sunday night in which he assailed the President's foreign policy and insisted that without a strong policy of defense we will not even know what types of planes to build. Administration senators and a section of the press attacked him as a spokesman for Hitler, an intermeddler in foreign affairs, an ignoramus whose only knowledge of aviation, or anything else, came from a spectacular flight across the ocean, and a tool of designing political interests which wrote the speech for him because he was unable to write it himself.

In military and naval circles it is said that no one need hold a brief for Lindbergh; he is able to protect himself. But it is ridiculous to intimate that because he was placed in a position which compelled him to accept a decoration at a time when we were at peace with Germany he has ceased to be a patriotic American. It is equally ridiculous to charge him with intermeddling in foreign affairs when he told inquirers in England of the great German air superiority.

As to his ignorance, his stay in Europe enabled him to gain a thoro understanding of conditions in that continent, and of the rivalries between the different powers. That stay was beneficial to the United States, because as a reserve officer he furnished his government with information, particularly on German developments, that proved to be of inestimable value to the air services, and caused important changes in plane designs. As his address was partly political, the colonel must have expected it to draw fire, but as an American citizen he had the right to express his views, and whether one agrees with them or not one cannot properly question his sincerity, or his anxiety, as he said, to have this country safeguarded as our forefathers did in the past; to this end he urged a greater air force, a greater army, and a greater navy. In order that the air force may be adequate for our national safety he proposed the determination of a definite policy of defense, and pointed out that until such a policy shall be laid down we will not even know what types of planes to build. There is no doubt of the reasonableness of this judgment, and in expressing it his fellow aviators say he has rendered a service which ought to be helpful in the development of a wiser building program.

'NOTHER NERVOUS NELLIE?

[Detroit Free Press.]

The report that 265 Nazis were working on the Panama canal defenses, and that the war department was doing nothing about it, operated in Washington like a sharp tack in a chair seat.

Secretary Stimson asserted hastily that 'twas no such thing. Every single person being used on canal defenses is an American, as the law provides, he said. But, he confided, 81 foreign agents HAD been caught in the zone and were being held for deportation.

However, answer from Panama was that the secretary was a little mixed.

Eighty of the 81 "agents," supposed to be corralled, were inoffensive German-Austrian-Jewish refugees left stranded temporarily by steamship companies. Aside from this, Mr. Stimson's statement was O. K. except that 20,000 British Negroes are working on the canal.

What became of the 265 Nazis nobody seems to know. Perhaps they slipped down a sluice.

Once there was in Washington a secretary of state informally known as "Nervous Nellie." Is his mantle by any chance falling on the bent shoulders of Mr. Stimson?

The end of the disastrous Penobscot expedition of the American revolution. A fleet of Massachusetts and Continental vessels undertook to dislodge a British military-naval force near what is now Castine, Me. The futile assaults lasted three weeks. On this date a British naval squadron arrived from New York, and in two days routed the Americans, who attempted to escape by sailing up the Penobscot river. Most of the American vessels were either captured or destroyed.

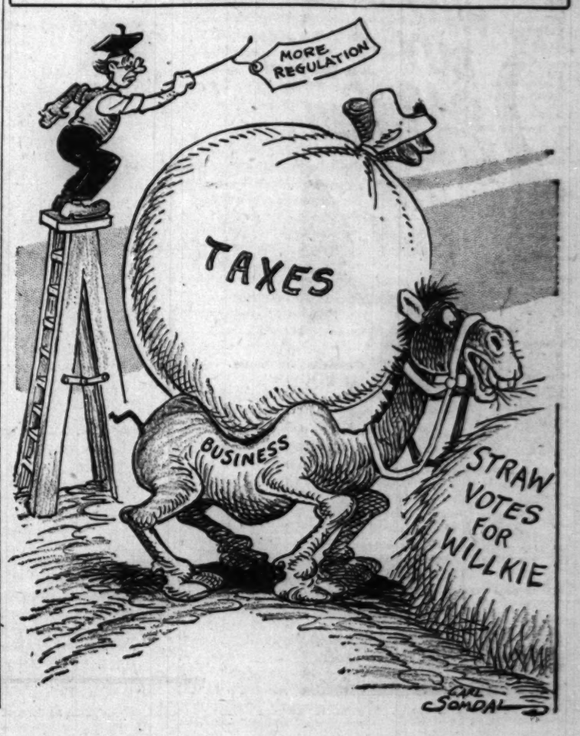
FEELING STRONGER



HURRICANE DEATH TOLL SET AT 35; DAMAGE SEVERE

Many Communities Still Cut Off from World.

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 12 (AP).—The hurricane swept coasts of South Carolina and Georgia counted 35 dead tonight following the worst storm to strike the area in recent years. Damage was estimated at several million dollars as workmen began restoring communication lines crippled by the hurricane.

While authorities attempted to contact isolated towns and islands to check casualties, the Red Cross reported from Washington that it had received word from a coast guard radio truck operating near Beaufort, S. C., that 25 Negroes were known to have been killed on St. Helena Island. Eight Negroes perished on Ladies Island, off Beaufort.

Two persons died during the height of the gale in Savannah, Ga., where the wind at times reached a velocity of 68 miles an hour.

St. Helena Island is off the coast from Beaufort. Red Cross officials recalled that St. Helena Island was in the path of a disastrous hurricane in 1892 when between 8,000 and 9,000 Negroes lost their lives.

Many Boats Lost.

Many small boats were sunk during the hurricane, which yesterday blew in from the Atlantic ocean just above Brunswick, Ga., and struck all along the coast until it blew itself out in the vicinity of Charleston.

The waterfront of the resort city of Beaufort was smashed.

The city remained without power or communication lines tonight. Train schedules were canceled. Streets in the business section ran waist deep with water when the wind and tide swept up the river. Docks were smashed and all except one boat in the harbor were sunk.

The racing yacht Syndicate sank at its moorings. Another 30 foot pleasure boat that came into Beaufort harbor Saturday, as yet unidentified, also sank.

Heavy Damage at Charleston.

Charleston, S. C., Aug. 12 (AP).—The stricken city of Charleston, its utilities and communications systems paralyzed by an 80 mile an hour hurricane that swept out of the Bahamas, counted damage in the hundreds of thousands of dollars tonight as its 75,000 inhabitants struggled to resume a normal way of life.

Altho Charleston's streets were strewn with mud, débris, tin from the roofs of houses and fallen trees, there was no known loss of life here or at nearby beach resorts.

The resort of Folly Island, 10 miles south of here, seemed to have suffered worst. When communicattion with the thin strip of land was restored today, it was found that hundreds of houses were splintered, turned over or partly wrecked. Russell McGowan, Charleston attorney and a resident of the resort, estimated the damage on the island alone to be $1,000,000.

Resorts Still Isolated.

Reports indicated there was much less damage to other resorts near Charleston. Telephone communication was still out with the Isle of Palms and Sullivan's Island—they are in the opposite direction from Folly—but those who visited the areas reported damage was widespread but not heavy.

Extensive damage was done to the Fort Sumter hotel on Charleston's famous battery. At one time yesterday the tide rose till it covered the ground floor of the hostelry.

In and near Charleston, several industrial plants, school buildings, and churches were badly damaged. The loss to one industrial plant alone was put at a quarter million dollars.

Mistakes Barrel for Wife; Hears of It; So Does He

Hull, Mass., Aug. 12 (AP).—A man who mistook a submerged beer keg for his wife was wishing today that the Nantasket beach lifeguards had not bothered to "roll out the barrel." Because when they did, in response to his cries that his wife was drowning, she arrived safely from another part of the beach just in time to learn that he had thought the keg was she. Spectators retreated discreetly while she shrilly told him a thing or two.

TWO JOLTS DEALT DEMOCRATS OVER CAMPAIGN BOOKS

Jackson and Hatch Lay Down the Law.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 12 [Special].—A double barreled jolt was handed to the Democratic party today by Attorney General Robert H. Jackson, a New Deal Democrat close to President Roosevelt, and Senator Carl A. Hatch [D., N. M.], who fathered the clean politics act.

Both jolts were directed at the Democratic campaign book for 1940. The book is similar to the Democratic convention book of 1936, which James A. Farley, retiring national chairman, sponsored as a means of collecting campaign funds from individuals and corporations.

Senator Hatch told his colleagues in the senate that sale of the campaign book would be an evasion of the principle and purpose of the Hatch act and an evasion, if not a violation, of the corrupt practices act.

Explains His Stand.

Hatch conceded that sale of advertising space in the book prior to July 20, when the President signed the measure which forbids the purchase of books from political committees, technically was legal. Sale of the book now, he said, nevertheless would be contrary to the spirit of the law.

Hatch told the senate that since purchase of advertising space in the book had been solicited from corporations, this amounted to an indirect contribution to the Democratic party, political parties. Advertising rates for the campaign book were said to range from $2,500 to $5,000 a page. The corrupt practices act specifically forbids corporations to contribute to

Told of a reported plan of the national committee to distribute the books thru state and county Democratic organizations, Attorney General Jackson replied that the justice department does not believe state laws could make permissible that which federal laws forbid.

Cites Quayle Statement.

"The statement issued by Oliver B. Quayle Jr., treasurer of the Democratic national committee, concerning the Democratic campaign book of 1940 has been brought to my attention," said Jackson. "Mr. Quayle is reported to have said that the plans for distribution of this publication is to send it to the various state and county organizations for redistribution.

"According to his statement, the price of 25 cents appears on the cover so that any state or local organization which might be permitted by its own laws to sell such a book cannot charge more thar 25 cents, which covers the cost of handling and postage.

"Since this statement may be interpreted by others to mean that state laws could make permissible that which a federal law prohibits, I think it only fair to point out that no such view has been accepted or approved by the department of justice."

Rankin Voices Resentment.

In the house, Representative John E. Rankin [D., Miss.] gave voice to Democratic resentment against the wave of criticism directed at the party on the ground it was violating the Hatch act thru sale of the campaign book advertising space.

Shortly after the house convened Rankin rose from his seat waving a letter and charged that the Republican national committee is sending out chain letters to solicit funds for the campaign of Wendell L. Willkie, Republican Presidential nominee.

"If the Republicans are going to criticize the Democrats for accepting advertising in their campaign book and then use a chain letter system, they have to be pretty far afield," said Rankin. "These letters advise everybody to send in certain amounts of money to the Willkie headquarters and at the same time send multiple copies of the letters to others for like donations."

Martin Strikes Back.

At this point Democratic members were beaming on their colleagues across the aisle, one or two even rising to hoot derisively at the Republican section.

Then Representative Joseph W. Martin of Massachusetts, chairman of the Republican national committee, was recognized by the chair and tossed the accusation back so quickly that the satisfied grins turned to expressions of dismay.

"I am surprised," said Martin, "that the gentleman from Mississippi [Rankin] is so simple as to think we would have to resort to a method like that to raise money for our campaign. Those letters have nothing to do with the Republican party, its national committee, nor any one running the campaign for Mr. Willkie.

Welcomes Investigation.

"Of course we can't do anything about the letters, and we are powerless to stop people from sending them, but if Attorney General Jackson or any one else wants to look into it we would welcome his intervention. The Republican party never would condone such a scheme for raising money."

Rankin sat down without another word as observers commented that the chain letter investigation which Martin said he would welcome is something the Democrats would not welcome regarding their campaign book.

The chain letters violate no provision of the Hatch act, and the justice department said this afternoon it contemplates no action or investigation.

Flynn Replies to Willkie.

New York, Aug. 12 [Special].—Edward J. Flynn, Tammany leader and Democratic boss of the Bronx, today defended the Democratic national committee from Wendell L. Willkie's attack on the Democratic campaign book, saying that all advertising contracts for the book were entered into before the Hatch act became a law.

Flynn, selected by President Roosevelt as the new chairman of the committee, said that no more advertising was being solicited and that none would be.

Willkie, Republican Presidential nominee, warned corporation officials in a statement yesterday that he would prosecute violations of the Hatch act relentlessly if he became President. He spoke particularly of the campaign book.

Flynn asserted today Willkie "is perfectly safe in making this threat as long as that huge 'if' is in the way."

TWO SENATORS TRYING TO FOIL BRIDGES OUSTER

They Want to Substitute a Resolution.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 12.—An attempt to kill the bill previously passed by the house to deport Harry Bridges, revolutionary west coast leader of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, was made today by two members of a senate immigration subcommittee—Lewis B. Schwellenbach [D., Wash.], a New Deal yesman, and Warren R. Austin [R., Vt.], assistant Republican leader of the senate.

Overriding Senator William H. King [D., Utah], chairman of the three man subcommittee, the politically remarkable Schwellenbach-Austin duet voted to substitute for the house bill a resolution directing the attorney general to investigate the Bridges case and institute deportation proceedings under existing law if, in his opinion, such action is warranted by the facts.

The Deportation Bill.

The bill passed by the house by a 2 to 1 vote orders Bridges deported without further ado. Senator King supported the house bill in the subcommittee and will do so, he said, when the full committee meets tomorrow. Furthermore, if the full committee does not approve the house bill, he will take a minority report to the floor of the senate, he declared. The tenor of recent debate has indicated overwhelming approval of the Bridges deportation bill.

In resorting to the extraordinary course of passing special legislation to deport Bridges, the house registered its impatience with Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, who has been accused before committees and on the floors of both houses of flouting the immigration and deportation laws to admit and protect alien communists, anarchists, and other radicals, especially labor agitators.

More than three years ago West Coast agents of the Bureau of Immigration and Naturalization demanded that Bridges, an Australian born alien, be deported as a member of the communist party and as an advocate in his own right of force and violence to overthrow the American form of government.

Trial by New Dealer.

Madame Secretary Perkins refused to take any action until the congressional pressure could no longer be ignored. Finally, in 1939, she instituted deportation proceedings, but appointed James M. Landis, dean of the Harvard law school and a former New Deal official, as a special trial examiner to hear the evidence. Landis reported that the witnesses who testified that they had attended secret communist meetings with Bridges were not trustworthy persons and that Bridges, altho an energetic revolutionary, neither belonged to the communist party nor advocated forcible overthrow of the government.

Secretary Perkins thereupon dismissed the deportation warrant and washed her hands of the Bridges case.

Altho some members of the house called the Bridges deportation measure a bill of attainder, repugnant to the constitution, Senator King declared that no such contention was made by Senators Austin and Schwellenbach. Such a contention, he said, could not be supported. Their position, he said, was that congress should not pass special legislation if existing law is adequate to deport Bridges.

A "Tame" Republican.

Formerly one of the most consistent opponents of New Deal acts and policies, Senator Austin now is the favorite "tame" Republican of the New Dealers.

His popularity with the New Dealers, which he appears to enjoy immensely, springs from his vigorous support of the administration's interventionist foreign policy on which he is consulted not infrequently by President Roosevelt.

BARTON FIGURES N. Y. FOR WILLKIE BY A LANDSLIDE

Bases Estimate on Poll of Democrats.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 12.—Basing his statement on the results of a postcard survey conducted among the registered Democratic voters in his own district, Representative Bruce Barton [R., N. Y.] today predicted that President Roosevelt will lose from one-quarter to one-third of his 1936 vote in New York and that the Republican candidate, Wendell L. Willkie, will win a sweeping victory in that state this fall.

Two Questions Asked.

Cards were sent to an equal number of men and women voters on the Democratic polling lists, Barton explained. They were asked:

"For whom did you vote in 1936?"

"For whom do you intend to vote in 1940?"

For those who replied that they voted for Mr. Roosevelt in 1936, Barton announced, only 62.5 per cent propose to vote for him this fall. The other 37.5 per cent is divided, 34 for Willkie and 3.5 per cent undecided.

Of the Democratic voters who cast their ballots for Alf Landon four years ago, 16.3 per cent expected to vote for President Roosevelt this November while 83.7 per cent will vote for the Republican candidate, Barton's figures showed.

First Voters Polled.

Those who did not vote in 1936, including first voters, say they will vote in this election, 20 per cent for a third term for Mr. Roosevelt and 70 per cent for Willkie with 10 per cent still undecided.

"The total vote, arrived at by adding together the replies of these three groups, gives Roosevelt 51.7 per cent of the registered Democrats of the district, Willkie 45 per cent, with 3.3 per cent undecided," Representative Barton said.

"From my poll I believe a conservative deduction would be that Mr. Roosevelt will suffer a defection of from a quarter to a third of his New York vote of four years ago."

Altho Barton sent out only 1,000 cards he said they were so well distributed that he believes they presented a good cross section.

BAR COMMUNIST PARTY ENTRY ON ARIZONA BALLOT

Phoenix, Ariz., Aug. 12 (AP).—The secretary of state's office banned the Communist party from the Sept. 10 primary and November general elections today.

As no official notification of the action was sent to Morris Graham, executive secretary of the party in Arizona, Gov. Bob Jones expressed "100 per cent approval." Dan Garvey, assistant secretary of state, who wrote the letter in the absence of his chief, Harry M. Moore, said the only way the communists could get on the ballot would be to bring mandamus actions.

Enjoined in West Virginia.

HIGHLAND PARKER SETS FORTH ON A 1 MAN BLITZKRIEG

Wallace Loverin Clark, 39 years old, a real estate dealer at 30 North Michigan avenue, woke up yesterday in the Highland Park police station to learn that he had put in a busy Sunday night.

Wallace L. Clark.

His wife, Mary Louise, 34, arriving home from Green Lake, Wis., found that Clark had gone in for rearmament. He tuned up on the lawn with a .32 caliber automatic and fired three shots at his home at 276 Cedar avenue, Highland Park. Mrs. Clark called the police. When Policemen James Berube and Jack Ohlwein responded, Clark hid behind the front door, took them by surprise, and seized their guns. He accidentally discharged Berube's gun, but hit no one.

While he was holding the policemen at bay, Mrs. Clark put in another call to the station. Policeman Harry Lehr came in the back door, and altho Clark fired a shot which passed over his shoulder, managed to knock both guns from the householder's hands. Berube and Ohlwein joined in subduing him. Clark, held to the grand jury in $5,000 bail by Magistrate Henry Hansen on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon, said it must have been something he drank at the Exmoor Country club.

IT'S A FAST PACE FOR TONY MARTIN, BUT IT SUITS HIM

Star of Thursday W-G-N Show Likes Action.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Tony Martin, the singing movie star, is having just the kind of a week he enjoys. Besides doing four and five shows a day at the Chicago theater, he is rehearsing for his guest appearance Thursday night on In Chicago Tonight over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system. And every chance he gets, he expects to go to one of the baseball parks to see either the Cubs or White Sox play.

Baseball interests Tony almost as much as music. He hopes to buy an interest in a ball club some day. And to music he is willing to give 18 hours a day. Tony will sing several of the songs he has helped popularize when he appears on In Chicago Tonight, which will be aired from 7:30 to 8 p. m. Thursday. Among these will be "Sierra Sue" and "I'll Never Smile Again."

Ted Lewis Also Featured.

Other notables who will appear on the broadcast are Ted Lewis, the showman and band leader, who is appearing at the Chez Paree; Nan Wynn, singer with Raymond Scott's orchestra at the Sherman hotel, and Sabu, the "Elephant Boy." The youthful East Indian actor will be on hand to give a preview of the new Alexander Korda technicolor picture, "The Thief of Bagdad" in which he is starred.

William A. Bacher will produce the show. A special musical setting will be provided by the W-G-N Dance orchestra, directed by Harold Stokes.

Tony Martin said yesterday that he is always happy when playing engagements in Chicago. A Californian, he made his first appearance outside his native state in Chicago with Tom Gerun's orchestra at A Century of Progress.

Hollywood Calls Him.

A year later when playing an engagement with the orchestra in San Francisco, Cal., Martin got a call one night from a Hollywood executive, who invited him to try out for a singing picture.

During the intervening four years Tony has made many pictures and appeared on a host of network radio shows, the last being the series with Andre Kostelanetz's orchestra last year. He married Alice Faye, the actress. Recently they were divorced. But they are still good friends, he said yesterday.

After his W-G-N appearance Thursday, Tony will return to Hollywood to prepare for a new musical picture for M-G-M. He is now finishing a successful tour that has taken him into 15 states.

"I will play a dual role in the new picture," he said. "Wouldn't it be funny if the critics said, 'He is good in one part; but lousy in the other.'"

Ex-Cop Accused of Stealing Cab and Picking Up Fares

August Woerner, 48 years old, a former city policeman who was discharged in 1933 for drinking on duty, was arrested last night on a charge of stealing a taxicab. Sergt. Robert Ryan said Woerner took the cab in front of 729 North Clark street, donned a chauffeur's cap, and cruised for fares. He was arrested after delivering three passengers to Clark street and Chicago avenue, near where he obtained the cab. Woerner lives at 1332 North La Salle street.

ORDERS INTEREST FREED ON BONDS OF SURFACE LINES

Court Blames Council for Transit Merger Delay.

Judge Michael L. Igoe of the federal District court yesterday authorized the immediate payment, which he had previously delayed, of $1,817,959 in interest due Aug. 1 on $72,718,000 of surface lines first mortgage bonds.

At the same time Judge Igoe asserted that the responsibility for completing the drafting of a unified traction ordinance rests with the city council.

"I don't see why the bondholders should be penalized simply because the city council does not submit a traction ordinance," Judge Igoe said.

Audited Report Made.

On July 24 the court delayed a ruling on the bondholders' petition for the interest, and ordered Walter A. Shaw, court traction adviser, to make an audited report on the earnings and cash balances available for interest.

Shaw reported last week that the surface lines' interest had been earned before any deduction was made for a disputed reserve of 3 per cent of gross revenues which is being set aside under a court order of July, 1938. After subtracting this reserve, Shaw found, the earnings were short of interest requirements. The city claims it is entitled to the 3 per cent as compensation for the use of streets, and the lines dispute the claim.

Judge Igoe said this dispute is to be settled under terms of the proposed ordinance and that it should not be used to penalize the bondholders. The proposed merger plan would set up one company to operate the surface and elevated lines, bus routes, and the subway.

Traction Counsel Heard.

After Judge Igoe had declared that it is up to the council to act, William H. Sexton, special city traction counsel, asked to be heard.

"Your honor, I am loath to say it, but I must say that in my opinion it would be folly for the council to go ahead and pass an ordinance until the negotiators for the lines have expressed their views on all parts of the ordinance," Sexton said. "We have a conference scheduled this afternoon between the city's transportation committee and the lines' negotiators. Shall we go ahead with the conference?"

Judge Igoe remarked that it didn't make much difference what the court said about the conference.

"The conference will be held anyway," Judge Igoe said. "The best thing you groups do is to hold conferences. Forget about conferences. The council should pass an ordinance. Then we can find out whether it is acceptable to the lines. Quit trying to fool the people of Chicago."

Pension Plan Discussed.

At the meeting yesterday afternoon Edward E. Brown, spokesman for the transit lines, submitted a counter proposal for a temporary pension plan for employés of the unified company. The employés in June asked for $50 a month pensions in addition to federal social security benefits.

Brown proposed that employés over 65 and those unable to work be paid monthly pensions which, with social security benefits, would total $50 a month. The plan would remain in effect until a permanent plan, requiring contributions from both the company and employés, could be worked out.

William Levine, attorney for union representatives of the street railway workers, said the lines' offer was wholly inadequate.

Ald. James R. Quinn [50th], council transportation committee chairman, said the committee would try to settle the dispute. The lines and the committee discussed six of the 30 sections in the traction ordinance draft and referred them to a joint committee for revisions in legal phraseology. Fourteen sections remain to be discussed at a meeting set for Thursday.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Advance Agent

SMITTY — A LIGHT DISCUSSION

Shoots Hubby, Self

Mrs. Lavinia Janetos and husband, James, whom she shot twice before ending own life in cafe quarrel.

A quarrel between an estranged husband and wife at a table in the restaurant at 955 Madison street last night ended in a fatal shooting. The wife, Mrs. Lavinia Janetos, 38 years old, 827 East 42d street, killed herself after twice wounding the husband, James Janetos, 25, of 1023 Madison street.

Janetos is a waiter in a lunchroom at 937 Madison street. Police said Mrs. Janetos followed him into the restaurant. After a few minutes of heated conversation, she drew a revolver from her purse. She fired two shots at Janetos, then placed the gun muzzle to her temple and pulled the trigger again.

Mrs. Janetos died en route to Jefferson Park hospital. Janetos, shot in the back and left arm, was taken to the Bridewell hospital. Relatives said the couple had been married a year, and separated two months ago. Two suicide notes were found in Mrs. Janetos' blouse. They did not intimate that she intended to kill her husband as well as herself.

Fingerprint records at the detective bureau revealed Mrs. Janetos had a record as a shoplifter dating back to 1919. She served several short terms in the Bridewell and in 1936 was sentenced to a year in the women's reformatory at Dwight on a larceny charge.

PREDICT FAILURE TO COLLECT 1-5TH OF REALTY LEVY

At least 22 million dollars, or one-fifth of the 1939 real estate taxes billed in Cook county, will still be uncollected at the end of this year, the Citizens' Committee on Tax Collections predicted yesterday. The estimate was based on collection figures so far this year.

The committee reported that realty tax collections for all prior levies in the first seven months of this year totaled $83,533,364, or $3,246,408 less than receipts for the comparable period last year. The report warned that continued increases in tax rates will result from the chronic tax delinquency.

The committee urged expansion and acceleration of two programs now used for collecting back taxes—forfeiture foreclosure sales held at the request of the state's attorney's office, and instalment payment plans set up by the county bureau of delinquent taxes. The report said the bureau has been used this year by 6,006 taxpayers who have contracted to pay in instalments $1,588,675, and already paid $872,012.

MECHANIC KILLED AS DIVE BOMBER CRASHES IN TEST

Santa Monica, Cal., Aug. 12 (AP).—A big bombing plane, designed for war use in Europe, crashed and burned today on a test flight, killing Mechanic John Parks. Pilot Robert Brush and Flight Engineer Paul Dennis jumped from the plane, a Douglas DB-7, in their parachutes.

The DB-7 was a twin motored dive bomber similar to the one that crashed here in January, 1939, killing its pilot and injuring a French army officer who was riding as an observer.

Douglas officials said the cause of today's crash had not been determined, but that an investigation was launched immediately by Douglas engineers, government officials, and Civil Aeronautics association experts.

Prior to her defeat by Germany, France had ordered 100 of the Douglas dive bombers at a cost of $12,000,000. Several of the bombers were completed and delivered to France before the French-German armistice.

Plane Burns; One Missing.

Cape May, N. J., Aug. 12 (AP).—A United States navy plane today burst into flames four miles offshore, its rescued naval reserve pilot said, and plunged into the Atlantic ocean as he and a companion bailed out. The companion was missing.

Lieut. C. E. Rieben Jr., 32 years old, of Harrisburg, Pa., was quoted by Irwin Yost, coast guardsman who rescued him aboard a picket boat, as saying he and W. C. Sayers of Philadelphia, naval reserve first class seaman, had been flying a half hour when the accident occurred.

"There was a sudden explosion and we were surrounded by burning gasoline as we bailed out," Yost quoted Lieut. Rieben.

$853,607 OF CITY'S FUNDS SPENT TO EXPAND AIRPORT

The city has spent $853,607 on its airport expansion project, including $562,091 now on deposit to cover the cost of building a new railroad right of way adjacent to the airport, Joseph F. Grossman, first assistant corporation counsel, reported to the city council yesterday.

The Chicago and Western Indiana railroad is expected to begin work this week on its new right of way so that its tracks bisecting the airport can be removed.

Grossman submitted a breakdown of the airport costs as follows:

Construction work	$587,717
Judgments and costs	222,906
Appraisal cost	15,388
Title searches and guaranties policy	12,269
Courts costs, witness fees, trial expense	10,327
Engineering expense	5,000
	$853,607

Grossman said the city has finished its part of the track relocation project which was started in June, 1938. Railroad officials estimate that it will take six or eight months to finish the new track construction and removal of old tracks.

Kemmerer, Wyo., Aug. 12 (AP).—More than a thousand men from southwestern Wyoming, eastern Idaho, and Utah battled two lightning-caused fires today in the Wyoming national forest north of here.

Junior League of Evanston Will Operate Thrift Shop

BY JUDITH CASS.

THRIFT HOUSE, Evanston's White Elephant Rummage shop, has had rather a shabby air about it lately, but this fall it will blossom forth like a debutante. The Evanston Junior league has taken over the shop as a permanent project to raise funds for the dental dispensary the league supports.

Thrift house was founded in the spring of 1919 by a committee of Evanstonians who belonged to the Drama club, among them Mrs. Arthur Betts, Mrs. William Alexander, and Miss Harriet Clifton. It was incorporated in July that year, and was opened at 926 Chicago avenue, the shop's present address.

Ten thousand dollars was realized in the first year of operation. The profits continued at about that level until the peak year of 1926 when nearly $13,000 was turned over to the eight Evanston agencies on the beneficiary list. In recent years, however, the shop has not been doing so well and the committee in charge finally decided to turn it over to a group of younger women who would provide new stimulus.

Every Member of League Will Help in the Work.

The Evanston league always has been noted for the way its entire membership acts as one unit. This summer and fall every active, provisional, and honorary member will help in preparing the shop for its grand reopening on Monday, Sept. 16. Between now and then two sales will be held to rid the shop of all stock on hand, one some time this week, another during the last week of August. Then Mrs. Chester Goltra and Mrs. Walter Clyde Jones, two of the league's most artistic members, and a crew of helpers will move in to redecorate completely.

The shop is to be done over in red, white, and blue—white woodwork, blue walls, and red trimmings. It will be filled with an entirely new stock, mostly clothing, but a bargain hunter will be apt to find almost anything there. The annals of Thrift shop show that once upon a time three horses were donated to the shop—and sold.

Miss Helen Chapman Chairman of Board.

Miss Helen Chapman is chairman of the special board that will run the shop. Her first assistant will be Mrs. Rodney C. Irwin, who will have charge of volunteer salesgirls. Mrs. John B. Townes, secretary, and Mrs. Drennan Slater and Mrs. Henry P. C. W. Barber, treasurer and assistant treasurer, have other important duties.

Mrs. Frank Corliss and Mrs. Newton Tobey will be in charge of pricing; Mrs. A. Innes Mackenzie and Miss Alicia Barber will take care of window displays; Mrs. Fred Hawley and Miss Elizabeth Watkins will solicit donations; Mrs. Carl B. Davis Jr. and Miss Gertrude Dolese will take charge of collections and Mrs. Courtenay Davis and Mrs. William E. Montgomery will have the important job of reconditioning clothing and bric-a-brac for the showcases.

The eight agencies that have been benefiting from the shop's proceeds are not to be disinherited by the new management. Each will continue to receive its fair share of the profits. The league's first fall meeting will be held at the Georgian hotel on Sept. 9, the Monday before Thrift house will be reopened.

Settlement Junior Board to Have Starlight Sail.

Away or a starlight sail tonight will go members of the north shore junior board of Northwestern university settlement, their husbands, beaux, and friends up to the number of 2,000. That is the capacity of the S. S. Roosevelt, which will bear the merry crew out to the lake promptly at 9:30 o'clock, leaving from the Navy pier.

Several gay parties have been planned to precede the cruise, among them cocktail parties at which the Robert Pearses and Miss Dorothy Meaker will be hosts; an out-of-doors buffet supper at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Hibbins, and a Dutch treat picnic which has been organized by Mr. and Mrs. Drury Davis and the James Penningtons.

To the regret of their many friends here, Rear Admiral and Mrs. William Carleton Watts have left the Great Lakes Naval Training station permanently. Yesterday they went east to join their daughter, Mrs. Ernest B. Tracy, at her summer home, Hamilton house, in Cobourg, Ont., for a six week visit. Admiral Watts is being detached from his duties because of ill health, and soon will be placed on the retired list of officers of the navy. He and Mrs. Watts expect to make their home near Philadelphia, where they will go this fall.

North Shore Welcomes Commander Settle Family.

The Henry T. Settle family is being welcomed back to the north shore by their many friends, for they lived here before when Commander Settle was at the Great Lakes Naval Training station. He retired from active service three years ago and went to San Diego to reside, but now he has been called back for active duty. The Settles have taken a house in Washington road, Lake Forest, into which they will move tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip T. Atwood [June Beebe] of Glencoe are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son last Friday at the Evanston hospital. The baby has been named James Trowbridge for his paternal grandfather. He and his sisters, Judy and Jill, are grandchildren of the Archie L. Beebes of Glencoe.

Mrs. Woolsey Pollock and her daughter, Anne, who returned recently to their home in Lake Forest from a visit in Watch Hill, R. I., with Anne's grandfather, Oren E. Taft, will depart in about 10 days for Sun Valley. Mr. Pollock and Oren Pollock left yesterday to motor to the Idaho resort. The family will be there until the second week in September.

Faithful Again Sit in Rain for Park Concert

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Readers who are weary of all the rain and wind that have mussed up this column during the last few weeks may take what comfort they can in the knowledge that the writer of the column is equally weary and—in the literal sense—much wetter. Especially since the same old thing happened again last night in Grant park, where rain beat a dreary accompaniment to the singing of Julius Huehn and the playing of Hans Lange and the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

The audience consisted of those same faithful hundreds—people who have become impervious to rain, wind, heat, cold, mud, and dust, and who would gladly sit out a reproduction of the blizzard of '88 rather than miss a particularly succulent aria. They simply moved in closer to the band shell and kept encouraging Mr. Huehn by their clapping.

Mr. Huehn, the Metropolitan Opera association's youngest baritone, sang excerpts from "Scipio," "The Flying Dutchman," "Carmen," "The Valkyrie," and "Tannhäuser." In music like Wotan's farewell and the song to the evening star his light, beautifully textured voice was heard to excellent advantage. However, the "Toreador Song" simply did not come off, for no amount of lyricism can here take the place of a confident ring and great rhythmic strength.

The Chicago Symphony orchestra, backing up out of the rain, played Handel's sixth concerto grosso, Albert Noelte's intense and moving new symphonic prolog to "François Villon," the seguidilla from "Carmen," and "Siegfried's Rhine Journey" from "Twilight of the Gods." Toward the end the audience had an experience which is never vouchsafed to us in Orchestra hall—that of being able to follow Mr. Lange's every gesture by watching the perfect reflection of him in a puddle of rain water in front of the stage.

Beach and Pool Courses in Life Saving Started

Free life saving classes were begun yesterday at five beaches and eight outdoor pools of the Chicago park district. Classes will be two hours daily and will continue two weeks. Children and adults completing the course will be awarded American Red Cross life saving emblems and pins. Instructions are given in water safety, small craft safety, equipment rescue, and swimming rescue. Classes are being held at the Calumet, Jackson, 31st street, North avenue, and Montrose-Wilson beaches and at pools in Washington, Russell Square, Gage, Garfield, Riis, California, Independence, and Portage parks.

The Housewife

Last year we greatly admired a charming gadget brought back from Holland by friends. It was a little individual lemon squeezer of pewter, just large enough to sqeeze the lemon in your iced tea or on your serving of fish. It was shaped like two leaves, and you slipped the piece of lemon between them and then squeezed. Now you can get this convenient little item here, and tho it's not made of pewter it is just as effective and, also, it's much cheaper. It has a little standard, and you place one before each guest at dinner.

Thru the LOOKING GLASS

Not only the skin but the hair can be burned by the blazing hot sun. If you protect your hair with a special preparation and are moderate about staying in the sun, you can make unnecessary frantic efforts to recondition your hair in the fall.

All the women we know are pretty cagey about guarding their skin against sunburn. Complexion protectives are part of their regular equipment when they swim, sail, golf, or just loaf. But we don't find one in ten who thinks to shield her hair or realizes that sun can damage hair as much as it can the skin.

Thinking of all the laments about strawlike hair that we'll be hearing in the fall when hair must be subjected to its usual autumn permanent, we'd like to put in a little plea right now for better hair care. Prevention of the damage is a lot better than frantic efforts to recondition the locks after the damage has been done.

Sunning and swimming take the oil out of hair—which means that the women who go in for such things must redouble their efforts at restoring the oil. They should brush like mad, should use scalp lubricants if necessary and should use something that gives protection from the coarsening effects.

There are such things, you know. One of the best hair specialists has a lotion to be sprayed on with an atomizer or applied sparingly with cotton. It is an excellent antidote for the damage done by sun rays. It doesn't make the hair unduly greasy and can be—and should be—used by both men and women.

A preparation like this, good as it is, can't work miracles. If you're to be absolutely baking—say as you would be sailing on a blazing day—cover your head with a light scarf or hat. Don't bind the hair down too tightly.

After a swim, if your hair got soaked, have a shampoo. The benefits of freeing the hair of that water will be worth your trouble.

Style Creator Sees America World Leader

America once aped Europe's automobiles, but, once it struck out for itself, it excelled the world. With the help of such stimuli as THE TRIBUNE'S American Fashions contest, it likewise can lead the world in fashion.

This is the thought of J. A. Livingston, executive director of the Style Creators of Chicago, who yesterday added his encomiums to those pouring into the Tribune offices since its first announcement, three weeks ago, of a nation-wide contest to give recognition to the American dress designer.

Mr. Livingston termed the contest an important contribution to the program of American design for American women. Its goal is to focus attention on America as fashion center of the world as well as to encourage original American design.

"As a matter of fact," he said, "a large percentage of American styles have been dependent on Paris only for the original inspiration.

"When I was a sportswear manufacturer in New York my designers went to Paris and bought many models, but we never thought of using these models exactly as Paris made them. We took the predominating silhouette and then a sleeve from one, a neckline from another or a pleat from a third, and added our own American ideas of what the American shops were ready to accept for their customers.

"There is no good reason why silhouettes, sleeves, necklines and everything else cannot be designed in America.

"Popularly priced women's clothes manufactured here already are as far ahead of the rest of the world in style, value and wearability as our automobiles are ahead in value and performance."

The contest is open to professional and amateur designers thruout the country and carries $7,500 in cash awards. There will be one prize of $3,000, one of $2,000, three of $500, and 20 of $50.

All sketches and designs must be in the Tribune Tower by midnight, Aug. 22. The winning designs, which THE TRIBUNE will have made into garments, will be modeled at two style shows in the W-G-N audience studio on Oct. 2. A description of the gowns will be broadcast from coast to coast.

Looking at Hollywood
By John Chapman

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 12.—I asked the auditing department at Twentieth Century-Fox to go thru its books to find the lowest paid grown-up on the lot.

They turned up Duane Faralla, 24, who is in a low paid group but not quoted at the bottom because he got a $1.50 raise to $19.50 a week a while back. Here is a story: not a sob story about a poor wage slave, but an illustration of the point that movie making isn't all $100,000 a year stuff. He isn't sorry for himself, is doing what he wants to do, plans to get somewhere and probably will, and says he's getting a higher scale than he would in some other studios.

Duane is in the mail department. He was born in Brooklyn and came here in 1934. His father used to be financial controller at First National, but has no movie connections now. Dad helped Duane's brother, Bill, 27, get a movie job, and now Bill is a second assistant director. Duane got his job on his own, and it took two and a half years of coming back and filing more applications to get it. He chose the mail room because he'd heard that was the best way of breaking into a studio.

He went to work in May, 1939, at $18 per week. Six months later he got a raise. It will be another year before he gets another $1.50 raise, unless a break comes somewhere. He had one break once, but it didn't last. An artist, he finally landed a job in the blueprint section of the art department, at $25, but an economy cut drove him back to the mail room. He'll get out again and into the art department. Before he landed his job he was on the WPA, designing federal theater sets and costumes.

Duane checks in at 9:30 a. m., and until 10 a. m. is on call for specials. If an executive or writer or publicity man wants an interoffice message carried, he carries it. At 10 he "takes an in." An "in" is a tour of all the offices, except those of the big executives, in the administration building. He delivers messages and picks up others. Under Zanuck, Twentieth Century is a snowstorm of interoffice memos. Another division of the mail department handles United States mail.

Duane's "in" takes 15 or 20 minutes for the three floors. Then he goes back to the mail room to sort his collection into four boxes—in, out, executives [this box is cleared every quarter hour] and research. Until 11 he's on special calls, then he takes an "out." An "out" takes him everywhere on the south end of the lot—writers' buildings, camera, script, property, and drapery departments, and occasionally the stages. He likes the stage visits because he can look at the sets. He doesn't pay much attention to the actors and has no autograph collection. An "out" takes 45 minutes.

From 11:45 to 1 Duane is on special call, then he drives to Beverly Hills for lunch in his 1929 Ford. He borrowed $100 from the studio loan fund to buy it.

In the afternoon he is on call until 3. Then he takes half an "out," splitting the tour with another boy for speed's sake, because this "out" is for delivery of call sheets. The call sheets are the all-important details of the next day's work on all stages. From 3:30 to 5 Duane runs special messages, then he takes his last "in" and another half "out" at 5:45. He's thru work at 6:30.

SYNOPSIS.

Detective Patrick Doyle of New York is vacationing in a small town when, while walking in the woods of the estate of Adolf Wunsch, ex-brewer, he stumbles on a skeleton. He reports to Truman Briault, Wunsch's brother-in-law, rejects the bribe Briault offers to keep the matter quiet, and goes to the police. Returning to the scene with Policeman Madden and Judge Blain, he finds the skeleton gone, but by trailing fresh footprints they find where it has been hastily buried. Dr. Blake, the coroner, says the skeleton is that of a teen age girl who was murdered. Doyle is asked to help solve the mystery. Further search of the Wunsch grounds near where the skeleton was first discovered results in finding blue yarn, a watch clasp, slipper heels, and a bullet. Doyle learns that beautiful Paula Briault married Wunsch for his money three years ago and has led a miserable and lonely existence ever since. He has allowed her brother and mother to live with him, his 18 year old daughter, Texie and his aged father, but he dominates the household, giving Paula charge accounts but no money. Miss Doty, a trained nurse, cares for the elder Wunsch. Over a year ago Wunsch, realizing that Paula was trying to marry Truman to Texie to solve his financial problems, sent Texie to Europe for an extended tour, with Mrs. Briault as chaperone. Lately Wunsch has been driving to town with Fellins, his chauffeur, every night, and Paula, becoming suspicious, put detectives on his trail. Helen Voss, Texie's best friend and companion, has not been heard of since Texie sailed. Doyle learns that the blue yarn came off a sweater belonging to Truman and that the watch clasp, identical with the clasp on the watch Wunsch gave Paula as a wedding gift, belonged to a watch Wunsch gave some one 13 months after his wedding. When Doyle tells Paula about the watch clasp she faints. Doyle questions Wunsch about Helen Voss and catches him in so many lies that Doyle decides to go to the local newspaper office and look over some old papers.

READY TO TALK.

INSTALMENT XX.

Doyle spent more than an hour skimming items of local gossip. Anything relative to the Wunsch family was front page stuff. But he couldn't take it for granted that Helen Voss' equivocal position in the family would rate her the same publicity. So he pored over the columns of local gossip—accounts of illness, and church doings, and who visited whom.

At length he had his reward when he came upon a neat little item under a June 22 date of the previous year:

Miss Helen Voss, who has been living for the past several years at the residence of Mr. Adolph Wunsch, has moved to New York City. Helen will take a secretarial course at the well known Gage Business school and plans later to accept position with some New York business concern. Good luck, Helen! Don't forget your Beachville friends!

The June 15 issue of the previous year contained the account of Texie's sailing on the Philippe on June 13. It was a long verbose article, giving a complete itinerary of the proposed trip and a description of the traveling costumes of Miss Wunsch and the Comtesse Paul de Briault, the mother of Mrs. Wunsch.

Doyle noted that the trip was scheduled to end in April of the present year. He wondered why it had been extended four months. Judging from what he had heard Paula Wunsch say to her brother, there was no immediate prospect of its termination. Was it Texie or Mrs. Wunsch's mother who was responsible for this prolonged wandering? Or was it Wunsch?

Tuthill had clipped to this issue of the Record a sheaf of New York City Press account of the sailing. These made brief mention of the comtesse and Miss Wunsch as among those on board the Philippe. Their interest lay in the pictures of the two ladies.

The Comtesse de Briault—tall, handsome, and wordly looking remarkably like her son, Truman—was apparently bored or annoyed at being snapped. Her face was in profile and the tilt of her head was haughty. But the young girl beside her was smiling straight into the camera. Doyle scanned Texie's spirited dark beauty appreciatively, reading willfulness and lack of discipline in her expression, but noting also the vitality, magnetism, daring and generosity which might make her indiscreet in love, and a warm, whole hearted friend to an underdog like Helen Voss.

He found himself considering the possibility of Texie's immediate return. Mrs. Wunsch had suggested to Briault that they join Texie in Paris. Was Texie in Paris now? What was the fastest sailing time to New York? A girl like Texie would burn with indignation at the thought of murder—particularly if the victim were her protégée. She'd throw herself with gusto into hunting down the murderer. She'd—— Doyle checked his thoughts with a rueful chuckle. Texie might not prove particularly coöperative if she knew that the No. 1 suspect was her own father.

Doyle restored the files to their former order, thanked Tuthill, and went back to join Madden. It had occurred to the detective to ask Madden if Helen Voss had been friendly with any one in town. Had a beau, perhaps, among the local boys.

Keeping eagle eyed watch on his five roads, Madden said, no. Helen Voss went everywhere with Texie Wunsch, and no one would give Helen Voss a second look with Texie around. Helen Voss was the mousy kind. But Texie was a killer-diller. Just as common as you and me, Madden assured Doyle. A bit on the wild side, of course, he added with relish.

Maybe Helen Voss was wilder than Texie, Doyle hinted. Still waters, you know.

But Madden pooh-poohed the idea. "Wunsch would catch on in no time and kick her out," he said. "And speaking of the devil——" He jerked a thumb surreptitiously toward the road on his left.

Doyle saw a line of cars halted there, waiting for the green light. The first car was a Rolls, Follins driving. Wunsch, in evening dress, sat alone on the back seat.

"Take a look at the car behind Wunsch's," Madden muttered.

Doyle saw nothing unusual about it. A Buick town car. Except that by an unimpressive coincidence, it too was chauffeur driven, and a man in evening dress sat alone on its back seat.

"I'll tell you something about that Buick," Madden said as he switched the light control. "This is the third night it's gone thru here trailing Wunsch."

Doyle stared at the officer. "Are you sure?"

Madden nodded. "You bet I'm sure. I caught on to it the very first night. Because it just worked out that I changed the lights as Wunsch's car went thru, and the Buick ducked after him under the red light. I let the Buick get away with it because that was the night after we dug up the skeleton and I was too hot and tired to listen to arguments. But last night I was laying for them just in case they came along." Madden looked well pleased with himself. "And they did. And I caught the Buick on the red light. So I walked over and I says to the chauffeur what the devil did he mean jumping the light the night before? And I'm going to haul him right over to Judge Blain. Only the guy on the back seat explains to me that they're detectives on duty trailing the car ahead. So I let them go, and you should have seen them dodgin' in and out to catch up with Wunsch."

Doyle considered that, his eyes narrowed. "I'll tell you what we'll do," he said. "If they come thru tomorrow night, we'll——"

He lowered his voice, mumbling into Madden's ear while Madden's eyes gleamed with excitement and his round head nodded vigorous approval.

. . . . . .

Lying with closed eyes, Paula was dimly aware of a discussion going on in hushed tones.

Her husband was insisting that he get ah extra nurse to care for his wife. But Miss Doty argued him down.

"You'd be making a serious mistake," she said earnestly. "You'll make Mrs. Wunsch think she's very ill; and that may scare and worry her and then she will be sick. But she's used to seeing me around. She won't pay any attention to me popping in and out."

Paula's thoughts went fumblingly over the developments of the afternoon, from the moment the detective had come from the woods to interrupt her talk with Truman. How much of that talk had Doyle heard? What deductions would be draw from it?

At this point her mind lost some of its haziness and she recalled that the detective had found the watch.

Paula sat up on the daybed, staring about her wild-eyed.

Instantly Truman bent over her.

Paula shrank away from her brother. She could see her husband's heavy, anxious face looking over Truman's shoulder. Perhaps he knew the watch had been found. She pressed her fingers to her temples. No, no. He could not know. He would not be here if he did.

"Lie down, Paula. Lie down." Adolph was begging her.

She did not heed him, but turned instead to Miss Doty, relying on the nurse's calm, on her help.

"Please," Paula spoke imploringly. "Get him for me."

"The detective. Doyle."

They all looked startled. No one moved.

Paula could have screamed at their inertia.

"Now! At once," she gasped.

And then the queer feeling was on her again—as tho all the blood in her body were running fast away—down from her head, down from her arms, down from her heart. And the awful blackness was coming up from the ground in a great engulfing wave.

Miss Doty laid her back, pulling the pillows from under her head.

When the faintness had passed, Paula tried once more. She must see Doyle, she insisted. Again Truman's face hung over her, strained and apprehensive. He looked as if he were seeing a ghost.

But Peggy Doty was looking at Mrs. Wunsch, too—with a strong, sympathetic look. She put her soft, cool hand on Paula's brow and Paula felt strength and comfort flow into her.

"You get him," she begged the nurse. "Get Doyle."

But nothing happened. Miss Doty just went on stroking Paula's head. She asked for Doyle again, screaming his name over and over, trying to make them understand.

The nurse gave her something to drink. She fell into a heavy drugged sleep.

BY CECIL SMITH.

"The Fugitive" is valuable mainly because it gives American audiences another opportunity to see Ralph Richardson, one of the finest British actors on the screen. This newest vehicle, an English product, must have been filmed before the war began last September, for Mr. Richardson at that time joined the royal air force and in the last few months has emerged uninjured from three plane crashes.

The picture is all Mr. Richardson's. As Will Kobling he is seen as a barber running his own shop in one of the poorer districts of London. His life is drab but honest—until, succumbing to a sudden temptation, he steals some money which a careless cashier has left lying unprotected in a nearby office.

From this point on Kobling is the victim of his own conscience. He has not the nature or the disposition of a thief, but a crime once committed cannot be undone. When one of his neighbors discovers the truth and threatens blackmail, the barber, whose grip on the world gets less and less real as his guilt pulls him down, murders him to get him out of the way.

This is not telling too much of the story, for the main portion of the picture is a psychological study of Kobling's gradual disintegration.

Mr. Richardson, who can convey more by a turn of his head or a movement of his hand than most actors can indicate in three reels, is worth seeing. As Jimsey Jones, a flophouse keeper who proves to be Kobling's only dependable male friend, Romney Brent also turns out skilful performance.

Diana Wynyard, a gifted actress who has been absent from the screen for five years, has the misfortune of returning in a part for which she is miscast. As the quiet, loyal wife who intuitively understands her husband's misdeeds almost before he commits them, she is too aristocratic and obviously well bred to carry sufficient conviction.

"The Fugitive" will hold your interest without making an indelible impression. Some of the shots, evidently highly authentic, of characteristic London scenes add a touch of local color. There is a big fire, but it will not make you forget "Gone with the Wind."

Jealousy May Be Overcome Only by Individual

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"Dear Miss Blake: After going with a man for two years I had an argument at a party we attended, and broke off. The argument was caused by my jealousy.

"Six months later we started going together again, and two months after that we became engaged. We're still engaged, but I'm afraid my jealousy, which is even worse than ever, will cause him to break our engagement. When he speaks to other girls my love for him turns to hate. I become extremely angry and start to argue with him.

"He knows about my jealousy, yet he says he loves me anyway, altho it distresses him when I assume my uncontrolable attitude. I try so hard not to be jealous, but I can't help it.

"Please help me. I don't want to go thru matrimony knowing that I have this fault.—Daily Reader."

That old demon jealousy can wreck more happiness! "Old Green Eyes" has a way of clutching at the heart so viciously that he squeezes out any other emotions while he has a good firm grip.

It's easy to say, "I will not be jealous", but before one knows it, bang! Good resolutions give way to that chuckling demon.

About the only cure for jealousy is to try to overcome it by controling any outward show of it.

Deviled eggs are as much a part of the picnic season as is potato salad. There are as many ways to make them as there are cooks, but every deviled egg that is a deviled egg is sharp-flavored. Mustard, onion juice, sardine or anchovy paste, pickle, caviar and lemon, any of these may be used for sharp flavor. Tabasco, Worcestershire sauce, cayenne pepper, meat extract, and celery salt are among the other seasonings commonly employed in pepping up the filling for stuffed eggs.

And deviled eggs aren't always served cold, either. They are delicious hot in some kind of sauce. Here's one good way to serve them hot.

Hot Deviled Eggs with Mushroom Sauce.

[Serves six.]

12 hard cooked eggs
Salt, pepper, paprika
1 teaspoon minced onion
Cream
¼ pound mushrooms
2 cups white sauce
Buttered crumbs
Grated cheese

Cut eggs in halves lengthwise and remove yolks. Sieve the yolks and season with salt, pepper, paprika, and minced onion. Add enough cream to moisten. Refill whites and press the half eggs together. Sauté the mushrooms in butter, chop, and add to the white sauce. Place eggs in a casserole dish and cover with mushroom sauce. Sprinkle with buttered crumbs and grated cheese, and bake at 400 degrees until hot and browned. Serve two of the stuffed eggs and a goodly portion of sauce to a person.

Another good way to serve hot deviled eggs is to make them in your favorite way, using a little prepared mustard in the filling, and to bake them until hot in tomato sauce or tomato soup. Eggs this way may be left in the halves, with the stuffing piled high, or they may be put together as whole eggs. Add minced onion, chopped green pepper and minced celery to the tomato sauce and you have creole style deviled or stuffed eggs. A cheese topping doesn't come amiss on this dish, either.

Stuffed Eggs and Asparagus on Toast.

[Serves six.]

6 hard cooked eggs
2 green onions, chopped fine [tops included] and sautéed
¼ cup finely chopped ham
6 sautéed mushrooms, chopped fine
2 cups cheese sauce
12 large asparagus tips
6 slices buttered toast

Cut eggs in halves lengthwise, remove yolks and mash them. Season with salt and pepper, and mix with onion, ham, and mushrooms. Refill eggs and place two stuffed halves on each slice of buttered toast. Lay a fat asparagus tip on each side of the eggs and cover the whole with cheese sauce. Place in a hot oven, or under the broiler, until lightly browned and serve at once. A garnish of parsley or a pimiento strip across the top of each serving makes the dish more attractive.

Don't Pass By Fall Showing of Trim Suits

BY REA SEEGER.

Spring for a long time has been the season for the suit collectors, consequently the stunning showings designed for fall and early winter are somewhat neglected. The best looking trim, streamlined duets ever cut and ready to be smoothed down over the figure are now ready. Dozens and dozens of every color, shade, and fabric are available.

That slick new long line jacket is here doing everything for every silhouette. The extra inch to three inches makes every jacket you own distinctly dated. These elongated beauties accent the sharp and snappy flare of plaited and slightly flared skirts as well as sharpen the lines of the pencil straight skirts.

While the tailoring is decisive, there is a flattering feminine softness that makes them especially attractive. Welt seams, concealed plaits pressed flat as paper, an easy to wear new short length, and hip smoothness make them the best answer for a typically American daytime suit for all purposes.

Flannel-like textures, a revival of interest in the old cheviot weaves, and dull sheens make these suit fabrics particularly slenderizing, even in bold bright colors. Interesting new colors are bronze green, all shades of brown, russet and wine reds, coppery old golds, and gunmetals. Most of them are made to wear with contrasting blouses, whether of thin wool, silk, or combinations of wool and silk.

Striped blouses are eye catching ideas for daytime wear; dress parade blouses come in sheers as well as fine crêpes with handwork trim. These are the smartest finds for immediate wear, and later they will be worn with furs and still later under fur or fur trimmed winter coats. Prices are exceedingly modest, and the new silhouettes are well worth spending the money.

Simple Afternoon Costume

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

The simple but elegant afternoon dress is the backbone of every well planned wardrobe. It's the sort of frock that may be worn everywhere to informal social events. This one is a figure flatterer. Made of dark or light crêpe or sheer woolen, it's charming with its interesting shoulder yoke, deft bodice shirrings, and graceful front-flared skirt. The sleeves, of bracelet length, may be free or snug to the arm. Buttons are the only trim, except for the costume jewelry you may wish to wear.

Style No. 3438 is designed for sizes 12, 14, and 16, and 36, 38, and 40 inch bust measurements. Size 16 requires 3½ yards of 39 inch material.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Sally's Guests to See Comedy and a Mystery

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

The boys and girls who are fortunate enough to come to our Palace theater party next week will certainly be provided with excellent entertainment, and plenty of it! They'll see two new feature pictures, one a gay comedy, and the other an exciting mystery.

"The boys from Syracuse" which features Allan Jones and Joe Penner, is a streamlined comedy in an ancient Grecian setting. The players wear loose robes and sandals, and have chariots to ride, but sing modern songs and do modern dances. Many of your favorite actors and actresses, including Charlie Butterworth, Eric Blore, Irene Hervey, and Martha Raye, are in the cast.

We're also going to see a new mystery film, all about secret plots and such, called "The Saint Takes Over." It's one of a series of such films, and if you've seen any of the others, you surely won't want to miss this one.

This party will take place at the Palace theater on Aug. 21, and if you want to come, you'd better hurry up and let me know about it. Thursday is our deadline for letters, you know, so if you're writing to tell me that you want to come, don't wait too long. If you can prove to me that you'd really have a wonderful time if you were invited, and if you don't forget to tell me your full name, address, and age—maybe you'll see your names listed with the winners in next Sunday's TRIBUNE. The address is Sally Joy Brown, THE TRIBUNE, Chicago.

AMUSEMENTS.

Holiday Doll Gifts Might Be Made Now

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

A letter has come to me containing a suggestion that I think excellent. It follows upon an article I wrote some weeks ago, as part of a series about playthings. The column referred to was about dolls. It was inspired partly by the realization of the joy little girls can have in dolls if they are made the center of many kinds of activity and make believe, partly by a remembered visit I made to the stores last Christmas time, and partly by an unfading memory of my own little girl days and those of my sister and cousin.

For around our dolls centered so much of so many kinds of work and play, but chief among those pleasures was the wardrobe of our dolls. How they managed in their busy days I don't know, but my mother and my aunt designed and made the loveliest clothes there ever were for our dolls. Little money was involved as, ours being a "sewing family," there always were pieces of various fabrics available, altho occasionally my mother would buy a remnant of silk or velvet for a special little dress or winter coat for the dolls' Christmas wardrobe. As for patterns, well, my mother and aunt always cut their own. But that will do for reminiscing. What I want to make public is this letter which I mentioned:

"My dear Mrs. Bevans:

"Your article on dolls of June 27 was most interesting, and I agree heartily with all you had to say. Perhaps a person of your influence could persuade stores to have a summer sale of dolls that come in various sizes; in fact, all kinds and prices of dolls. Why have to wait until Christmas shopping time to buy? Also, somewhere near the time of the doll and doll accessory sale, why not have the paper print doll patterns of everyday dresses, slips and other underthings, evening dresses and coats and hats for these dolls as well as the baby dresses for the baby dolls? Some of us grandmothers have to send our dolls a long way off, and need time to prepare them for holiday gifts. Mine have to go to the Philippines."

This seems to me a splendid idea, and I personally could go on and add suggestions for other patterns and directions, such as those for knitting and crocheting dolls' sweaters and caps and afghans; also for little blankets feather-stitched or embroidered, and things to outfit the doll carriage.

Aug. 13, 1940.

Universal Day—Collapse often follows overextension, so don't throw caution to the winds today.

Expansion—Is a keyword for an eight personal year. If one has been steadily building constructively in the years previous, an eight year often is the harvest period of that cycle, bringing material gain, greater opportunities, and a general feeling of expansion. If one has been wasting time, making false starts and generally muffing opportunities, this eight year can sometimes bring financial difficulties. The accent definitely is on material success or failure. Due to the powerful properties of the number 8 some people are not able to handle it constructively.

Year Ahead—If today is your birthday you definitely have felt the power of practical forces at work this year, as you have also an eight month [August] and four day [1 plus 3] birthday.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1940: By Ely Culbertson.]

When only one pair is engaged in the bidding, it is amazing to see how often the other partners adopt an attitude of complete disinterest in the proceedings. Many times when there were long waits between the bids, I have heard a player say to his opponents, "Fight it out, boys; just wake me up when you've reached a final contract." The short sightedness of such an attitude is best expressed by showing the swing which can be created by careful attention to the bidding. In the hand below, South was wide awake while East and West were bidding their slam. Consequently, he won 100 points instead of losing 1,430 points.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	1 spade	Pass	3 hearts
Pass	4 hearts	Pass	4 spades
Pass	4 no trump	Pass	5 hearts
Pass	6 spades	Pass	Pass
Pass

West's forcing take-out of three hearts was an example of one of the rare cases when such a bid is made with only one first round control. Ordinarily, a forcing take-out shows such power that the slam connotation is unmistakable. Naturally, most players hesitate to make so slammish a bid without two aces, or an ace and a void. However, West's plenitude of kings gave assurance that his partner must have aces if his hand were strong enough for a slam try.

On lead against the slam contract, South thought carefully before touching any of his cards. In each minor suit there was a safe lead from the top of a sequence of honors. But South disdained these ordinarily excellent sequence leads. He remembered that during the bidding West had jumped hearts to the level of three, thus showing a five card suit, and that East had raised, indicating at least three hearts. With at least eight hearts in the combined hands of the opponents, South could see that his partner could not hold more than one heart.

Having arrived at this sound conclusion, South opened a heart. Declarer won and immediately tried to take out the trumps. But South stuck to his original plan and took the first trump trick with the ace. Another heart lead was then trumped by North and the slam was defeated.

O, yes. Six hearts or six no trump would have been ironclad.

RALLY TO MEET SUNDAY EVENING CLUB'S DEFICIT

Backers Cite 32 Years of Notable Service.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Chicago's Sunday Evening club, which has a service record spanning a full generation under its founder and president, Clifford W. Barnes, closed its 1939-'40 season last May showing greatly increased attendance over previous years—and the first deficit in its history.

But those facts have rallied loop business and professional leaders from August vacations for a campaign to make the city's unique religious enterprise permanent. From coast to coast, the country's most eminent preachers have come to regard the club as one of the world's foremost pulpits, and an invitation from Mr. Barnes to a speaker is accepted as a guarantee that the guest is a religious builder of national importance whether he be a pastor, a rabbi, an educator, or a statesman. The list of speakers during the last 32 years is that generation's Who's Who of religion.

Offers a Free Pulpit.

The business and professional men who have set apart this week for the club's membership campaign, however, speak of the club as being typical of the loop's religious influence. Here beneath the dominating cross and spire of American Methodism's cathedral, the Chicago temple, are denominational and interdenominational headquarters which influence many nations as well as nearly every town and hamlet of the country.

Mr. Barnes' civic minded helpers will then add that the club is a place where all these agencies can meet because the club represents neither sect nor denomination. As the long list of speakers shows, the club offers a free pulpit for trusted religious spokesmen.

A sampling of that list follows: Dean Charles R. Brown of Yale, G. A. Studdert-Kennedy ("Woodbine Willie" of world war days), Harry Emerson Fosdick, William Howard Taft, Marshal Joffre, Bishop Charles P. Anderson, Bishop Winnington-Ingram of London, Bishop Thomas Nicholson, Charles Evans Hughes, Harold C. Phillips, Mayor W. E. Dever, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise and Bishop George Craig Stewart.

Mr. Barnes Tells of Dream.

The dream of the club came to Mr. Barnes while he was president of the Young Men's Christian Association at Yale university and was first developed in the Latin quarter of Paris during a graduate study period abroad.

On his return to Chicago the Sunday Evening club plan began to take clearer shape in his mind. As early as 1899 Mr. Barnes was advocating its establishment under the leadership of University of Chicago authorities. He was a member of the university faculty in social sciences at that time. But a call as president of Illinois college, Jacksonville, held back the club plan until 1907, when he came back to Chicago.

"It was then that I felt free to renew my efforts to establish the club of which I had dreamed," said Mr. Barnes. "Again the university and the churches were urged to sponsor the enterprise, but with the same result as before. It is an interesting and significant fact that a group of business men with whom I was accustomed to lunch at the Chicago club were the first to say: 'The job ought to be done and we will help you do it.'

Among the Early Trustees.

"Among the club's trustees who helped in those early days until death took them from us were such men as A. C. Bartlett, Charles L. Hutchinson, Norman W. Harris, Frank H. Armstrong and John G. Shedd."

In addition to Mr. Barnes, the present officers of the club include Harry A. Wheeler, Horace W. Armstrong, Henry P. Chandler, Donald S. McWilliams, William E. Goodman, Edward K. Welles and Solomon A. Smith.

Hudson H. Pittman, assistant to the club president, told of increased need of the club during the present critical days.

"With the world in the upheaval of war, and our own country feverishly pushing defense measures, the inspiration and hope brought from messages of famous Jewish, Catholic and Protestant leaders seem more essential than ever," said Pittman. "In addition to the great speakers on the club program, a choir of 125 voices adds its contribution. Such a center of inspiration and good will is a necessary antidote to the poison of fear and hate growing in the world."

Dog Ties Up Traffic

[TRIBUNE Photo.]
Policeman Elmer Reiter and dog.

A daring fox terrier decided to take a bath in Evanston's fountain square yesterday. Desk Sergeant George Bein assigned Policeman Elmer Reiter, who weighs 230 pounds, to the rescue. Elmer is known as "Thirty Minute Elmer" because he hands out tickets to motorists who disobey the half-hour parking laws.

Elmer clambered over the steel fence which surrounds the fountain pool at the intersection of Sherman avenue, Davis street, and Orrington avenue. He sprawled at the pool's edge and called to the dog. The little terrier finally came to the edge of the pool and Elmer hoisted him to safety. As he did so, his ticket book fell into the pool. The dog scampered away.

Five minutes later, after Elmer had tried in vain to retrieve his ticket book, he found traffic tied up at the intersection while the dog stood whisking the water off his back. Elmer caught the trouble-maker and carried it to the dog pound. Then he went to the police station and got a new ticket book.

A BARBER POET'S GEM AIDS HIM IN BRUSH WITH LAW

A little gem entitled "Our Destiny," written by Joseph Scoma, 30 years old, a barber, saved him from a probable disorderly conduct fine in South State street court yesterday. Scoma, who works at 185 North Wells street, was arrested on complaint of Mrs. Lillian Gails, 28, of 25 East Washington street, a former manicurist in the Wells street shop.

Mrs. Gails said Scoma forced his attentions on her. In proof she produced "Our Destiny" and other lyrics, which Scoma admitted writing. Judge Lambert K. Hayes read:

"The moons may come, the moons may go;
Gosh darn, who am I to fall in love?
She's so sweet and pretty and a neat dresser, too;
O, dear destiny! I'm in love with this girl,
And what am I to do?"

Judge Hayes sighed, advised Scoma to turn to songwriting, and dismissed him under a peace bond.

PROBE LAUNCHED INTO CHARGES OF TAX FIXING

State's Attorney Courtney announced yesterday his office will investigate alleged fixing of personal property assessments in Cook county. Courtney named Thomas G. Bugan, assistant state's attorney, as special investigator to devote full time to the inquiry.

Bugan said his first move will be to ask the Chicago Bar association for its reports on assessment frauds. Two weeks ago the bar association published a report charging frauds, including forgeries and bribes, but suppressed a longer report, made by its investigating committee, which was said to have included names of alleged fixers and to have cited specific cases of fixing.

William H. King Jr., bar association president, said all information in the hands of the association or its committee will be made available to the state's attorney's office.

REFUSES TO PAY DIVORCE LAWYER; CITED BY COURT

Judge Rudolph Desort yesterday ordered Horace Brand, former publisher, to show cause why he should not be held in contempt of court for refusing to pay $4,000 fees to Attorney Robert E. Cantwell Jr., who represented Mrs. Brand in a long series of divorce proceedings recently in the Superior court.

Altho a settlement between the Brands was announced on July 1, the final decree has not been signed because of Brand's reluctance to pay the fees. Attorney Cantwell filed a petition in which he charged that Brand had declared he never would make payment, altho such a payment was one of the items in the decree. After Mrs. Brand testified yesterday that Brand made this statement Judge Desort ordered Brand to appear before him next Monday on the contempt citation.

Brand originally brought suit for divorce on grounds of cruelty. His wife countered with a suit for separate maintenance. Brand is 71 years old. Mrs. Brand is 48.

PACKERS OPEN DRILLS FOR COLLEGE ALL-STAR GAME

42 PLAYERS GET DOUBLE SESSION AS RAIN FALLS

Revenge for Defeat in '37 the Goal.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Green Bay, Wis., Aug. 12.—The Green Bay Packers, professional football champions of the world, today engaged in their first workouts for the Chicago All-Star game Aug. 29. Forty-two players, oblivious to intermittent showers, stepped thru two brisk drills. To veteran observers of All-Star preparations the start was as unusual as it was auspicious.

Three years ago Green Bay, the little town with the big city football team, jubilantly set off amid fanfare on its first Chicago All-Star assignment. It was an ill fated venture. The Packers lost, 6 to 0.

Today, 36 months later almost to the hour, the Packers, again world's champions, launched another All-Star campaign in virtual solitude. They might have been a group of youngsters from a nearby summer camp for all the excitement they created.

No Prophecies This Time.

No cheering and back slapping loyalists lined the gridiron. Green Bay went leisurely about its washday business. All-Star talk in the taverns and meeting places was casual and restrained. At this state of the campaign three years ago the game already was won and every articulate citizen was eager to get on record with his or her forecast of at least 21 to 0.

But three years have wrought many changes in "the biggest little city in professional football." Green Bay learned about the All-Stars and also the Packers in 1937. The man in the street knows the Packers can win, but he is not at all certain this time that they will.

Changes, too, have taken place on the team. Only 9 of the 42 men in today's drills were with the Packers in 1937 when Sammy Baugh fired a 47 yard pass to Gaynell Tinsley for a touchdown and the All-Stars survived a desperate Green Bay assault that came a cropper on the 2 yard line. Three of these nine, Center George Svendsen, Tackle Champ Seibold, and Quarter Back Herman Schneidman are coming out of retirement this year.

Jankowski Signs Contract.

The squad was brought to its full strength when Gus Zarnas, former Ohio State and Chicago Bear guard, reported this morning, and Eddie Jankowski signed a contract. Jankowski, who had been a holdout, came to terms after several conferences with Coach Curley Lambeau.

Every member had done some preliminary work before reporting to Lambeau and it was a well conditioned squad that answed roll call at the first workout today. It is sufficiently advanced already to permit rough work tomorrow. This also was in contrast with 1937 when a majority of players held the All-Stars so lightly that they reported out of shape and rough work had to be postponed until the sixth day of practice.

Other encouraging aspects are the size of the squad and the caliber of rookies. Green Bay attempted to beat the All-Stars in 1937 with 29 men. Most of these were certain of staying with the team. What few rookies were called up that summer did not display enough talent to jeopardize the jobs of veterans.

Packers Must Fight for Jobs.

Fourteen players now under contract must be dropped by the third game of the National league season. With Hal Van Every, Lou Brock, George Seamann, Dick Evans, and Frank Bykowski of the All-Star squad yet to receive tryouts there is a possibility that several veterans will be among those dismissed.

Connie Mack Berry, an end; Bob Adkins, blocking back; Jim Gillette, left half back, and Smiley Johnson, a guard, were especially impressive. Berry, who had a tryout with the Chicago Cardinals and played part of last year with the Detroit Lions, showed unusual pass catching ability, and Gillette, a University of Virginia star last year, demonstrated laudable all around talents. He is a left handed passer.

KENNEDY SCORES WINNING RUN ON WEBB'S DOUBLE

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 12.—Jimmy Webb, the Mississippi Skeeter, whose bat has been almost a silent member of the White Sox attack, burst into action tonight to nail down a victory after he and his associates had frittered away a neat lead. The Skeeter doubled in the ninth inning to drive home a run which beat the Browns, 6 to 5, and gave Clint Brown his second rescue decision in two days. The noted life-saver had to be summoned in behalf of Jack Knott, who succumbed either to the heat or the silence of 4,454 customers.

The Sox overlooked numerous opportunities while Elden Auker and Bill Trotter were trying to fool them, as attested by the number of men left stranded on the bases. Seventeen of them started and went no place, one short of the big league record. Earlier in the season here, the Cubs had the same number left on bases. The Sox might have established a new mark if they hadn't indulged in more of their giddy base running. Webb was caught off the bases twice, offenses which can be forgiven in view of his winning blow, as well as several fielding sparklers.

Dykes Calls Dr. Brown.

Knott surrendered only five hits in six innings but when a Brownie doubled with one out in the seventh, Manager James Dykes suspected the big Texan was about to wilt. So Brown was called in, but the case proved a puzzler for him and before he concocted a remedy the enemy thumped him for three hits, tying the score at five apiece. But he got away from that disturbance with the aid of a pair of strikeouts and in the two remaining innings granted only one single.

Trotter took over for Auker at the start of the eighth. A pass and fluke double by Rosenthal failed to upset him, but when he walked Kennedy to open the ninth he brought on his own downfall. Brown bunted Kennedy to second and an instant later Webb banged a line double over third, sending Kennedy home. Then Kreevich singled for the third time, Kuhel flied to Radcliff, and Appling acquired his third single, which filled the bags. But Wright fanned and the left on base total was boosted to 17.

Sox Settle for Two Runs.

The Sox scored a pair of runs in the second inning, but this wasn't very heavy production considering that eight of them batted. Tresh singled with one out and Kennedy tapped to Auker, who threw wild trying to force Tresh at second. Knott singled to left, but Tresh made a slow start and halted at third. Webb drew a pass, which forced Tresh to score. Kreevich singled to right and only Kennedy scored on the hit, leaving the bases filled. They were still filled when the inning ended on Kuhel's short fly to Judnich and Appling's liner to McQuinn.

Knott permitted the Brownies no base line exercises until he had retired the first four men. Then he gave a pass to Berardino with one out in the second and the gift proved a bit costly. Berardino scored when Clift bounced a two base drive off the left field concrete. But Knott set down the next two fellows and also three in succession in the third.

The Sox drew a blank out of a double with which Wright opened the third, but that was inconsequential to their indifference to opportun-

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The coaches handed out two practice sessions yesterday and the All-American football players liked it.

At 9 a. m. and again at 2:30 in the afternoon, despite a slight drizzle of rain at that hour, the boys who will meet the Green Bay Packers Aug. 29 went thru their routines in the development of an offense in Dyche stadium at Northwestern university. Fundamental plays, such as off tackle smashes, end runs, kick formations, and half and full spinners, were explained.

The deceptive spin plays will prove more difficult for those backs who did not use this type of attack during their intercollegiate competition, but by shifting men where necessary Eddie Anderson, head coach of the All-Stars, and his associates believe they will develop the man power necessary to compete against the professional champions.

McFadden, Kinnick Stand Out.

This material will be given players in mimeographed form. Changes that may be necessary later will be explained thru the medium of the blackboards in the squad room.

Outstanding in practice maneuvers yesterday morning were Banks McFadden, Clemson half back, and Nile Kinnick, Iowa half back. McFadden was getting excellent distance and placing on his kicks, while Kinnick's

This All-Star Is a Versatile Gent, Anahu!

Bill Anahu, the Hawaiian boy who played a lot of end for Santa Clara the last three years, already is known among his All-Star teammates in Dyche stadium as "What's the Matter Anahu?" Bill graduated from Kamehameha High school in Honolulu and learned to play football in Honolulu's famous Barefoot league.

Bill Anahu.

Like most Hawaiians, Anahu is an expert swimmer. He spent one summer on a south seas island taking weather tests for the route of the Clipper ships. In addition to football, he is an expert boxer and was the ranking officer in Santa Clara's R. O. T. C. unit. Anahu also is an expert with a ukelele. The boys from the west coast also say he can put on an excellent demonstration of the hula hula.

Bernie Jefferson, Northwestern's brilliant Negro half back of two years ago and a member of last year's All-Star team, has delegated himself as companion and protector extraordinary of Kenny Washington, U. C. L. A.'s great colored back. "I used to think I could play football," Jefferson said yesterday, "but Kenny makes me look like a beginner. He's promised to get revenge for that licking the New York Giants handed us last year."

A major crisis arose in the All-Star equipment room when it was learned that Nile Kinnick of Iowa, and Ambrose Schindler of Southern California both wore No. 24 in college. Since the All-Star players are given the same numbers they wore in college the equipment boys were in a dilemma. The problem probably will be solved by the toss of a coin.

The All-Stars were forced to run the usual gantlet of autograph seeking youngsters who stormed the entrance to Dyche stadium. Any one who slightly resembled a football player was immediately set upon for his signature.

CONN BATTLES PASTOR TONIGHT; SEEKS LOUIS BOUT

New York, Aug. 12 [Special].—Billy Conn, world light-heavyweight champion, tomorrow night will make his bid for recognition as a possible foeman for Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis. The shifty Pittsburgher is to tackle rugged Bob Pastor in a struggle scheduled for 15 rounds in the Polo Grounds.

Billy Conn.

The battle is scheduled to start at 9 p. m. [Chicago time] and is expected to draw a crowd of about 25,000. Promoter Mike Jacobs of the Twentieth Century Sporting club today said receipts will exceed $50,000, by how much depending on the weather. In the event of unfavorable weather the contest will be held Wednesday night.

Hopes for September Louis Bout.

If Conn should win impressively, he will be the next candidate to challenge Louis' reign. If Pastor should win in a highly satisfactory manner, he will be eligible for his third shot at Louis, his second at the crown. Promoter Jacobs has agreements with both, whereby he is to determine when and if either will get a Louis bid.

The promoter still has some hope of a Louis bout next month. One offer under consideration is to pair Conn with Louis in Pittsburgh for the benefit of the allied relief fund. A bout between Louis and Pastor is proposed for Griffith stadium, home of the Senators, for a Washington fight.

Conn Betting Favorite.

Conn will enter the ring tomorrow a favorite. Betting Commissioner Jack Doyle today said the light-heavyweight champion, with his speed, skill and boxing ability is held at 1 to 2 in his book. Pastor is held at 8 to 5 by Doyle.

Conn, who has had difficulty building up to heavyweight proportions, will weigh 180 pounds or slightly less. Pastor, a natural heavy will weigh about 182 or 183.

RAIN DROPS HELP THE CUBS DODGE 6TH PLACE PERIL

French to Start Against Cardinals Today.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Cubs and the St. Louis Cardinals will play in Wrigley field this afternoon. Thanks to a postponement yesterday, because of rain, the match today can not dump the Cubs into sixth place in the National league.

If the Cardinals win this afternoon, and there is earnest Larry French to say them nay, the best they can do is rise to within half a game of the Cubs. Then the Cardinals will go home to receive the sizzling Pirates, who took over fifth place from the Cards and fourth place from the Cubs in successive series last week. Clyde Shoun will start for the Cardinals today.

Tomorrow the Cubs will open a three game series with the league leading Cincinnati Reds, who haven't been so robust recently, tho they did split a two game series with the Cubs in Cincinnati last Tuesday and Wednesday.

Cubs Hope to Regain 4th.

Providing they sweep the series with the Reds, the Cubs can hope to get back in fourth place, this on the presumption that the Pirates and the Cardinals will cut a few nicks out of each other's throats.

Gabby Hartnett has withheld orders for morning practice for his Cubs, pending the outcome of this afternoon's game and the three with the league leaders. Some extra work seemed in order Sunday when the Cubs clumsily blew a pair to the Pirates to tumble a game and a half into the second division. This was especially true in the first game, in which the Cubs made six ultra fuzzy errors. However, Gabby's executive flair was cramped because he, as a relief catcher, permitted Arky Vaughan to kick the ball out of his hands after tagging him out at the plate in a devastating eighth inning.

Perish Thought of Early Rising.

Morning practice, much as the Cubs need it, is abhorrent, of course. In the first place, the lads would have to get up early. Then there is a disciplinary implication to morning drills that is jolting to the pride of the Cubs, if any. And with all their six error defense in the first game Sunday and their four hit slugging against Dick Lanahan, the Cubs are too complacent to admit they need to practice.

The postponement yesterday, inspired by a heavy shower at noon and possibly other factors, will be played off as a part of a doubleheader Sept. 22.

In the Wake of the News

BY ARCH WARD.

THE Associated Press toward the end of each year polls the leading sports writers of the nation on the various high or low lights of the preceding twelve months. . . . Competition being what it is these days, this department has decided to scoop the AP by four months, as follows: The biggest flops of the year—the Yankees, Dizzy Dean, and Tony Galento. . . . The prize boner—the Cleveland Indians' mass demand for the removal of Oscar Vitt as manager of the club. . . . Second award in this division—Kenny Keltner's request for unemployment relief. . . . biggest blow to any team's pennant hopes—Jackie Hayes' eye infection. . . . The champion nomad—Zeke Bonura. . . . The prize examples of executive blundering—first [by overwhelming vote] the strange ruling of the Illinois [Whitewash] Athletic commission in the case of Harry Thomas, who sacrificed his reputation to expose two of the most flagrant swindles in the history of professional boxing. . . . Second, the disqualification by the United States Golf Association of Ed Oliver in the national open tournament. . . . Third, the attacks upon a great amateur sport by Dr. Robert [Mustn't Play Football] Hutchins at a time when the government is trying to encourage virility in the youth of the land. . . . The outstanding managerial achievement—the work of Del Baker of the Tigers who, with a disabled veteran on second base, a discarded National leaguer at shortstop, a catcher on first base and a first baseman in left field, molded a contender for the American league championship. . . .

The most tragic happening—the suicide of Willard Hershberger with its possible effect on the morale of his Cincinnati mates. . . . The finest example of courage on the diamond—Ernie Lombardi's showing after the ridicule heaped on him for his maladroit play in the 1939 world series. . . . The player doing his club the most good with the least credit for it—Bobby Doerr of the Red Sox. . . . Tops in sportsmanship—Joe McCarthy of the Yankees, who has seen his team which was picked to coast to its fifth straight pennant, collapse like a one hoss shay with never a moan about the loss of Lefty Gomez. . . . Best demonstration of the universal popularity of football—Eddie Anderson's landslide triumph in the coast to coast All-Star coaches poll. . . . First award for managerial forbearance—to Joe Cronin in the case of Ted Williams. . . . Jimmy Dykes probably would have sent Williams to Waterloo by the first train. . . . Biggest mistake by a great showman—Jack Dempsey's "comeback" against an array of overstuffed wrestlers. . . . Boxer most deserving of a chance at a title—Milt Aron of Chicago, who apparently is too dangerous for his own good. . . . Greatest loss suffered by intercollegiate sport—the death of Noble E. Kizer of Purdue.

Quiet, Please!

They're making elaborate preparations for next Saturday in Elwood, Ind., where Mr. Willkie will be informed that he has been nominated for President by the Republican party. Legacy.

In an old New England graveyard plot
Two flags wave side by side
To mark a place where soldiers lie,
Who'd fought and bled and died.
One tombstone tells between the lines
Of how a young man fell
At Monmouth, under Washington,
Before the foeman's shell.

And next to his, another stone
Bespoke his family's pride
In what this hero helped to forge—
A nation true and tried.
For on that stone the name's the same,
But of a different day
And tells about a youth who fought
With Grant, down Richmond way.

So lie these two who gave their all
For what each one held dear;
One died to build and one to hold
The nation we revere.
To us they left as legacy
A rich and mighty land,
Where rights to pursue happiness
And liberty shall stand.

Pirates Whip Reds, 4 to 2, Before 42,254

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 12 (AP).—The Pittsburgh Pirates continued their hot pace tonight by beating the Cincinnati Reds and Bucky Walters, 4 to 2, before an overflow crowd of 42,254. It was their 11th victory in 12 games and moved them to within a game and a half of the third place New York Giants. The Pirates have also won 20 of their last 25 games.

Max Butcher had the Reds under control except in the sixth when they bunched three hits after two were out to score a run, and the ninth when Ernie Lombardi knocked a home run.

The Pirates won in the seventh when Elbie Fletcher doubled with one out and Frankie Gustine sent him home with a single and moved to second on the throw in. Al Lopez then singled Gustine home. Lopez had scored the first run in the sixth.

STEEL HEELS HAS THEM FLASHING TO WIN AT MILE

Beats Busy Morn by 1½ Lengths at Homewood.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Steel Heels beat a field of seasoned handicap performers in the Burr Oak purse, a mile dash which headed yesterday's program at Washington Park. Saving ground all the way, he came thru along the rail to take the lead in the stretch and win by a length and a half. Busy Morn, which had been forced to go wide after being pinched back on the turn, closed powerfully to take second money.

The struggle for third place ended in a head and head struggle which wasn't decided until the camera had placed Sky Ball, Robert L., and Mucho Gusto in that order.

Busy Morn and Robert L., drew the heaviest backing in the field of six, each being held at 2 to 1. Mucho Gusto was quoted at 4 to 1 and Steel Heels at 6 to 1.

Sky Ball Sets Early Pace.

Sky Ball, a 35 to 1 shot, made the early pace, with Rude Awakening, Robert L., and Busy Morn in close pursuit. Meanwhile Steel Heels was running last. As they approached the stretch, Sky Ball continued to run well and it was here that Busy Morn got into close quarters between Rude Awakening and Robert L. Jockey Al Bodiou had to take him up and send him to the extreme outside. Meanwhile Steel Heels had been moving up steadily on the inside.

Rounding the last turn the entire field went wide enough to give Steel Heels plenty of room along the rail. Jockey Ken McCombs drove him forward as Sky Ball tired. Steel Heels took full command in the final furlong. Tho he weakened near the end his advantage was big enough to hold Busy Morn safe.

Winner Returns $14.20.

Those who backed the winner collected $14.20, $5.20, and $4.

Under a well judged ride by Johnny Adams, Betty's Bobby won the Midway purse, a mile run which brought out a field of seven 3 year olds. He came home half a length in advance of Predicate while Cutter was taking third money.

Betty's Bobby, which had started only twice since the Florida season, was backed down to 6 to 5 odds, having run a good second to Valdina Star on Washington Park's opening day. Predicate was second choice at 5 to 2.

Wage Spirited Battle.

Going out of the chute and down the back stretch, Cutter, Predicate, Betty's Bobby and Ranger II. waged a spirited battle. Around the turn, Cutter held command. She led by two lengths as they approached the stretch with Predicate running second and Betty's Bobby third. Here Adams was forced to take a strong hold on Betty's Bobby when he got into close quarters.

During the drive, Cutter gave way gradually leaving Betty's Bobby and Predicate to go on neck and neck. In the late stages Betty's Bobby wore down his rival and forged ahead. In the mutuels he returned $4.60, $2.80 and $2.40.

Unquote Wins the Long Way.

One of the Woolford farm's juvenile fillies, Unquote, went to the post at 4 to 5 odds in the fourth race. In theory, this was a five and a half furlong dash, but Unquote made a considerably longer run out of it by heading toward the outer fence at every curve. Despite the fact that she finished extremely wide, she was so much the best that she was six lengths ahead of her nearest pursuer as she went under the wire. One More was second and Valdina Gal third.

In four previous starts, Unquote had been out of the money only once—and that was in the Arlington Park Lassie stakes. On that occasion she had been in a contending position until running out on the turn. She wound up last.

Winner trained by T. H. Heard Jr. Went to post at 4:10. Off at once. Start good, from gate. Won driving, place same.

BETTY'S BOBBY, well up from the start, won drawing away. PREDICATE, on the inside in the stiffest going while following closest to CUTTER'S pace, was sent to the outside approaching the stretch, forced to go wide from when inside the final furlong and but was unable to hold the winner and weakened near the end. CUTTER, hustled to the front, drew clear after a half mile, gave way when inside the final furlong and tired steadily thereafter.

STEEL HEELS, outrun early, improved his position on the inside, took command soon after entering the stretch, drew clear rapidly and, continuing under strong handling held BUSY MORN safe. Latter, basely ridden and taken back when in close quarters approaching the turn, came to the outside for the drive and finished under weak handling. SKY BALL, established clear lead rapidly, held sway to the stretch and tired thereafter.

JUBILEE C., well back early, improved his position rapidly after six furlongs, wore down the leaders in the drive and got up in the final strides. CROSS RUFF worked his way forward steadily, bore over on VIERNES SANTO in the drive, was unable to withstand the winner and was disqualified and placed last. RUSHING BY rushed to the front, set a good pace, gave way in the drive, but held on well. VIERNES SANTO, steadied along early, was shuffled back when CROSS RUFF bore to the inside and failed to recover.

ROYAL EXCHANGE, FAMED STALLION, DIES IN INDIANA

Noblesville, Ind., Aug. 12 [Special].—Royal Exchange, 11 year old Percheron stallion, who was grand champion at the 1934 International live stock show in Chicago and one of the best known animals in the nation, was found dead today on the Conner Prairie farm, near Noblesville. The horse appeared to be as well as usual when he was turned out on pasture during the afternoon.

He was valued at $9,000. He has sons and daughters in California, Maryland, Canada and many other sections of America and last spring was champion over all breeds at the Ind

ZALE IMPRESSES FANS IN DRILLS FOR SOOSE FIGHT

Champion Shows How He Won from Hostak.

Tony Zale gave a demonstration of how he won the middleweight championship from Al Hostak in a four round workout against Settime Terracina and Bill Duncan, light heavyweight sparmates, in Trafton's gymnasium yesterday for a 10 round overweight bout with Billy Soose in Mills stadium Aug. 21.

Tony Zale.

Zale, who boxed with welterweights last week to develop his speed, bombarded his partners of yesterday with his heavy artillery. When the drill ended observers left the gymnasium considerably impressed with the new champ's ability.

Many fans were skeptical of Zale's skill after he defeated Hostak in a nontitle coptest in Chicago Stadium on Jan. 29. Because Hostak floored Tony in the first round and then worried Zale with every punch in his repertoire in the fifth round, spectators acquired the erroneous idea that Tony's victory was a lucky one, despite the fact that the decision was unanimous.

These skeptics discounted the fact that the Gary fighter went into the first Hostak engagement with seven consecutive triumphs to his credit, giving definite signs of improvement in every achievement. They changed their attitude somewhat when Zale scored a knockout over the clever Ben Brown, also in the Stadium. But it took Zale's dethronement of Hostak by a 13 round technical knockout in a return encountor in Seattle July 19 to convince the doubters that Zale was no flash in the pan.

ROMO, GAMIERE DRAW IN 8 ROUNDS IN MARIGOLD RING

Chico Romo, Los Angeles, 142 pounder, and Mike Gamiere, Cleveland, boxed an eight round draw in the feature bout in Marigold Gardens last night. Romo piled up a comfortable margin in the early rounds with the use of a long right to the head that frequently shook up Gamiere. Gamiere took the last few rounds, however, employing a left-hook to earn a draw.

Johnny Pleasant, Chicago lightweight, beat Gene Ward, his south side rival, in an extremely close eight round semiwindup. Ward substituted for Floyd Hagen of St. Paul, who was refused permission to box because of illness. Ward had the edge in the early part of the fight, but tired badly and became vulnerable to his sharp shooting foe's right hand blasts. It was an interesting slugging match all the way. Matt Callura, Milwaukee welterweight, defeated Jesse Smith, Terre Haute, in a four rounder. Ed Stanley, Terre Haute heavyweight, knocked out Flash Roulette, Los Angeles, in the second round of a four rounder.

Aron Is Held to Draw by Kaplan in 10 Round Bout

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 12 (AP).—Milt Aron of Chicago and Mike Kaplan of Boston, two leading contenders for Henry Armstrong's welterweight championship, fought to a 10 round draw here tonight. Aron weighed 150 pounds, Kaplan 147.

A crowd of 4,000 stood around the ring at the finish yelling disapproval of the decision. The two judges disagreed and the referee called it a draw.

Aron, called the No. 1 challenger for Armstrong's title, was knocked down in the first round but bounced up at the count of two. He rallied to floor Kaplan in the sixth, but Kaplan recovered without a count.

Kaplan staggered Aron with rights and lefts to the head in the seventh and cut the Chicagoan's left eyebrow. In the ninth Kaplan knocked out Aron's mouthpiece, but Aron came right back to open a cut under Kaplan's left eye.

They slugged it out in the 10th with the crowd in an uproar. Each closed the other's eye before the final bell.

Indians Whip Tigers, 8 to 5; Lead League

Cleveland, O., Aug. 12 (AP).—The supposedly weak batting Cleveland Indians blasted 12 hits, including three home runs, today to beat the Detroit Tigers, 8 to 5, and break their first place deadlock.

Bob Feller pitched his 20th victory as he limited Detroit to seven hits before 23,720. Hal Newhouser, the Detroit starter, was routed in the first inning and was charged with the defeat.

Feller, the first pitcher in the majors to reach the 20 game mark, fanned seven Tigers and was in serious trouble in only one inning—the seventh, when he walked three men in a row. Barney McCosky doubled in two runs and another scored on an infield out. Feller ended the inning by fanning Rudy York.

Trosky and Bell Connect.

Hal Trosky hit his 21st homer in the first inning with or a runner on base and Beau Bell followed with his third circuit smash of the year. Bell's hit drove Newhouser to cover. In the fifth Roy Weatherly drove his fifth round-tripper over the right field wall.

Clay Smith was called in after Cleveland's three run outburst in the first inning and he gave up eight hits and five runs. Tom Seats and Freddy Hutchinson finished for the losers.

Ken Keltner's single and Ray Mack's double scored the fourth run for Cleveland in the fourth. Weatherly's homer the next inning was followed by another tally on Lou Boudreau's single and Bell's double. The Tribe wound up its run making in the sixth on Ben Chapman's single, his theft of second, and Boudreau's single.

Detroit scored a run in the second on a single by York and Pinky Higgins' two base hit and another in the sixth on Hank Greenberg's double and a single by Higgins.

Runs Strikeouts to 197.

Feller, who has lost six games, ran his strikeout total for the year to 197. It was Newhouser's ninth defeat against eight triumphs.

Manager Oscar Vitt, who has remained in the dugout most of the time since the player protest early in the season, went to the first base coaching line. He nominated the veteran Mel Harder for the second and final game of the series tomorrow. Johnny Gorsica was named for Detroit. Score:

Armour Wins with Mrs. Kay at Glen Oak

Tommy Armour, veteran Medinah professional, collaborated yesterday with Mrs. John H. Kay of Medinah in winning the seventh annual pro-ladies' tournament conducted by the Chicago Women's District Golf association and the Illinois section of the P. G. A. at the Glen Oak Country club. Fifty-two partner teams, playing alternate shots, took part in the event, the most successful in its history.

Armour and Mrs. Kay had low gross of 41—38—79, one shot better than the 80's submitted by Eddie Williams of Byrn Mawr and his daughter, Ellamae of Medinah, and John Revolta and Mrs. Howard Raymond of Evanston. The Williams' took second low gross honors after matching cards with the Revolta twosome, who took third low net with their 80—6—74.

Win in Close Contest.

First low prize was taken by Maurie White and Mrs. L. M. Mather of La Grange, but only after they had matched cards with Harley Greenamyre of Acacia and Mrs. Daniel Upp of North Shore.

The C. W. D. G. A. will hold its final team matches at Skokie tomorrow and the Illinois P. G. A. will continue its competitive coöperation with the district's amateur players by joining in the second annual propresidents' tourney next Monday at Edgewater.

The prize winners follow:

First low gross—Tommy Armour and Mrs. John H. Kay, Medinah, 41—38—79.

Second—Eddie Williams, Bryn Mawr, and Ellamae Williams, Medinah, 41—39—80.

First low net—Maurice White and Mrs. L. M. Mather, La Grange, 81—9—72.

Second—Harley Greenamyre, Acacia, and Mrs. Daniel Upp, North Shore, 80—8—72.

Third—John Revolta and Mrs. Howard Raymond, Evanston, 80—6—74; fourth—Sam Bernardi, Old Elm, and Margaret Kiernan, Exmoor, 82—7—75; fifth—Ivar Gustafson, Glen Oak, and Florence McCoy, Lincolnshire, 84—9—75; sixth—Orville Schell and Mrs. R. Chicago's caddymasters assembled at Tam o' Shanter yesterday to pay their respects to Chick Evans, a former caddy who became a champion. Evans was a caddy at the Edgewater Golf club before he became National Amateur and National Open champion. Jack Hansen, president of the Caddymasters' association, presented Chick with a bronze statue of himself which was financed by contributions from caddies of Chicago golf clubs. The caddies contributed several thousand nickels to the fund.

In the golf competition which preceded the dinner Walter Lasdo of Ravisloe and Red Dennison of Midlothian tied for first place with identical scores of 36-36-72. Louis Bann was second with 37-36-73. Other leading shooters were Cameron Eddy of Glen View, 41—37—78; Willard Hand, Glen View, 41—38—79, and Leon Kranz, 38—41—79.

WALGREEN DRUG STORES

All-Stars Get Double Drill, and Like It!

In the group of kickers were McFadden, Kinnick, Olie Cordill, Rice; Harold Van Every, Minnesota; Ben Kish, Pittsburgh; George Cafego, Tennessee; Bob Kellogg, Tulane; Grenville Lansdell and Ambrose Schindler, Southern California, and Bill Hutchinson, Dartmouth.

Will Meet Packers at Own Game.

It became apparent yesterday that the All-Stars hope to whip the Packers at their own type of game. Green Bay excels in forward passing with such stars as Arnie Herber and Cecil Isbell. By concentrating on a pass defense and working to perfect their own passes, the All-Americans hope to win even as the 1937 All-Stars won from the Packers.

Sammy Baugh of Texas Christian threw the pass to Gaynell Tinsley, Louisiana State end, which won the 1937 game from Green Bay, 6 to 0. Herber was kept in check in the first half and later both he and Bobby Monnett suffered injuries and the Packers' air game collapsed.

On the basis of intention to pass and run rather than plunge thru the line, the battle of Aug. 29 promises to be a spectators game. Speedy receivers, substituted in relays, with McFadden, Kinnick, Van Every, Lansdell, Cordill, and Schindler ready to throw, may not break thru Green Bay's secondary defense, but they will furnish plenty of thrills and action for the thousands in Soldiers' field.

May Be Moved to Full.

It is likely that Lansdell and Schindler may be moved to full back positions. Both are rugged and fast, qualifications necessary for the offense Coach Anderson is preparing. Certainly, these Trojan stars will not remain at quarter back, which primarily is a blocking back position. Under the Southern California system the quarter back is the triple threat in the back field. In the Notre Dame system the quarter back may do nearly every job except run or pass.

Ted Hennis, Purdue; Tony Sacco, St. Ambrose, and Steve Sitko, Notre Dame, are quarter backs thoroly familiar with the duties of the position as taught by Anderson. Kish, Bob Hoffman Trojan half back, and Schindler are possibilities for the job. Schindler was elected by the fans of the nation to start at the quarter back spot.

Lou Brock of Purdue, Buzz Dean of Iowa, and Lou Zontini of Notre Dame have this same advantage of familiarity with position at right half. Brock was elected to start the game against Green Bay. Also listed now at right half back are Jack Nix, Mississippi State; Cordill, Ken Heineman, Texas Mines, and Jack Padley, Dayton university.

Divide Squad Soon.

It will require a day or two more to divide the squad into teams, separating them by offensive positions and experience. Blanks were filled out last night which furnished this information as well as defensive experience. Players also recorded their special abilities such as place kicking, passing, punting, and drop kicking.

All members of the coaching staff were at work yesterday. Assisting Anderson are four coaches chosen by the nation's football fans: Buck Shaw, Santa Clara; Lowell Dawson, Tulane; Tad Wieman, Princeton, and Don Faurot, Missouri. Jim Harris and Frank Carideo, line coach and back field coach of the Iowa staff, and Lynn Waldorf, Northwestern university's head coach, complete the augmented group required to train 67 players.

Here's a Big Three.

For straight away punch in the All-Stars' attack the Big Three at this period in training would seem to be Joe Thesing of Notre Dame, Dom Principe of Fordham, and Marty Christiansen of Minnesota. There may be others, but these men have the weight and experience. Principe and Thesing, in particular, are familiar with the offensive routine.

The All-Americans will be out for another double drill today.

Dietrich and Sox to Face Kennedy and the Browns

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 12.—Bill Dietrich, who threw a no-hitter to the Browns back in 1937, will tackle them in the second and final battle of the series tomorrow. Vernon Kennedy, who also pitched a no-hitter while he was with the Sox, will oppose Dietrich.

CHICAGO BEATEN BY BOSTON IN TYPOS' BASEBALL

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 12 (AP).—P. T. Bunford yielded only two hits in pitching Washington to a 12 to 0 victory over Baltimore in the printers' baseball tournament today.

Paced by First Baseman Down, with four hits in five trips to the plate, the Boston Typos defeated Chicago, 11 to 4. Detroit, favored to take the championship, defeated St. Louis, 4 to 2.

Sox Leave 17 on Base; Beat Browns, 6 to 5

ity in the fourth. After Knott had been thrown out, Webb walked and Kreevich scratched a hit to Clift. The urge to go places took hold of Webb and he was nipped off second by Auker. This blunder became doubly painful when passes to Kuhel and Appling followed. Then Wright, with a 3 and 2 count, closed the hapless inning by lofting to Radcliff.

The second hit off Knott was a double by Judnich to start the fourth and it precipitated a real jam, but the damage was limited to the tying run. Radcliff walked and the two runners were pushed along on Berardino's bunt. Clift was purposely passed and with the bases loaded, Heffner beat out a hit to Appling, Judnich scoring. Kennedy rifled Swift's bounder back to the plate to force Radcliff and then made a glove handed stop of Auker's whistler to force Swift at second.

Browns Get Generous.

There were only two Sox hits in the fifth, but the Browns assisted with an error so the counting of two runs wasn't especially difficult. Rosenthal forgot his slump long enough to double to right with none out, whereupon McQuinn messed up Tresh's grounder. Kennedy plunked a single into center, Rosenthal scoring and Tresh taking third. Tresh scored while Knott was being tossed out and Webb walked for the third time, but no help came from either Kreevich or Kuhel.

The Sox made it 5 to 2 in their half of the sixth. Appling and Wright led off with singles, Rosenthal sacrificed, and Tresh walked. Appling scampered home on Knott's fly to Radcliff, but Wright was doubled trying for third. Then the Browns popped forth in their half with doubles by Berardino and Heffner to change the count to 5 and 3.

Brown Gets Noisy Reception.

When Brown was called forth in the seventh Grace was on second as the result of a double with one out. McQuinn scratched a single past Webb, and Appling, after recovering the ball back of second, threw wild trying to nip Grace at the plate. McQuinn took second on the error and scored the tying run on Judnich's single. Radcliff's single put Judnich on third, but Brown then fanned Berardino, walked Clift, and fanned Heffner.

Division Leaders Clash in Windy City Game Tonight

Two games that will have a direct bearing on the possible qualifiers for second round play-off berths will be decided in the Windy City Softball league tonight in St. Philip stadium, Kedzie and Van Buren streets. In the opener, two south side teams, the Washburne Craftsmen and the Pollack Motors, tied for the national division lead, will clash. The Salerno Cookies oppose the Goranson Alleys of Logan square in the second game.

ANNOUNCE DUCK HUNTING RULES; SEASON LONGER

Shooters Are Allowed 60 Days, 13 Birds Daily.

BY BOB BECKER.

Illinois duck and goose hunters this fall will be allowed 60 days of shooting starting Oct. 16; the duck limit will be 10 birds per day, the goose limit three per day, and shooting hours will be from sunrise to 4 p. m. In short, the federal regulations forecast in this column Aug. 3 will be in effect.

The regulations were issued from Washington yesterday by Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes, who said that the proved increase in the duck population made it feasible to extend the season to 60 days from the 45 day season which was in effect last fall.

Extension of Days Major Change.

The 15 day extension was the major change from last year's regulations, but the sunrise law also is an innovation. During 1939 the shooting hours were from 7 a. m. to 4 p. m. The season and shooting hours on coots [mudhens] and jacksnipe will be the same as those in effect for ducks and geese unless curtailed by state regulations.

Shooters in the northern zone of states [Maine, New Hampshire, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota, Wyoming, and Montana] will have a season lasting from Oct. 1 to Nov. 29. The season for southern states [Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas, Louisiana, Texas, and Arizona] will be from Nov. 2 to Dec. 1. All other states are in the intermediate zone and will be subject to the Oct. 16-Dec. 14 season in effect for Illinois.

As in previous years, the number of waterfowl that may be possessed at any time is limited to two days' bag, but a new rule makes it possible to possess the legal limit for 20 days after the close of the season instead of 10 days.

No Season on Wood Ducks.

The bag of canvasback, redhead, bufflehead, and ruddy ducks is limited to three per day of any one of these species. The regulations also provide that not more than three of this entire group may be taken in one day. The possession on these birds is double the daily bag limit. The closed season on wood ducks is continued.

The bag limit on coots will be 25 a day and on jacksnipes 15 a day with possession limited to the daily bag. The three shell limit on repeating shotguns and the ban against bait or live decoys also will be in effect as in previous years.

"I Get Boiling Mad when folks FREEZE beer so the flavor can't be appreciated"

Richard Seibold, MEISTER BRÄU BREWMASTER

DRINK BEER at 50 degrees and taste real beer flavor. Then I know you'll join the thousands who prefer our Old-Time Brew

MAYBE I'm too fussy about serving beer at the right temperature. But ice-cold beer is wrong. There's no use putting the finest grains in a brew just to have the flavor over-chilled so you can't recognize it. We might as well add sugars or syrups to the brew. We might as well add artificial gas when we bottle instead of using only natural draft beer carbonation created in the beer itself.

Beer flavor, good or bad, shows up at about 50 degrees. If you want to know what kind of beer you're drinking, drink it at 50 degrees. That means, take an ice-cold bottle out of the refrigerator and let it stand until it's the proper temperature.

Do that and you'll never again say, "Give me a bottle of Beer." You'll know it pays to ask for Meister Bräu. For 49 years we've made a beer for the 50-degree drinkers—the beer cranks. Order Meister Bräu today and I'll stake my reputation on your verdict if you make the "50-degrees" test.

PETER HAND BREWERY COMPANY, Chicago

Thousands have switched to MEISTER BRÄU after making this "50-Degrees" Test

Take a bottle of Meister Bräu and one of any other beer at average refrigerator temperature. Let stand until it's the proper temperature. Then open bottles and compare flavor.

Use an ordinary food thermometer such as you can get at a ten-cent store

Ask for Meister Bräu Draft Beer. Bars take special care to serve it at the proper temperature.

PORK PRICE SETS 1940 PEAK OF $21 AT WHOLESALE

Decreased Slaughtering Influences Market.

Fresh pork sold at the highest wholesale prices of the year in packingtown yesterday. A declining supply of fresh cuts resulting from the decreased slaughtering of hogs the last few days, coupled with the good clearance in retail channels over the week-end, stimulated buying in wholesale markets. Many cuts rose $1.00 a hundred pounds during the day.

Butcher shop owners paid up to $21 a hundred pounds for the best light pork loins, a new 1940 peak. This price was $5.50 above the hot weather market of two weeks ago, and $3.00 higher than on the corresponding day in 1939. The volume of hog slaughtering at 27 packing centers during the last two weeks was below the volume for the same two weeks of last year, the department of agriculture reported.

Hogs Mostly Up 10 Cents.

The supply of hogs which reached the stock yards yesterday met good demand at strong to mostly 10 cents higher prices. Both the top and average prices showed gains of 5 cents, at $6.90, and $6.25, respectively. The top was within 10 cents of the highest top price in 10 months and $1.75 above the 1940 low mark. Cattle and sheep prices were steady to higher.

The tonnage of meats in cold storage plants as of Aug. 1, 1940, was the smallest since January, the department of agriculture reported. The decline in the total compared with the July 1 holdings was estimated at 7.6 per cent.

Decreased slaughtering of live stock necessitated a heavier drain on stored meats. On Aug. 1 there were 671,369,000 pounds of all meats, exclusive of lard, in storage, as compared with 727,116,000 pounds July 1 and 836,503,000 March 1, the largest holdings of the year.

Peak for August Since 1934.

However, this year's stocks were the heaviest for August since 1934. A year ago 559,128,000 pounds were in store. The five year average stands at 526,957,000.

Holdings of lard and meat in storage on various dates compare as follows [figures in thousands of pounds, last three ciphers omitted]:

The agricultural marketing service at Washington, D. C., reported that because of "general unprofitableness of feeding operations this year," 3 per cent fewer cattle were on feed in the corn belt states Aug. 1 than a year ago.

LATE UPSURGE LEAVES WHEAT PRICES HIGHER

Corn Steady to Lower as Early Losses Are Cut.

CHICAGO GRAIN PRICES

Closing prices on the September delivery of principal grains on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday:

	Yest.	Saturday.	Yr. ago.
Wheat	$ .74¼	$ .74	$ .65⅛
Corn	.60¾	.61	.43⅜
Oats	.28⅛	.28¾	.28⅝
Rye	.41⅜	.41½	.40
Soy beans	.68½	.67½	.67⅞

Unexpected strength in the Kansas City wheat market was largely responsible for a late upturn yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade, where wheat closed ¼ to ⅝ cent higher. Kansas City gained ⅜ to ⅝ cent. Trading, however, was extremely light. Cash interests bought September and sold December, and others did the reverse. The price difference widened ¼ cent, with the September going to a discount of 1¼ cents at the close.

Corn closed unchanged to ¼ cent lower. It rallied a bit from an early break, but was unable to overcome the handicap of good rains over a large part of the main producing area.

Oats Prices Lower.

Oats showed a heavy undertone from the start and closed ⅜ to ½ cent lower with May selling at new seasonal low prices. Rye was ¼ to ⅝ cents higher and soy beans gained ⅝ to ⅞ cents a bushel.

Traders said belief that there would be an advance in premiums for cash wheat in the near future had some effect on the Kansas City market. Stocks of wheat in all positions in Kansas City are estimated at 60,000,000 bushels, an all-time record.

Southwestern farmers who suffered a loss of their wheat crop this season and have cashed in on their crop insurance policies are reported to be reinvesting the money in warehouse receipts of grain stored in terminal markets and country elevators and warehouses.

Report 7 Cent Profit.

Kansas City grain men said that this business had assumed fair proportions. It was said that the farmers can pledge the grain as security for government loans and make 7 to 8 cents a bushel profit on the transaction.

Estimates made by cash grain handlers suggested that between 300,000,000 and 450,000,000 bushels of wheat may be pledged as security for government loans this season, unless there is a marked change in the general situation.

15 SENATORS ASK MORE WAR WORK FOR INLAND AREA

Find Knudsen Stand Is 'Reassuring.'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 12.—Urging that the inland states be allowed more arms orders and other benefits accruing from the government's defense spending program, a group of 15 senators from the middle west and southwest conferred for about an hour today with William S. Knudsen, production chief of the national defense advisory commission. Afterward the senators expressed themselves as "well satisfied" with the results of the conference and the views of the defense commission, which were outlined to them.

Edgar S. Gorrell pleads case of air mail carriers.

The conference grew out of a warning last Saturday that action on the excess profits tax bill, now before a joint committee of the house and senate, would be delayed until there is assurance that inland sections of the country will receive their share of defense contracts and new arms plants.

Senator Clark Tells Stand.

Senator Bennett Clark [D., Mo.] gave notice at that time that he will oppose the special provisions for amortization of the national defense plants and plant expansions unless there is a division of contracts and plants to give his and other inland states a larger part of the defense cash outlay than they are now receiving.

The conferees who waited on Knudsen today included Republicans, Democrats, and Farmer-Laborites. It is understood that the defense production manager talked at length on what the commission is trying to do and must do to lay the groundwork for the current arms program, unprecedented in peacetime history. In a reassuring vein, he explained that the commission's attitude toward the midwest and southwest is "most friendly." But, he added, the program must be developed along certain "sound lines."

Present Plants Come First.

First, the government intends to make use of plants now in operation where the manufacture of armaments can proceed without delay. Then plants which can be expanded to meet increased production needs will be considered. These steps are necessary to save time, Knudsen said.

The senators had emphasized, among other things, their desire to obtain a larger share of the army's proposed 700 million dollar chain of munitions plants than appears scheduled for midwestern areas. As to the location of these plants, Knudsen said it is primarily a war department problem. However, he asserted, the commission has always tried to distribute defense spending evenly thruout the country and will continue this effort in all matters in which it has a voice.

Capper "Favorably Impressed."

"The middle west and southwest will be taken care of the same as the eastern seaboard and the Pacific coast, we were told," said Senator Arthur Capper [R., Kas.]. "We were very favorably impressed with Mr. Knudsen's friendly attitude toward our section of the country."

Meanwhile the hearings on the excess profits bill were going ahead before the joint congressional committee. Edgar S. Gorrell of Chicago, president of the Air Transport Association of America, asked that air mail carriers be exempt from the proposed excess profits tax. He said air mail carriers were entitled to exemption because the federal government controls their profits and because they are "vital to national defense."

Kenneth E. Armstrong, controler of Marshall Field & Co., Chicago, asked for special consideration for the company because of business changes made by it during the years 1936-'39, contemplated as the base years for determining excess profits.

Indicates Profit Will Triple.

He said that application of the proposed tax formula to the company's earnings in 1940—which he estimated at a 300 per cent increase over those of 1939 largely because of business reorganization—would result in the firm's paying, in addition to the normal tax of 20.9 per cent, an excess profits tax equal to 23 per cent of the net income for 1940, "or a total federal income and excess profits tax for the year of 39.34 per cent of our income before federal taxes."

K. T. Norris of Los Angeles, Cal., president of the Norris Stamping and Manufacturing company, warned that the proposed tax would prevent his and other firms from expanding enough to meet increasing defense needs. He declared that he thought the amount of revenue to be obtained from the bill was "not enough to justify the risk of holding up the national defense program.

Norris argued for elimination of the treasury plan of limiting excess profits to 10 per cent on the invested capital. He said that instead taxes should start only at the point where earnings exceed the "normal profits" of the previous year.

Chairman Robert L. Doughton [D., N. C.] of the house ways and means committee predicted house action on the tax amortization bill late this week.

Unified Rule of Transport Votedby House

Washington, D. C., Aug. 12 (AP).—Legislation providing unified control of the nation's rail, motor, and water carriers by the Interstate Commerce commission won final approval of the house today.

A conference report on the bill which places inland and intercoastal water carriers under the I. C. C. and expands the powers of the commission to effect consolidations and reorganizations of transportation systems was adopted, 247 to 74, and sent to the senate.

The final vote came after a vigorous but futile fight by friends of the water carriers to restore to the bill the Wadsworth amendment which would permit rate reductions if they provided "compensatory" returns to the carrier.

Fights for Amendment.

Representative James W. Wadsworth [R., N. Y.] warned that unless this amendment, stricken out by the conferees despite previous house instructions to retain it, were restored, the legislation might have adverse effects on water transportation.

However, Wadsworth was beaten, 209 to 114, on a motion to recommit the bill to the conferees with instructions to reinstate the amendment.

The action of the conferees was denounced by Representative Francis D. Culkin [R., N. Y.] as "parliamentary Hitlerism" but was defended by Representative Charles A. Halleck [R., Ind.].

Representative Clarence F. Lea [D., Cal.], also defended elimination of the amendment, contending it would result in increased freight and passenger rates.

Bill Protects Labor.

The conference version of the bill contained provisions to protect labor from the effect of consolidations and reorganizations by providing that workers eliminated by such orders be compensated for a period up to four years. For example, a man who had been employed one year would be compensated for one year, while a man employed four years or more, would draw pay for a maximum of four years.

Charges that the legislation would "destroy" water carriers were denied by Halleck who said that "with the country committed to a policy of regulation in transportation it is only fair that all forms should be regulated." The I. C. C., he added, "didn't wreck the motor carriers."

11 PER CENT DROP IN ILLINOIS CORN CROP REPORTED

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 12 (AP).—Government Statistician A. J. Surratt reported today "the Illinois corn crop was reduced 37,000,000 bushels or 11 per cent by the July drouth and heat, and is placed at 299,480,000 bushels."

The harvest prediction was contained in the Aug. 1 crop report of the Illinois and federal departments of agriculture. The new estimate was 119,000,000 bushels less than the big 1939 crop of 418,652,000 bushels and well below the 10-year average of 1929–38 of 311,956,000 bushels.

The monthly report said the condition of corn, soybeans, cowpeas and potato crops was very uneven and down sharply from July 1 but still slightly above average on Aug. 1. The declining condition of late crops was checked by the break in the heat wave on Aug. 6 and rains since Aug. 1, the report said.

Indicated production of Illinois crops with 1939 production in parenthesis was given as follows:

Corn 299,480,000 bushels [418,652,000]; winter wheat, 39,488,000 bushels [38,409,000]; oats, 137,236,000 bushels [93,540,000]; tame hay, 4,220,000 tons [4,183,000].

BUSINESS DONE BY CHECK IS 28% ABOVE YEAR AGO

Business done by check in the seventh [Chicago] federal reserve district during the week ended Aug. 7, increased 8.7 per cent over the preceding week and 28.2 per cent above the corresponding week in 1939, the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago reported yesterday.

Debits to individual deposit accounts as reported by 158 banks in 41 clearing house cities in the district aggregated $1,232,627,000, compared with $1,133,919,999 in the preceding week and $961,659,000 a year ago.

Business done by check in Chicago amounted to $722,228,000, compared with $550,716,000 in the corresponding week a year ago.

CHICAGO COTTONSEED OIL FUTURES TRADING STARTS NEXT MONDAY

First trading on Chicago's new cottonseed oil futures market will start next Monday. This area is one of the largest users of the commodity.

The new market will be situated in the lard pit on the Chicago Board of Trade. A committee of members of the exchange studied trading possibilities of cottonseed oil and its findings were adopted by the Board of Trade.

The unit of trading will be 60,000 pounds—one tank car, and the price basis will be multiples of 1-100th of a cent per pound. Deliverable grade will be bleachable prime summer yellow cottonseed oil, and daily trading limits will be 1 cent a pound below or above the previous close.

Trading hours will be 9 a. m. to 2 p. m. except on Saturday, when the pit will close at 11 a. m.

In 1939 receipts at Chicago were 108 million pounds and shipments were slightly more than 14 million pounds.

INSURANCE BROKERS FIGHT BAN ON CUTS IN AUTO FLEET RATES

An order by the Illinois insurance department abolishing premium discounts on automobile fleet casualty insurance will be challenged tomorrow by an injunction suit, the Insurance Brokers Association of Illinois announced yesterday.

The ruling, issued July 15, prohibited casualty companies from applying "equity rates" to policies of fleet operators who have reduced their accidents thru safety programs.

The order also abolished comprehensive policies in which fleet insurance was combined into one policy with other forms of casualty insurance, and "retrospective rating" under which rates were based on a company's accident loss record.

Clark E. Nolan, president of the association, said: "We are fighting this ruling by Ernest Palmer, the state director of insurance, because it will discriminate against fleet operators who have conducted safety programs to obtain reduced premiums on their insurance. It will work a hardship on those deserving merit treatment."

ENGINEER GOES ON STAND IN GAS RATE CUT CASE

J. H. Matthews, chief engineer for the Illinois Commerce commission, was the principal witness yesterday at a commission hearing of charges by a group of apartment dwellers that Commonwealth Edison company failed to put into full effect a $2,500,000 rate cut to residential consumers. The cut was ordered by the commission in October, 1936.

Questioned by Attorney Charles Liebman, counsel for the complainants, neither Matthews nor P. W. Schultz, senior analyst for the commission, was able to give a digest of an investigation of the effect of the rate change made by the commission shortly after the order was entered. They were not in charge of the investigation and consequently could not describe its findings, they said.

An assertion that Liebman was engaging in a "fishing expedition" was made by Irvin Rooks, counsel for Commonwealth Edison.

The next hearing in the case was set for Thursday afternoon.

SEEK UNIFORMITY IN INTERSTATE SALES TAX RULE

A uniform regulation governing the administration of sales taxes on interstate sales of merchandise is being considered at a conference of state tax administrative officials which started yesterday in the offices of the Federation of Tax Administrators, 1313 East 60th street.

The meeting is being held by a committee appointed by the National Association of Tax Administrators and headed by John Hendren, attorney for the Missouri sales tax division. Samuel Herman, of the Illinois department of finance, is a member of the group.

Recent imposition of state sales taxes on interstate shipments of goods, made lawful by a United States Supreme court decision, has caused many complaints from business men. Previously, purchases made from outside a state were not subject to sales taxes.

TWA to Start Operating Marquette Line Thursday

Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., will begin daily flights over the 564 mile route of the Marquette Airlines on Thursday, J. A. Thomas, central sales manager, said yesterday. One round trip will be operated between St. Louis, Cincinnati, and Detroit, and two between Cincinnati and Detroit, with stops at Dayton. TWA has been granted authority to lease the route by the Civil Aeronautics board, pending settlement of its application to purchase the Marquette system.

Gear Sales in July Exceed 1939 Month by 58 Per Cent

Gear sales in July were 58 per cent larger than in July last year and nearly 10 per cent ahead of the June, 1940, volume, the American Gear Manufacturers association reported yesterday. Sales in the first seven months of 1940 were 38 per cent larger than in the corresponding 1939 period.

Experts View Gold Hoard as Advantageous

Most American monetary experts predict substantial advantages will be derived by the United States from the $20,000,000,000 in gold—three-quarters of the world's monetary supply—now held in its vaults, according to a survey conducted by the Associated Press and made public yesterday.

Prof. E. W. Kemmerer says gold standard will return.

Of 30 economists thruout the country asked to contribute to a symposium on the future value of gold, 16 replied. Seven said the future value of gold is secure; seven others were inclined to agree, with important reservations, and only two took a frankly pessimistic view of gold's future usefulness. The seven with qualifying statements suggested chiefly that value would depend upon wise management by the United States.

Divided on Gold Circulation.

As to what the United States should do to assure the advantageous use of gold, six recommended steps toward freer international trade.

Two urged restoration of gold to circulation in the United States, and two opposed it. Several said that when the time is ripe the United States must coöperate to reëstablish sounder currencies thruout the world, some mentioning a world monetary conference. Two suggested establishment of a world bank financed with American gold. Two recommended use of gold to purchase military bases. Two mentioned continued purchases of gold as an aid to Great Britain.

Edwin W. Kemmerer, professor of international finance at Princeton, who has served as monetary adviser to several governments, said:

"After the present world war, as after the last one, the world will gradually return to the gold standard, because efforts at managed paper money standards will break down.

Fears Political Exploitation.

"Such standards cannot be maintained internationally on a large scale, and in a democracy like the United States would soon be wrecked by politicians thru the exploitation of the money issuing function for fiscal purposes, with resulting harmful inflation."

Kemmerer advocated maintenance of this country's gold purchase price, restoration of gold to circulation, and, at a propitious time, the calling of an international conference to restore and improve the gold standard.

FSA WILL SHIFT 3 BIG PROJECTS TO THEIR OCCUPANTS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 12 (AP).—The farm security administration said today plans were underway to turn over to occupants nearly the $35,000,000 worth of suburban housing projects it inherited from the resettlement administration.

Involved in the proposed transfer are projects at Greenbelt, Md., near Washington, with housing capacity for 885 families; Green Hills, near Cincinnati, O., with facilities for 676 families, and Greendale, near Milwaukee, Wis., which houses 572 families. Greenbelt represents an investment of $13,394,406, Green Hills $11,508,001, and Greendale $10,113,464.

All were launched as suburban low rent housing projects by the resettlement administration in 1935. Farm security administration officials said homestead associations would be formed by residents of the projects.

FSA plans eventually to turn all such properties over to the persons using them.

VALUE OF STATE'S OIL OUTPUT PASSES COAL FIRST TIME ON RECORD

For the first time in the history of Illinois, petroleum surpassed coal in value of production in 1939, the geological survey division of the state department of education and registration reported yesterday.

"Illinois petroleum production in 1939 was four times that of 1938 and 20 times that of 1936," the report, prepared by W. H. Voskuil and G. N. Oliver, stated. "Production of construction materials and industrial minerals showed a marked increase. Illinois agricultural limestone output again exceeded one million tons, more than was produced by any other state, and Illinois retained first place in the application of limestone to the soil.

"The total value of Illinois mineral materials produced amounted to $283,385,398, compared with $159,033,832 in 1938."

SCHEDULES SAG AT STEEL MILLS TO 89.5 PER CENT

Steel mills will trim their operating rates this week 1 point to 89.5 per cent of capacity, a dip of 1.1 per cent, the American Iron and Steel institute estimated yesterday. Last week's rate of 90.5 per cent was the highest in seven months. Steel circles said vacation holidays in Pittsburgh contributed to the decline this week.

United States Steel corporation reported shipments of finished steel products by its subsidiaries in July were the best for the month since 1937, totaling 1,296,887 net tons, an increase of 87,203 tons over the 1,209,684 shipped in June. In July, 1939, shipments were 754,364 tons. For the first seven months of 1940, shipments totaled 7,585,285 tons, an increase of 2,001,517 tons over the 5,583,768 shipped in the comparable 1939 period, the company reported.

While the steel rate continued at near capacity levels, Ward's Automotive Reports said auto production, which last week dropped to the lowest point of 1940 at 11,635 units probably will climb steadily from now on thru the rest of August and September. This week's assemblies should increase about 10,000 units, the journal estimated. Total production of 1940 model automobiles according to Ward's was 4,164,693 units.

LITCHFIELD QUITS ONE OF TWO TOP GOODYEAR JOBS

Akron, O., Aug. 12 (AP).—P. W. Litchfield announced today that he will retire Sept. 1 as president of Goodyear Tire and Rubber company, but will continue as board chairman.

Edwin J. Thomas, executive vice president, will succeed Litchfield as president.

Litchfield made the announcement at a meeting of the company's supervisory and executive personnel. A company statement said the action conforms with "a rearrangement of the management" proposed by Litchfield and approved today by the board.

Litchfield, who joined Goodyear 40 years ago, said he would continue to be the senior active executive and primarily responsible for the creation of policy.

Thomas, who started with Goodyear 24 years ago as a stenographer, "will be concerned with the execution of policy and the two offices will jointly share the selection and direction of personnel," the company stated.

Transfer Ships to Other Flags at Record Pace

The United States has built merchant ships at a fast pace in the last year, but during that period the transfer of American vessels to foreign registry has taken place on an unprecedented scale, it was revealed yesterday in the August bulletin of the American Bureau of Shipping.

"During the last 12 months—July 1, 1939, to July 1, 1940—the maritime commission has approved for transfer or sale to foreign flag a total of 159 American flag merchant vessels of 2,000 gross tons or more, aggregating 864,692 gross tons," President J. Lewis Luckenbach of the bureau said.

"During the same period there were completed and added to the American flag fleet 41 merchant vessels of 2,000 gross tons or more, totaling 329,339 gross tons."

179 Under Contract.

Under construction or contract on July 1 were 179 vessels of 2,000 gross tons or more, totaling 1,508,360 gross tons, according to the bulletin.

The sale or transfer of registry of the American ships was caused primarily by the provisions of the neutrality act that forbids an American vessel traveling in certain restricted zones.

Shipping circles say the shift of American vessels and the developments of the war have snarled the industry and caused a wide fluctuation of carrying charges. Early in the war and until June, there was a shortage of cargo space and rates skyrocketed.

A survey recently conducted showed that the situation now has reversed itself and more vessels than cargoes are available. As a result, prices have dropped in many instances to about half what they were on June 1.

New Yards Are Opened.

Commenting on the Maritime commission shipbuilding program, Luckenbach said since the program started several new yards have been opened, both on the Pacific and gulf coasts.

"Any further major expansion of our shipbuilding facilities by adding to the number of yards is open to question," he said. "It would be distinctly unfortunate in the light of past experience to have a surplus of plants in existence all over the country if and when our present shipbuilding activity is curtailed.

"It would seem desirable that any necessary expansion should rather be in the direction of extending existing shipyards whose operation and management have reached a high standard of efficiency."

SUBMIT 3 BRIEFS ON PROGRAM FOR NORTH WESTERN

Three briefs in connection with reorganization of the Chicago and North Western railroad were filed in federal court yesterday by the railroad, the protective committee for common stockholders and life insurance and mutual savings bank groups. The briefs had been ordered by Federal Judge John P. Barnes, before whom hearings on the Interstate Commerce commission's plan for reorganizing the road were held last month and in June.

Judge Barnes' decision on the plan, which eliminates preferred and common stockholders from participation in the reorganized property, is not expected before the fall term of court. The railroad opposes the ICC program on the grounds that possibility of increased revenues in the future warrants giving the stockholders some sort of equity. Luther Walter, special counsel for the road, said a copy of the railroad's brief will be sent to Judges Barnes at Green Lake, Wis., where he is vacationing.

The brief filed by the common stockholders committee attacked the "abysmal pessimism." The insurance and banking groups asked approval of the program.

RAILROAD BUYS 3½ MILLIONS IN NEW EQUIPMENT

Other Orders Speed Industrial Rise.

Several large defense program and commercial orders yesterday further boosted the expansion of industry. The Southern Pacific railway placed a $3,500,000 order for 51 lightweight streamlined passenger cars with the Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company.

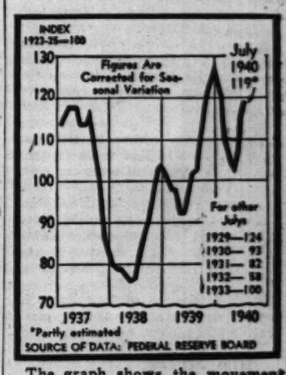
A. D. McDonald, president of the railroad, said the total includes 26 lightweight Pullman sleeping cars for the Larks, overnight trains between Los Angeles and San Francisco. Other new cars will be placed in the general equipment pool for use thruout the system, including runs between the west coast and Chicago and New Orleans.

The order, McDonald observed, is in addition to those announced recently for 20 new streamlined passenger locomotives costing $3,500,000, new freight cars costing $7,750,000, and Southern Pacific's share of a new $2,000,000 streamliner, City of San Francisco. The Union Pacific and North Western roads share in the cost of the latter train.

Locomotives Ordered.

The Lima Locomotive Works received an order for two steam locomotives from the Akron, Canton & Youngstown railroad.

With a view to meeting national defense demands, the "long lines" department of American Telephone and Telegraph company announced that proposed new construction for 1940 has been increased to 21 million dollars from 18 million dollars set tentatively last January. In 1939 the amount spent in improving the long distance telephone system was 15 million dollar. The laying of a new underground cable between Baltimore and Washington, D. C., at a cost of 1 million dollars, is one of the most important projects in preparation. It is expected to be in service by the end of the year.



The graph shows the movement of an industrial production index, 1937-'40.

Announce Army Orders.

The war department announced the awarding of contracts totaling $4,074,222. They included:

Robert Shaw Thermostat company, Youngwood, Pa., $270,249; Scovill Manufacturing company, Waterbury, Conn., $102,410; Gilbert and Barker Manufacturing company, Springfield, Mass., $443,037; Safety Car Heating and Lighting company, New York, $129,396; Keuffel and Esser company, Hoboken, N. J., $718,727; Kleber Trunk and Bag company, Pittsburgh, Pa., $109,800; Charles T. Main, Boston, and Fred T. Ley & Co., Springfield, Mass., $695,000; Novey and Lustrell, Inc., Ancon, Canal Zone, $274,-

New York Stocks.

New York, Aug. 12 (AP).—Leading stocks just about held their own in today's market, which closed with a mixture of gains and losses. Increased nervousness over Anglo-German war developments was in evidence.

Early efforts to extend last week's recovery soon encountered opposition and prices generally slipped fractions to around a point before meeting support.

Steels rallied to finish with moderate gains in the face of dip in mill operations following six consecutive weekly advances.

Intensification of the air battle over England tended to dim bullish sentiment which has been growing recently in Wall street. The result was that many traders lightened or shelved commitments pending more assurance the British would be able to withstand what some believed to be the start of the long threatened "all out" Hitler invasion.

At the same time, timidity of sellers was evident thruout. The principal sustaining influence, brokers said, was the hope huge defense spending would eventually touch off a brisk upswing in industry.

DuPont held an upturn of 2¾ points at 166¾, Dow Chemical was up 2 and Sears Roebuck retained 1¼. Smaller plus marks were shown at the close by United States Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet, Sperry, American Telephone, Kennecott, Westinghouse, Celanese, Standard Oil of New Jersey, American Smelting and Union Carbide.

Unchanged to a shade lower were Chrysler, General Motors, Great Northern, United States Rubber, Douglas Aircraft, Boeing, United Aircraft, Allied Chemical, Texas Corporation, Loft, International Papar Preferred and Kroger Grocery.

New York Bonds.

New York, Aug. 12 (AP).—Bonds edged forward in narrow, irregular fashion today as traders continued their watchful waiting for indications as to how the battle of England may resolve. Turnover, $2,723,500 face value, was the smallest for a full session since July 3, 1939. Volume was $3,473,875 last Friday.

German and Italian government issues slipped major fractions during the day while British defense units were fighting German bombers. Canadian government loans rose fractionally.

The domestic corporate list was somewhat less listless than of late, altho transactions still were far from active. Fractional gains were made by Anaconda 4¼s at 103⅜, St. Paul 5s at 4⅝, Goodrich 4¼s at 104, Portland General Electric 4½s at 67¾, Western Union 5s of '60 at 65⅝, and Youngstown Sheet and Tube 4s at 105⅛.

United States government issues in languid dealings, closed 9/32 point lower to 1/32 higher.

Chicago Stocks.

Bank Stocks.

Northern Trust shares declined 2 points and City National a point yesterday in Chicago bank stock trading. Other issues were unchanged.

HILL, TOBACCO HEAD, DEFENDS THE INDUSTRY

Denies Federal Charges of Price Fixing.

A history of the domestic tobacco industry and a 1937 report of the federal trade commission were offered by George Washington Hill, president of American Tobacco company, yesterday in support of his "not guilty" answer to government charges of price fixing and monopoly.

Criminal charges under the anti-trust statute were filed against American, 33 other tobacco companies, Hill and 32 other individuals by the government in Lexington, Ky., on July 24.

Hill submitted a 72 page pamphlet history of American Tobacco and the domestic tobacco industry, which had been prepared for distribution among the company's stockholders.

Cites Various Investigations.

"That genuine competition between the various tobacco manufacturing companies has existed since 1912 is well known not only to those who have studied the industry, but to government representatives who have analyzed the business in various investigations," the pamphlet said.

It contained quotations from the trade commission's findings as follows:

"'Competition for the cigaret business has existed and still exists between the former units of the American Tobacco company [split up in 1911 as the result of a federal civil suit].

"'In the distribution of manufactured products no evidence was found indicating that manufacturers of cigarets, cigars, smoking and chewing tobacco have actively cooperated for the purpose and with the effect of lessening competition among themselves.'"

Reviews Its Services.

The pamphlet traced the course of the business after 1911. Research and improved methods for processing tobacco were termed services rendered to consumers by the tobacco companies. Increased use of tobacco, the pamphlet said, has provided the farmer with a huge cash crop each year and an increasing number of persons with jobs. In addition, it said, the government collects more revenue from the tobacco industry than from any other industry except the liquor trade.

"It thus appears that at the end of the year 1939, with the company [American Tobacco] having made all the investment, having done all of the management, having taken all the risk, having done all of the promotional work—the government of the United States received a return from the business of $137,873,860 and the company received a return of $26,427,934."

WOLOCK & BAUER CREDITORS TAKE SHOE STOCK BID

A bid of $3,000 for stocks of shoes of Wolock & Bauer, operator of two women's shoe stores, was approved yesterday by Maurice J. Rosman, trustee appointed by creditors of the 27 year old company. The successful bidder for the 2,600 pairs of shoes comprising the stock was the Roosevelt Jobbing House, 702 West Roosevelt road.

Other bids were submitted by Chicago department stores and New York and Milwaukee companies. Fixtures owned by Wolock & Bauer will be sold at auction today. Rosman said that if he does not approve the bids, the fixtures will remain in the stores thru arrangement with the landlords until another auction is held.

The stores were at 2 North Michigan avenue and 8 East Randolph street. Morris Wolock operated the company for the last 15 years.

COURT RESERVES CHICAGO YARDS CASE DECISION

Jersey City, N. J., Aug. 12 (AP).—Vice Chancellor Henry T. Kays today reserved decision on an application by two stockholders to enjoin distribution of the assets of the Chicago Junction Railways and the Union Stockyards company, a holding company incorporated in New Jersey.

Martin A. Taylor of Haverhill, Mass., and Emma Bancroft, of Wellesley, Mass., asked the court to appoint a receiver to supervise distribution. The corporation's charter expired July 10. Delay of distribution was sought on the ground stockholders had been defrauded by a series of transactions starting in 1911.

The two complaining stockholders are also complainants against the Chicago Stockyards company of Maine, in a United States District court in Massachusetts.

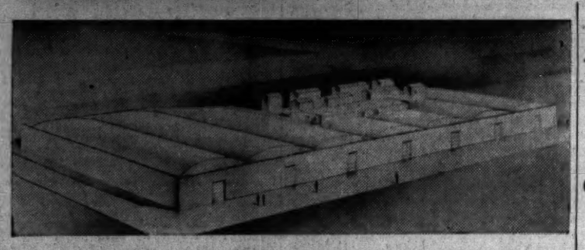
17 Millions for Defense Families' Homes Approved

Washington, D. C., Aug. 12 (AP).—The United States housing authority announced today that President Roosevelt had approved loans and allocations of $13,773,000 to build 3,601 homes for families of defense workers in eight vital defense centers. Amounts and location of the projects include $2,003,000 for 600 dwellings at Bremerton, Wash., near the Puget sound navy yard; $1,625,000 for 325 dwellings at Anchorage, Alaska, near the new air base; $1,600,000 for 400 dwellings in the Panama Canal Zone, and $2,400,000 for 600 dwellings at the Mare Island, Cal., navy yard.

Cosmopolitan National Bank Marks Anniversary

The Cosmopolitan National Bank of Chicago yesterday observed its fourth anniversary. The bank has total assets of more than $4,200,000 and 7,900 accounts with deposits totaling $3,867,189, according to Jacob R. Darmstadt, president.

Engine Builder to Boost Capacity



At top is an aerial photo of the 22 acre tract occupied by Buda company, Harvey, Ill., manufacturer of Diesel engines. The company is building a $500,000 addition (shown by shaded area with diagonal lines) to the department that is turning out Guiberson lightweight Diesel engines for the United States army tanks. Below is architect's drawing of the new addition.

BUDA PUSHES EXPANSION OF ENGINE PLANT

One Story Structure to Be Windowless.

Foundations have been poured and construction is well under way on the new $600,000 addition to the Buda company's plant at Harvey, Ill., where lightwheel Diesel motors are being turned out for United States army tanks, R. K. Mangan, vice president of the company, said yesterday.

Continental Construction company of Chicago is handling the building job, which, according to the terms of the contract, must be finished by Sept. 28—record time for the size and type of project, according to Mangan.

45,000 Square Feet of Space.

Completely insulated and windowless, the new one story structure will provide 45,000 square feet of plant space for the manufacture of the Guiberson radial Diesel aircraft and tank engines. The motor, developed by S. A. Guiberson Jr. and his son of Texas, is being manufactured by Buda under contract agreements. The Guibersons recently moved their headquarters to Chicago.

Because of the precision work necessary on the engines, the new building is to be mechanically ventilated with pressure blowers and air entering the building will be filtered, conditioned and temperature controled to insure clean conditions.

A special type of fluorescent lighting will be used to provide workmen with sufficient light, and the interior design provides the utmost in manufacturing floor space, it was said.

Addition Recently Finished.

The new building is an addition to a $300,000 similar structure completed last May and will enable the company to more than double its present output of the aircraft and tank Diesels.

Mangan said the newest type of precision machine tools and testing equipment will be installed in the new plant. The complete building will contain six specially constructed soundproof 1,100 horse power dynamo-meter rooms for testing the engines.

NAZI PUBLICITY 'UNFAVORABLE,' RIEBER RESIGNS

Leaves Chairmanship of Texas Corp.

New York, Aug. 12 (AP).—Torkild Rieber resigned as chairman of the board of the Texas corporation today "because of certain publicity, detrimental to the company," arising from his association with Dr. Gerhard A. Westrick, German commercial agent in this country.

After a meeting lasting seven hours directors of the big petroleum company, which has interests in a number of foreign countries, issued a statement asserting Rieber's resignation had been accepted "with real regret on the part of each individual member of the board."

Fears Harm to Company.

"In view of the harm that might be done to the company by reason of the unfair and unjust criticism which had appeared recently in the press," the board's statement said in part, "Mr. Rieber felt it his duty to the stockholders, as well as to the organization, to resign as chairman of the board of the Texas corporation and as an executive officer of the corporation and its subsidiaries."

Westrick's activities in this country have been more or less mysterious, but he is an accredited attaché of the German embassy and business representative of the Nazi government. He has had wide dealings with American businessmen.

Company Pays for Car.

After it was disclosed two weeks ago that he was living on an estate at suburban Scarsdale, the state motor vehicle department began an investigation of his automobile registration and driver's license. Last Friday it revoked both on the grounds the applications contained false statements.

In the hearing a Texas corporation official testified the company had paid for the car used by Dr. Westrick but had expected reimbursement from the German official.

At a press conference on Aug. 1 the Norwegian-born Capt. Rieber asserted he had directed a subordinate to help Dr. Westrick get a driver's license and had offered him the use of a company car.

"I did that and considered it good business," said Rieber, adding that Westrick, a German supreme court lawyer, was his German attorney and a lawyer who had represented "some of the largest American companies" in Germany.

Rieber is 58 and had been associated with the Texas corporation since 1905.

EXPORT TRAFFIC BY RAIL TO PORTS CLIMBS IN JULY

Export traffic hauled to Atlantic and Gulf ports by railroads in July increased 79 per cent as compared with corresponding month last year, the Association of American Railroads reported yesterday. The railroads unloaded 46,554 cars at the ports, not including grain shipments, compared with 26,058 cars in July, 1939. Grain traffic declined 69 per cent to 2,009 cars from 6,386 a year ago.

The traffic in July was the largest since the association established the office of manager of port traffic last November. The manager reported that traffic moved without congestion or delay thru coöperation of steamship lines, port authorities, exporters, and shippers.

Railroads are utilizing about 31 per cent of the storage space at the Port of New York. The association reported ample storage space available at the other Atlantic and Gulf ports.
